Senate Unit Cuts Billion From Budget Of Military

Committee Orders Air Force Groups Slashed to 48, 6 Less Than Now

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday slashed $1,010,000,000 from the military budget—largely by cutting back the Air Force.

In voting approximately 13 billion dollars for the armed forces, the group decided to hold the Air Force to 48 groups—six less than now and 10 short of what was proposed by the House. The committee recommendation conforms to the air strength asked by President Truman.

Senator Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.), chairman of the subcommittee in charge of the military spending bill, said the full Appropriations Committee voted about two to one to eliminate the 800-million-dollar increase approved by the House to continue building toward a 70-group Air Force.

Special Enlistments Ended

Thomas also reported that an additional 600-million-dollar cut in stockpiling funds also may be recommended before the Senate acts. This would be a recision of money already approved by Congress.

"If Congress approves these reductions and those proposed for ECA," the Oklahoman said, "we will be able to balance the budget this year."

Besides the Air Force slash, the committee voted to end special one-year enlistments for 18-year-olds—for an estimated 50-million-dollar saving—and then directed Secretary of Defense Johnson to trim an additional 433 millions from the total budget.

The Senators wrote into the bill language empowering Johnson to cut Army, Navy and Air Force funds at his discretion to achieve saving. He must be "guided by providing the utmost national security within the total appropriations" in making such reductions.

Some Cuts Restored

Partially offsetting these reductions, the committee restored all the cuts made by the House below the President's budget estimates—between 250 and 300 million dollars.

Thomas said this novel economy plan was suggested by Secretary Johnson. The spending bill, as reported to the Senate, has Johnson's full approval and shouldn't "injure national security" in any way, the Oklahoman said.

He indicated that Johnson had outlined to the committee in general how he will save the 433 millions, and added that some "rather

Russians Return U. S. Recruit Missing 5 Months

Berlin (Saturday), July 16 (U.P.).—Recruit Christus Rangraves, 21, of New York City, a member of the United States Constabulary Corps, was handed over by the Russians last night after having been missing for nearly five months.

Rangraves said he had been held in solitary confinement on charges of espionage and had been kicked, beaten, spat upon and otherwise mistreated. He said the Russians called him an American pig.

When he was handed over to American military police he was haggard and in filthy condition.

Rangraves disappeared in the Soviet sector February 24 while dressed in civilian clothing. He will have to face a charge of going AWOL, pending investigation of his story, which his superiors termed "pretty strong."

200,000 in Plans

3 Military Forces Face Big Job Cut

By Jerry Kluttz
Post Reporter

The Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday opened the door to a possible huge cut in the civilian personnel of the Army, Navy and Air Force.

It directed the Defense Secretary to make a 433-million-dollar cut in the budget estimates of the three military agencies. Chairman Thomas (D., Okla.) emphasized that Secretary Johnson will have a free hand to make the cuts. He added that it would be unfair to indicate where the slashes would be made.

However, it is known that Johnson has ordered the military agencies to draw up plans for a possible reduction of 200,000 of their 900,000 civilian employes. The top staffs of the three agencies are now working on those plans.

The rough paper plans, it is reported, call for a reduction of 125,000 in Navy's 351,000-man staff; of 50,000 of the Army's 377,000 civilians, and of 25,000 in Air Force's 167,000-man force. These proposed cutbacks, it was said, are merely goals and no final decision on them has been made. They are subject to changes.

A reduction of 200,000 civilians, it is estimated, would save about 620 million dollars a year. The average civilian salary is about $3100.

Under the committee directive to save 433 million dollars—a directive urged by the Defense Secretary—Johnson could apply it to military personnel, guns, tanks, or any other items he desired. It is unlikely that he would take it all out of civilian personnel.

At one point in his testimony before the committee, Johnson said that savings could be made by the elimination of unnecessary civilian personnel.

Whatever personnel reduction is ordered will be made over the next year. A plan reported to have been recommended to Johnson called for the discharge of 100,000 civilians by the end of this year and the layoff of another 100,000 by next June 30.

World Chiefs Speculate On A-Talks Here

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

At least three and probably more world capitals buzzed with speculation yesterday on the subject of President Truman's extraordinary top-level night conference on atomic questions.

Speculation on Capitol Hill was that the conference concerned interrelations of Great Britain, the United States and Canada on the exchange of information and raw materials for the A-bomb. None of the conference participants would comment, however.

The United Press reported from Ottawa that Canadian officials said they knew nothing of the conference.

The Ottawa dispatch mentioned that Canadian and British officials were said to have attended the conference. Two unidentified persons were present Thursday night at Blair House with the 14 top Cabinet, military, atomic and congressional leaders.

From London the Associated Press reported that a Defense Ministry spokesman, asked about reports the U. S. had discussed giving secrets of the atom bomb to Britain, commented:

"Well, old boy, even if we knew anything about any such thing, you don't suppose we would be making statements about it, do you?"

President Truman was unmoved both by open senatorial criticism of the dramatic, wartime hush-hush atmosphere in which the conference was held and by quiet, behind-the-scenes pressure from Administration Democrats for some sort of statement.

On the Senate floor, Senator Jenner (R., Ind.) angrily waved a copy of The Washington Post with the headline "Grim-faced leaders hold secret atom conference" and shouted:

"Grim-faced leaders! Isn't it about time we take the conduct of our own foreign relations into our own hands and tell the people

Czech State To Try Priests For Treason

Prague, July 15 (U.P.).—The Communist Czechoslovak government announced tonight it would try as traitors any priests who tried to enforce a Vatican excommunication order against its supporters and disclosed plans to take over almost complete control of the Roman Catholic Church in Czechoslovakia.

Minister of Justice Alexej Cepica, in the first official answer to the Vatican's dire ban against Communists and their supporters, said at a meeting of the presidium of the central "Action Committee":

"Let no one doubt that anybody who, after the Pope's statement, tries in any way to carry out the Vatican order, commits treason . . .

"Let no one doubt that we shall judge everybody according, and only according, to his acts and deeds and not according to fancy words; and that all acts which would violate the valid (state) laws will be measured in accordance with them."

State to Pass on Clerics

Plans for virtual nationalization of the Catholic Church were disclosed in a dispatch of the official news agency which said that a bill drafted for the next session of Parliament provides:

1. The State will have the right to approve or disapprove all church appointments from archbishops down to army chaplains.
2. The state will pay all priests annual fixed salaries.
3. No priest will be paid if he has been sentenced by a civil court or if he is not "nationally reliable."
4. Churches will be required to give an inventory of all their property and will be forbidden to sell or transfer property without approval.
5. Churches will be required to operate on budgets presented annually in advance.
6. Administrative supervision for the powers cited will be vested in the ministry of education.

Papers Silent for Two Days

The bill will be discussed by the church section of the central action committee and will be presented to Parliament after the summer recess, the official news agency said.

Forty-eight hours after the Vatican decree Czechoslovak newspapers had not mentioned it, nor had the officially-controlled radio. The Communist newspaper Rude Pravo, however, published an editorial attacking Vatican propaganda as "full of lies" aimed at "violence against representatives of the state, terror against the civilian population and the unleashing of unrest to destroy fruitful work.

Rep. Hays Appeals for Home Rule

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Representative Hays (D., Ark.), yesterday made a strong appeal for prompt approval of Washington home rule.

He made his appeal in an unscheduled appearance before the House District Judiciary subcommittee, headed by Representative Harris, also an Arkansas Democrat, but to date an opponent of home rule.

Hays told the subcommittee that with home rule "you might get poorer government in terms of efficiency, but you would get democratic government, and you would prove to the world that we really believe in government by the consent of the governed."

The hearing will resume at 10 a. m. Wednesday. District Chairman McMillan (D., S. C.) voiced hope that session would finish the hearing. Some 30 witnesses remain to be heard. McMillan said he hoped remaining witnesses will limit themselves to five minutes each.

Hays' testimony led to sharp questioning by subcommittee members, with Representative Abernethy (D., Miss.) taking the lead in challenging Hays' views. But his appearance gave a lift to the hopes of home rule sponsors, some of whom followed him in urging passage of the Senate-approved home rule bill.

Opposition Echo

The subcommittee also heard an echo of Washington Board of Trade opposition to the bill in the report of Paul Matthews, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, who said a majority of the members of his organization do not want home rule without national representation too.

Support of the home rule bill was voiced by C. F. Preller, president of the AFL Washington Central Labor Union, and by Lloyd Cutler and Strugis Warner, appearing for the Washington Home Rule Committee.

Harry N. Peterson, chief District public librarian, urged that the library system continue to operate under its independent board of trustees, and keep its own separate merit system, if home rule is approved.

He protested features of the bill that would place libraries in a department under a city manager and include library personnel under Federal civil service.

Got Law Degree Here

A parallel request was made by Thomas S. Settle of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, who urged that his agency's land acquisition powers in the District be left as they are and not transferred to the District government.

Representative Hays, No. 50 and a member of the House since 1942, said he first learned of the strong interest District citizens have in home rule when he worked here as a Government clerk and went to night law school at George Washington University.

He came here when he was 20, obtained his law degree in three years, then returned to Arkansas to practice law.

Hays said he had "lashed out" at many sections of President Truman's civil rights message last year, but had found merit in the portion of it urging District home rule.

Giving District residents a voice in their own local affairs, said Hays "is not a matter of primary

'Solution' to Dollar Crisis

Britain May Ask U. S. to Join World Price-Fixing Program

London, July 15 (AP). — Britain may ask the United States in September to help solve the dollar crisis by joining in a huge program of world-price fixing.

This proposal, informed sources here said, is aimed at stabilizing the price of certain raw materials produced in the empire and guaranteeing a fixed market for them. They reported the plan has commenced to take shape in the London conference of Commonwealth finance ministers.

There was no official announcement on the talks toward a "long-term solution" to the dollar crisis. But qualified sources close to the conference said the plan of asking the United States to join the Commonwealth and colonies in a two-way pact involving many millions of dollars had been studied.

Word came from the conference also that proposals for a change in the buying price of gold might be presented when Sir Stafford Cripps and other British officials visit Washington in September to renew talks started here by United States Treasury Secretary John W. Snyder a week ago.

South Africa is the empire's largest gold producer. Several participants in the conference believe the price it gets for its gold —in dollars—should be raised in line with general price increases throughout the world.

Financial sources stressed that the price-fixing scheme is still in the formulative stage.

Roughly speaking, they said, the British idea is to extend the existing system of fixing world wheat prices to other raw materials, such as wool, tin, rubber and cocoa—all products produced heavily within the empire.

In addition to winning United States support for the scheme, they said, efforts would be made also to have Washington agree to buy fixed quantities of these key materials from the dominions and colonies over a set period.

The official announcement on today's conference of Commonwealth representatives said only that "questions of long and short-term problems" connected with the financial crisis were studied.

Truman Plans Totalitarian, Taft Charges

Ohio Senator Assails Deficit Budget and Defends 81st Congress

Columbus, Ohio, July 15 (AP).—Senator Taft (R., Ohio) tonight accused President Truman of leading the United States to a totalitarian state.

In a speech over a Mutual network, the Senator attacked the President's deficit budget.

"Huge Government spending has from the beginning been one of the essential features of Mr. Truman's program to follow the Labor socialized government of England into a totalitarian state, directing the lives and activities of its citizens," Taft said.

"Any President except one obsessed with the panacea of Government spending would have cut his budget to meet the revenue provided by the people.

"It is complete nonsense to say that the Government cannot cut its expense. There is not a bureau in Washington which couldn't cut 10 per cent of its personnel and be more efficient.

"An average 10 per cent reduction would balance the budget."

Senator Taft coupled a vigorous

Mental Patient Almost Plunges Sane Man in Pit

Austin, Tex., July 15 (U.P.). — As Thomas O. Shell, a lumber company employe, backed onto the city dump with a truckload of trash, a bystander stepped helpfully forward and began motioning him toward the edge of the pit.

The bystander beckoned. Shell backed. Still the bystander beckoned. Shell continued to back.

Finally, remembering the drop at the edge of the dump, Shell stopped, stepped from the truck and looked. Three inches separated his rear tires from a 60-foot drop.

Shell turned to the bystander.

"What's the matter with you?" he asked. "Are you crazy?"

"I guess so," came the answer. "I'm a patient at the State Hospital."

A hospital spokesman said inmates were used on trucks carrying garbage to the city dump.

1.8 Million Riders

Bus Strike At New York May Spread

New York, July 15 (AP).—The CIO Transport Workers Union today threatened to shut off bus transportation for 1,800,000 more riders in a strike that already has eliminated service for more than a million New Yorkers.

The sudden strike has closed down two of the city's largest private companies, the New York City Omnibus and the Fifth Avenue Coach Co., which operate 1080 buses on 30 routes.

City Councilman Michael J. Quill, TWU president, declared the walkout might be extended next week to the Third Avenue Transit System, biggest of all the private concerns.

It operates 76 routes and carries about 1,800,000 passengers daily. The other two companies have a combined total of 1,125,000 riders a day.

However, the metropolis' complex transportation system appeared to handle the extra burden without much trouble. Subways operated on stepped-up schedules. Taxis reaped a bonanza. Some former bus riders even walked a few blocks.

Quill held out little hope of an early settlement of the strike. No talks between the union and companies were conducted during the day and none were scheduled.

The strike began without warning yesterday over dismissal of four omnibus corporation mechanics.

But it quickly developed into a full-fledged walkout over TWU demands for a 21-cent hourly wage boost, a reduction in the work week from 48 to 40 hours with no cut in pay, and improved pensions. Present wages average $1.50 an hour on the struck lines.

Contracts between the union and two companies expired June 30, but had been extended a month.

Companies Accede to President's Truce Plan

Daugherty, Cole And Rosenman Are Named Fact-Finders, Report in 45 Days

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

A nationwide steel strike was averted yesterday only a few hours before the midnight deadline.

The industry's "Big Three"—United States Steel, Bethlehem and Republic — reluctantly accepted the President's 60-day truce plan, and the rest of the industry quickly fell into line.

The million-member CIO Steelworkers and 14 lesser steel companies, which together produced one-fourth of the Nation's steel output, had already agreed to the President's proposition to continue operations while a special fact-finding board investigated the dispute and came up with recommendations for a settlement.

President Truman, who had turned aside the "Big Three's" offer to participate in his truce plan if he limited the powers of the special board of inquiry to fact-finding, followed up their accession to his firm stand by naming the following fact-finders:

Carroll R. Daugherty, professor of business economics at Northwestern University, chairman.

Samuel I. Rosenman, New York attorney and former special adviser to Presidents Roosevelt and Truman.

David L. Cole, Paterson, N. J., attorney and labor-relations expert.

In letters to the three fact-finders, the President asked that they convene as quickly as possible, and report to him within 45 days with recommendations "as to fair and equitable terms of settlement."

Wage Raise, Pensions Sought

The recommendations of the fact-finding board will not be binding on either management or the union, but it is expected that the recommendations will serve as a basis of settlement, and perhaps set the pattern for peace terms in other industries. The Steelworkers are seeking a wage increase, health insurance and $150 a month pensions. The steel companies insist they are in no shape, in a declining market, to meet such demands.

President Truman had first proposed his truce plan earlier this week after Cyrus S. Ching, Federal mediation chief, had reported the steel dispute to be hopelessly deadlocked. The "Big Three" rejected the plan on the grounds that if there was a national emergency because of the impending strike, then the President should invoke the Taft-Hartley Act.

President Signs Housing Bill and Calls for Speed

With "deep satisfaction," President Truman signed the long-range housing bill into law yesterday.

Then he called for quick action to put into effect its three main features, which call for:

Construction of 810,000 publicly-owned low-rental housing units in the next six years.

A five-year multi-billion-dollar slum clearance program.

A 325-million-dollar farm housing program.

Mr. Truman announced he will ask Congress immediately for funds needed to finance the three-part program this year.

The signing, held at noon at the White House, was attended by more than 20 persons from Congress, the housing agencies, and labor and veterans' organizations.

Offer to Arnold Called 'Fantastic'

Senator Harry F. Byrd yesterday said the report of a proposal that Remmie L. Arnold receive a high political post if he bows out of Virginia's gubernatorial race in favor of John S. Battle, Byrd's candidate was "fantastic."

Arnold stood by his claim that such an offer had been made. His campaign manager said he would name names "if necessary."

Francis Pickens Miller, tagged the "CIO candidate" by Byrd, told a Richmond audience he welcomed "public support of Virginia labor" but rejected "outside interference" in Virginia's affairs.

—You Can't Win!—

Whether Confidence Games Or Gambling, There's No Two Ways About It—You Lose

—By Ernest E. Blanche—

(This is the last of seven installments condensing Blanche's recent book on facts and fallacies about gambling. The author is Chief Statistician for the Logistics Division of the Army General Staff. As a hobby, he has studied gambling for 20 years. He's convinced—you can't win!—Editor's Note.)

Some of the meanest people in the gambling business are those seemingly proper storekeepers who prey upon children by encouraging them to risk their meager pennies on games of chance.

Especially irresponsible is the operator of the penny gambling board. This device is a wooden or composition board with pins or nails set into it.

Faced with a pane of glass, the board is mounted vertically over a row of small pockets just large enough to receive pennies which are dropped or tossed through a space at the top so that they fall into a small opening and follow a downward path determined by the nails or pins against which they bump until they land in one of the pockets at the bottom.

If a penny falls into either of the two end pockets marked 25, the tosser receives 25 cents in merchandise. Should the penny land in a 10 pocket, there is 10 cents in trade, and for the 5 pocket 5 cents in trade. If, as is usually the case, the penny should fall into any other pocket, the toss is a losing one.

Of 1024 pennies tossed, only 112 pennies fall into winning pockets and for these the shopkeeper pays out $7 in merchandise(actually worth less than half that sum). This is equivalent to giving the children less than 50 per cent of the money they put into the game.

Unscrupulous dealers sometimes bend or move out of line the pins near the right and left extremes so that more pennies will be diverted toward the center of the board and the losing pockets. This enables them to take about 80 per cent of all the money.

Those colorful punch boards so frequently seen in candy and novelty stores with displays of fancy prizes are veritable gold

Fulbright Wants Pact Nations To Set Up One Defense System

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A staunch friend of the North Atlantic defense treaty last night proposed that the United States withhold arms from Europe unless pact signers agree to a "single defense system."

Senator Fulbright (D., Ark.) will offer a reservation to assure what he termed "a continental army" for Europe unless he is convinced it will require renegotiation of the treaty.

"Sixteen individual defense organizations will be futile except for internal police duty," Fulbright told the Senate.

"To be effective, there must be a single, coordinated military organization with a well-defined and responsible command by a single general staff."

Senate Administration leaders indicated sympathy with Fulbright's objectives, but insisted a unified defense already is implicit in Article 9 of the treaty.

Senate Foreign Relations Chairman Connally (D., Tex.) and Majority Leader Lucas (D., Ill.) said they will continue to fight any reservation to the treaty, whether offered by proponents or opponents.

On the ninth day of the perambulating debate, concentrated almost wholly on the arms issue, the Senate finally consented unanimously to vote on the treaty and all proposed reservations starting at 5 p. m. Thursday.

Defeat of all reservations and ratification by well over the required two-thirds majority appeared certain despite gradual increase in the opposition lines. Floor strategists, who originally

In Arrears, U. S. Says

81 in Washington Area Named In Federal Tax Lien Notices

A tax lien notice was filed yesterday in District Court against John H. Connaughton, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, stating that he owes the Federal Government $1024.03 in taxes on his 1948 income.

It was among 81 such notices filed against Washington area residents by George Hofferbert, collector of internal revenue in Baltimore.

Connaughton, an attorney who lives at 718 Decatur st. nw., said he had never received any notification from the Internal Revenue Bureau that he owed any money in back taxes.

An Internal Revenue spokesman said that anyone owing back taxes is notified he is in arrears and is informed that a tax lien notice will be filed against him by a certain date unless the taxes are paid up.

Notices were also filed against Charles H DeZevallos, jr., of 6677 Barnaby st. nw., a former specialist in the Treasury Department, for $2913.70, and Jose J. Colom of 2500 Q st. nw., chief of the Division of Agriculture Cooperation, Pan American Union, for $875.19.

William Kavakos, secretary treasurer of the Kavakos Grill, 727 H st. ne., owes $3,097.96 in taxes on his 1948 income according to the notices. There was also a notice filed for Hugh Morrow, of 3444 Mount Pleasant st. nw., an associate editor of the Saturday Evening Post, for $1,135.20.

Morrow, like Connaughton, said last night that he had not received a notice of the lien, or of any arrears in taxes, and knew nothing about the filing.

In addition to Connaughton, there were 12 other lawyers

New England to Get First Jobless Study

By The Associated Press

New England yesterday was billed for first attention in the Truman Administration's new program to eliminate "pools" of joblessness by centering Federal spending in troubled areas.

Secretary of Commerce Sawyer, in announcing plans of his department to undertake an on-the-spot fact-finding study of economic conditions throughout the country, said he personally will set the program in motion by meeting with New England Governors and business leaders at Boston July 25.

The Federal Security Agent after checking the 98 largest production centers in mid-May, reported yesterday, that 10 had unemployment volumes of 21 per cent or more of their labor force. This was classed as a "very substantial labor surplus." Five of the 10 were in New England.

Over all, the 98 areas studies in mid-May indicated that the Nation as a hole had an unemployment rate of 6 per cent, or a "moderate labor surplus."

Director Robert C. Goodwin of the Bureau of Employment Security said that for the first time since the rise of unemployment began in November, "we now have a number of areas with pools of heavy unemployment which range from 12 to 23 per cent."

Employers indicated that "some employment increases may be expected by fall in industries which normally add workers during mid or late summer," Goodwin said. These include "such important activities as food, textiles, apparel, shoes, logging and lumbering, and construction."

There was another development indicating growing official concern in the Capital over the economic state of the Union.

Eighteen Senators—16 Democrats and 2 Republicans—introduced their long-heralded "anti-depression" bill designed to reverse the trend toward contraction in business activity.

Senator Murray (D., Mont.), the chief sponsor, said the purpose of the bill is the same as the aim President Truman announced in his midyear economic report: To raise the Nation's output of goods and services in the next few years to a 300 billion dollar annual rate. (It's now about 250 billion dollars, Murray said.)

With scores of pressing measures jammed up awaiting attention in the final weeks of the session, there appeared to be little possibility of action on this bill in 1949.

President Truman told newsmen Thursday the Government will combat area unemployment by concentrating its buying of supplies in the "soft" spots, possibly also starting construction projects or Government loan projects there also.

He said Sawyer would determine where extraordinary unemployment exists, then Presidential Aide John R. Steelman would see what help could be given by other Government agencies.

Sawyer said the fact-finding studies undertaken through his department's 42 field offices over the country will seek to line up local business situations "as they appear to businessmen, public officials, civic and labor leaders in various parts of the country."

Arrangements for Sawyer's Boston visit call for a morning meeting with Governors of the New England States and then a session with the New England Council, an organization of business and industrial leaders. He plans tentatively also to visit Providence, R. I., after the Boston meeting.

The Democratic Senators who joined Murray in sponsoring the "antidepression" bill are Elbert Thomas (Utah), Pepper (Fla.), Green (R. I.), Hill (Ala.), Kilgore (W., Va.), Magnuson (Wash.), Taylor (Idaho), Sparkman (Ala.), McGrath (R. I.), Humphrey (Minn.), Kefauver (Tenn.), Neely (W. Va.), Graham (N. C.), Chavez (N. M.), and Gillette (Iowa).

Republican sponsors are Senators Morse (Oreg.) and Langer (N. Dak.).

The bill authorizes financial operations of 15 billion dollars. Of that, not more than four billion dollars could be in actual appropriations. Public debt transactions would be limited to eleven billion dollars.

It calls for such projects as: Providing incentives and assistance to economic expansion through private investments; planning a big backlog of public works, transferring unemployed workers and their families to areas where jobs are available, RFC loans for State and local public works projects, and a study of prices, wages, profits and taxes.

Taft Blasts At Truman attack on the President's budget with a defense of the Eighty-first Congress, which he said "is not a negative Congress although its great merit will be that it has prevented changes which would affect the whole nature of our Government and the character of the American republic."

Defines Program

"Affirmatively," said Taft, "its program is:

"(1) Reduce expenses and avoid a tax increase.

"(2) Adopt a welfare program to give Federal aid to States to help them do a better job in education, health, housing and relief. This whole program would cost about a tenth of the President's compulsory health insurance alone.

"(3) Revise the Taft-Hartley Act to correct those features to which sound criticism has been directed but retain its basic principles of equal collective bargaining and union responsibility. The Senate passed that kind of a bill.

"(4) Maintain our aid to foreign countries, but only to the extent absolutely essential to maintain peace without sacrificing the liberty and the security of the United States."

Senator Taft criticized the President's program point-by-point, opening with "As I listened to President Truman Thursday evening, I got the impression that he had only one solution for every economic difficulty of the Nation—more spending by the Federal Government."

Taft said the President "insisted the Government undertake to go into a business whenever its left-wing economists thought that private industry was not expanding at a sufficiently rapid rate."

In a slap at the Brannan farm subsidy program, the Republican leader said: "The Brannan plan has that complete disregard for the taxpayer which was so evident in Mr. Truman's speech last night, for such subsidies would amount to about six billion dollars a year, if they were on the same scale which is now in force in England in the socialized government.

"Furthermore, the farmers and the consumers who supposedly would be benefited by this plan are the very taxpayers who would have to pay the taxes."

Taft titled his 13-minute talk "dangerous taxation," and its dominant theme was that economic ruin could follow too-high taxation.

Skeletons of Animals With 3 Eyes Reported

Prague, Czechoslovakia, July 15 (U.P.).—Newspapers reported today that Czechoslovak archaeologists had found skeletons of three-eyed animals estimated to be several hundred million years old in a quarry at Letovice in Moravia.

Dispatches said that Prof. Rudolph Kettner of Brno University and his party found skeletons of 20 "stegocephals," extinct salamander-like amphibians. The skeletons were identified as those of small amphibians of the first vertebrate group to come to land from the sea. It was added that they had a third eye in the vertex on top of the head.

Chile Fires 2 Consuls As Alleged Reds

Santiago, Chile, July 15 (AP).—The ministry of foreign affairs said tonight two Chilean consults in New York had been dismissed for having Communist connections.

The ministry identified them as Guillermo Atria and Luis Enrique Delano. They were asked for their resignations, the ministry said, because the government "lost confidence in them in view of proof that they had been or are members of the Communist Party."

Rep. Hays Urges Approval Of Home Rule Legislation interest from the national standpoint, but from the standpoint of the people who live here it is a matter of important and substantial interest."

He said the problems involved in granting home rule should not be a defense against seeking an affirmative decision on "the basic fundamental, simple proposition" of giving District residents a voice in ther own local affairs.

"Belongs to the Nation"

He said refusal of self-government in the shadow of the Capitol would be a denial of "the things we avow to the world."

To a question by Representative Teague (D., Tex.), Hays said that the District belongs in a unique way to the Nation as a whole. In the same way, however, he said "Little Rock belongs to the people of Arkansas, but the State of Arkansas has not deprived the people of Little Rock of the right to govern themselves."

During his questioning of Hays, Representative Abernethy, a consistent foe of the home rule plan, declared that the people of the District would not get real home rule under the bill.

Abernethy quipped that the campaign promises of those elected to the proposed Washington city council "would be worse than ours, they won't even be able to carry them out unless Congress says 'me. too'"

The home rule plan would subject council legislation to veto by Congress or the President—a form of reserve power which Hays indorsed, but which he said would not be "fatal to the principle of home rule."

Hayes was asked by Representative Teague to comment on the Washington Board of Trade's opposition to home rule and the fact that 80 per cent of board members who answered a poll were against the Senate home rule bill.

Cites Jaycee's Poll

Hays said he wouldn't be guided by the poll of any group. He said, "I can see how they would recoil from some of the difficult things in local self-government. They can now carry their message to a few people here. With home rule, they'd have to present the Board of Trade view to the entire electorate. I'm not going to govern my decision by what men working on economic interest decided about government."

Cutler pointed out that Board of Trade poll returns against home rule represented 19/100 of 1 per cent of the people in the District who could vote in the citywide elections. In citywide plebiccites, he said, the voting went 70 per cent for home rule.

Matthews said a Junior Chamber of Commerce poll, answered by 40 per cent of its 850 members, showed 68 per cent for and 32 per cent against "the principles of home rule with national representation;" 24 per cent for and 76 per cent against "the principle of home rule without national representation," and 80 per cent for and 20 per cent against District representation in Congress.

Lucky Barred From Rome

Rome, July 15 (AP).—Dapper Charles (Lucky) Luciano won his freedom today, but Italian police barred him permanently from Rome.

After a week's stay in jail, the former New York vice king was cleared of complicity in a vast, international ring believed smuggling narcotics into New York from Europe.

However, Rome police apparently had seen enough of Luciano, who has been picked up periodically for questioning here ever since he was deported from the United States in 1946.

Oreste Barranco, chief of Rome's mobile police, said Luciano must leave Rome and report to police at his birthplace in Sicily, Lercara Friddi, within four days.

After that Luciano will be at the disposal of police in his home town, a place he detests.

But he won't have to give up his girl friend, Igea Lissoni, a shapely, 28-year-old Milan dancer, who said she would accompany him to Sicily.

War Reporters Banned in Greece

Athens, Greece, July 15 (AP).—Generalissimo Alexander Papagos, in a "confidential" order to Athens newspapers, today banned Greek war correspondents from all northern Greece combat areas. He objected to their dispatches.

It was not immediately learned whether the order also applies to foreign correspondents. The order specifically says it applies to reporters for "local newspapers and periodicals." All Thrace and Macedonia will be blacked out.

UAW Authorizes $10 Million Fund For Wage Strikes

Milwaukee, July 15 (U.P.).—The CIO United Auto Workers Union today authorized a 10 million dollar war chest for fourth-round wage strikes amid mounting indications of another walkout against the Ford Motor Co.

Handed the largest strike fund in the union's history, President Walter P. Reuther told delegates to the UAW national convention that many locals already have voted approval of a Ford strike.

The union's objectives include an unspecified amount in wage boosts, $100-a-month pensions to be financed by industry and health aand welfare benefits.

By an overwhelming vote, the delegates authorized a raise in strike assessments from $1 to $4 a month, for a maximum of three months. If the total assessment were levied, it could yield some 12 million dollars.

Violence By Pickets Closes West Va. Mine

Clarksburg, W. Va., July 15 (AP).—A Harrison County nonunion deep coal mine was closed today after its operator was beaten up by men the sheriff identified as United Mine Workers roving pickets.

The mine was that of Oliverio Brothers at Sycamore Creek.

John Oliverio, 27, a coowner of the mine, was in a Clarksburg hospital with cuts of the face and head, bruises of the arms and legs and chest injuries.

Sheriff Fitzhugh Reynolds said that Oliverio had been injured by pickets who sought to close down the mine in accordance with a directive of United Mine Workers chief John L. Lewis that soft coal mines east of the Mississippi work three days a week only

GOP in House Girds for Fight On Farm Bill

The House Republican leadership yesterday minced no words in rallying GOP forces against the Brannan farm bill.

The bill will be debated next week in the House.

In a special notice to the 171 Republicans in the House, Representative Arends of Illinois, the GOP whip whose job it is to get out the party vote, said:

"Every Republican who is on his feet and breathing, or shows any signs of life and is free from doctor's orders must be accounted for . . . and be ready to vote on this all-important and far-reaching legislative proposal.

"We must defeat the Brannan farm bill. It can be done if all Republicans are on the job."

Meanwhile the National Farmers Union threw its support behind the bill.

James G. Patton, president, told a Senate Agriculture subcommittee the legislation proposed by Secretary of Agriculture Brannan would have two major stabilizing effects:

1. It would put a floor under agricultural income at somewhere between 26 and 27 billions a year.

2. By assuring reasonable prices to American consumers, there would be less pressure toward strikes and industrial conflict, particularly in times of inflation, thus affording a stabilizing economic influence.

Bus Strike May Spread

csco, said the strike would affect Southern Pacific's service in Texas, New Mexico, California, Utah, Nevada, Arizona and Oregon.

"The brotherhood is seeking in all hese States to acquire a third brakeman on freight trains of over 40 cars under certain conditions," Cochran said. "It also seeks a third helper on switching crews in yards having a grade higher than half of one per cent in order to increase safety."

A spokesman for the railroad pointed out that the National Railway Mediation Board has the power to recommend to President Truman that he appoint a fact-finding board to investigate the dispute. This would automatically delay the strike for 60 days.

Fish Lack Blamed On Big Waterfall On Ocean Floor

Plymouth, England, July 15 (AP). The world's most stupendous waterfall has just been discovered by a group of British scientists—at the bottom of the ocean.

Scientists of the Marine Biological Laboratory have been studying samples of ocean water all around Britain's once-rich fishing grounds. They have been trying to find out why they aren't rich any more and haven't been since about 1930.

Then they discovered the waterfall, so tremendous that it stumps the imagination. It drops off of the continental shelf just west of Britain in the Atlantic Ocean. And it gives the scientists a clew about why there aren't any fish around those parts any more.

The heavier cold water, naturaly plunges to the bottom in "stupendous quantities," according to Dr. Leslie Cooper, the man who discovered the waterfall.

And in the rush, all the rich food—the worms and minute organisms on which fish feed—is washed out to great depths beyond the 100-fathom mark.

Fire Rages in Danbury

Danbury, Conn., July 15 (AP).—A general alarm fire ranged through four buildings in the heart of Danbury's business area today, leaving about 20 families homeless and causing damage unofficially estimated at $200,000.

Steel Strike Threat Averted as Firms Bow seeking in vain to repeal, he can declare an emergency should a strike or threat of a strike imperil the Nation's health or safety. Thereupon he could force an 80-day cooling-off period, enforced by court injunction if necessary.

The President retorted to the "Big Three" that the situation did not warrant use of the Taft-Hartley provisions, but was still critical enough for him to propose a voluntary truce. He urged the big steel makers to reconsider their reply.

U. S. Steel turned down the proposal for a second time but offered to cooperate if the fact-finders' powers were limited to collecting the facts—as under the Taft-Hartley Act—and not permitted to make recommendations.

Yesterday morning Ching, acting for the President, talked with Benjamin F. Fairless, president of U. S. Steel, and then sent him Mr. Truman's third telegram declaring there would be no change in the truce plan. Ching said:

"Experience under the Labor-Management Relations Act (Taft-Hartley Act) has demonstrated that fact-finding in major disputes without recommendations usually results in delay, but does not promote settlement . . . Recommendations by fact-finding boards in such disputes are most helpful to the parties in reaching an agreement."

Ching also asked U. S. Steel to give him a yes-or-no answer on accepting the President's proposal, unamended. The Nation's No. 1 steel company accepted a few hours later, approximately 10 hours before the strike deadline. Just before U. S. Steel's acceptance, Bethlehem and Republic wired their agreement to cooperate with the fact-finding boards.

"We do not wish . . . to have our production of steel stopped and our employes deprived of the opportunity to work for the next 60 days under the terms of our present labor contract with attendant hardship to the communities in which they reside," declared U. S. Steel, adding:

"We still believe that the question of whether this Nation is to have a fourth round of (postwar) wage or other increased employment costs at this time should not be determined on the basis of the recommendations of such a board as you propose to appoint."

Commented Bethlehem:

"Our reluctance to approve your proposal . . . is based in part upon our past experience with such boards. We have learned from experience that when a union which has a virtual monopoly in an important industry threatens a Nation-wide strike in support of its demands, boards of inquiry have uniformly recommended the granting of some of those demands regardless of the economic justification for them."

Republic Steel, in accepting the President's plan "with great reluctance," said:

"In our opinion, this perpetuates in our peacetime economy the technique used by powerful labor unions during the war emergency years seeking to establish a national pattern of wage and other costs increases by pressure on industry through the instrumentality of a Federally appointed board empowered to make recommendations."

Philip Murray, president of the CIO and of the Steelworkers, issued cancelling strike plans immediately after United States Steel acceded to the President's proposal. He said he knew of no holdouts among the 61 steel companies whose wage agreements expired last midnight.

Ready to Proceed

"As far as I know, none of our men will be on strike at midnight," he told reporters in Pittsburgh. He added:

"We are ready to proceed with our case before the fact-finding board. We are living in the hope we can accomplish our ends when we present our case to the board."

Although no strike was anticipated last night, there was nonetheless a loss in steel production as a result of the strike threat. Many steel plants had banked their fires and cut down operations to a minimum in preparation for a tieup. In some cases, it was reported, it would take two weeks to get the mills running at capacity again.

The New York stock market, which fell somewhat in expectation of the strike, rallied immediately after the news that the strike had been averted.

Short biographical sketches of the three fact finders follow:

Carroll Roop Daugherty, 50, professor of business economics at Northwestern University since 1946; professor of economies at University of Alabama, 1928-31, and at University of Pittsburgh, 1931-40; professor of economics at Hunter College, 1940-46; economist on labor conditions in the iron and steel industry under the NRA for the Bureau of Business Research, University of Pittsburgh, 1934-35; principal economist for labor productivity studies, Bureau of Labor Statistics, 1936; economic consultant of the National Resources Planning Board, 1940-42; committee on postwar price problems, National Bureau of Economic Research, 1944-46; wage stabilization director, War Labor Board, 1942-45; Lend-Lease director in New Zealand for Foreign Economic Administration, 1945-46.

Judge Samuel Irving Rosenman, 53, member of the New York State Legislature, 1922-26; justice in the New York Supreme Court, 1932-43; special adviser to President Roosevelt, 1943-45.

David L. Cole, 47, lawyer and labor relations expert of Paterson, N. J.; active in labor relations since 1926; counsel for the Silk and Rayon Manufacturers Association and Master Weavers Institute since 1933; chairman of the New Jersey Board of Mediation and public member of the regional War Labor Board, 1943-45; chairman of the War Labor Board steel and iron ore panels, 1944; member of various railway emergency boards.

Czech Tennis Stars Seek Haven in U. S.

Associated Press WIREPHOTOS
Drobny Cernik

Reject Red order

Gstadd, Switzerland, July 15 (U.P.).—Jaroslav Drobny and Vladimir Cernik, two of the world's best known tennis players, turned their backs on their native Czechoslovakia today and prepared to seek admission to the United States as political refugees.

Here for the Swiss national championships, the two defied an order by the Communist-dominated Czech government to return to Prague immediately because of the presence of two Germans and a Spaniard in the tournament.

They said they would continue to play here, then enlist the aid of the United States Lawn Tennis Association and friends abroad in gaining haven in the United States.

(In Washington, State Department officials said any request by Drobny and Cernik to enter the United States would be received "sympathetically." They pointed out that other foreign athletes had been permitted to come here after renouncing their governments.

(In New York, however, President Russell B. Kingman of the International Lawn Tennis Federation told the Associated Press that an application by Drobny and Cernik to remain in the United States "will be a matter strictly for the State Department."

(The United States Lawn Tennis Association, of which Kingman is first vice president, "has nothing to do with politics," he said, and it will not foster any conspiracy against the Czech government to help the players remain here."

(Lawrence A. Baker, president, said the United States Lawn Tennis Association "would only pursue what the State Department believed to be the proper course."

(Both Baker and Kingman pointed out that Drobny and Cernik will be welcomed at the United States doubles championships at Chestnut Hills, N. Y., August 29, "if they come to this country and are properly entered.")

On the first day of his voluntary exile, Cernik reached the semifinals of the Swiss tournament by defeating another political exile, Franco Puncec of Yugoslavia, 6—2, 6—2.

Drobny and Cernik now will face each other in the semifinals. The winner will meet the survivor of the other semifinal between Earl Cochell of San Francisco and Pedro Massip of Spain.

The two Czechs, who have represented their country in Davis Cup play every year since the war, also gained the fourth round in doubles here by beating J. P. A. Linck and A. L. Van Meergeren of Holland, 6—3, 6—2. Cochell and Massip defeated R. Otto and D. Grenus of Switzerland, 6—0, 6—0.

"We are not and never have been Communists or members of the Comunist Party," Drobny said. "People thought so because we were allowed to leave Czechoslovakia, but the fact is that they only let us out because of good publicity."

Cernik has a wife and 3-year-old son in Prague. Drobny leaves his mother and 80-year-old father, manager of a Prague tennis club.

(Dispatches from Prague said the decision of the players to become exiles caught the nation and their families by surprise and would prove embarrassing to the Communist Party.)

Drobny's Father Doesn't Blame Him

Prague, July 15 (U.P.). — The father of Czech Tennis Star Jaroslav Drobny, tears in his eyes, said today that he did not blame his son for deciding to go into exile.

Josef Drobny, a tennis court keeper, said:

"I cannot blame Jaroslav for his decision. He has been attacked frequently in the newspapers here, and has been deprived of every opportunity to play against outstanding foreigners here.

"My wife doesn't know anything about this. She is in the country, and planned to return on Monday when Jaroslav was due back from Switzerland. How am I going to tell her?"

USIS Ordered To Close Up in 2 China Cities

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Chinese Communist officials yesterday ordered the closing of United States Information Service offices at Shanghai and Hankow.

Almost identical instructions to cease all functions were given orally to USIS representatives in those two cities, the State Department reported.

According to brief reports received by the department, no specific reason for the action was given by Communist authorities except for general reference to the existing military situation.

Officials here declined to comment on the action until further information is available.

The Communist orders, issued in both instances through the Communist Foreign Affairs Bureau, were the strongest anti-United States measure yet taken in the Shanghai-Hankow area.

Last week, United States Vice Consul William M. Olive was held in a Shanghai prison for three days after a minor traffic dispute, and was "brutally beaten," according to Consul General John Cabot.

Anxiety aroused by such treatment is bringing evacuation pleas from Americans still in Shanghai.

A State Department spokesman yesterday described these requests as "a growing problem," and officials here are considering sending of a United States evacuation ship to Shanghai.

1400 in Shanghai

The Associated Press reported yesterday from Shanghai that there are 1400 Americans there, and a third of them wish to leave. All previously had an opportunity to leave the city before it was occupied by the Communists in May. Air and ship lines that now have access to Communist ports have long waiting lists.

J. Leighton Stuart, American Ambassador to China, is expected to leave Nanking in about a week to come here for conferences, while Cabot, who has been ordered transferred to another post, may come here with Stuart.

The various USIS offices in China, which have been operating there since World War II, are established as part of the consular functions and are believed to have been highly effective in circulating information about the United States.

Previous interference with USIS operations in China have been limited to the closing of the Mukden consulate by Communist order last November, and an order issued last winter to Peiping newspapers, forbidding use of USIS news services.

Functions in China

The USIS functions in China provide library and related exhibit and forum activities; coordination of exchange of persons program; showings of documentary films; local arrangements for Voice of America programs, including rebroadcasts, and a comparatively extensive news operation.

The news services include the supplying of United States news in English and Chinese, news photographs and plastic plates for reproducing them, special articles, etc.

Before the Communist occupation of Shanghai, the USIS office there was service headquarters for all USIS operations in China. The Shanghai office now has 60 to 70 employes, including six Americans, and there are 11 persons in the Hankow office, two of them American, officials here said.

Talks to End Tieup at Docks Stall in London

London, July 15 (AP).—Negotiations to end London's crippling 19-day dock strike stalled temporarily tonight.

More troops were alerted to help the 6000 soldiers, sailors and Marines assigned to loading and unloading cargoes along the Thames waterfront.

Labor Ministry negotiations met leaders of two unions representing the 14,419 idle stevedores today. The unionists asked the Ministry to intervene in a Canadian seamen's strike which led the London stoppage when English stevedores boycotted two Canadian ships waiting to be unloaded.

The Ministry refused to enter the Canadian dispute. A scheduled meeting between union leaders and Ministry negotiations was called off.

Labor Minister George Isaacs told Commons he was "greatly dissatified" with the meetings with union leaders. He said the strike leaders, accused by other Government Ministers of being dominated by Communists, failed to act with a sense of responsibility toward their unions and the nation.

The troops were sent to the dock area earlier this week after King George VI proclaimed a state of national emergency.

July 17, 1936, accused Vatican authorites of "Holding the Sign of the Cross over the bloody dictatorship of Franco" and supporting nazism and fascism. He did not mention the Vatican decree.

Justice Minister Cepica is a son-in-law of President Klement Gottwald and is secretary general of the central action committee.

Denounces Archbishop

In his speech tonight he called the Vatican "the eternal enemy" of plotting against the state and the high Catholic clergy generally of "treacherous connection with foreign enemies."

He accused Archbishop Beran of carrying on the work of Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty of Hungary, now under a life prison sentence, in support of "reactionary forces."

"The high clergy led by Beran never did sincerely support the constructive efforts of our people," Cepica said. "But when a chance of joining its enemies both at home and abroad occurred, there was no lack of eagerness and enthusiasm . . ."

He said that as early as 1945 a representative of the Papal Nunciate took part in talks of Catholic leaders here.

Reds Set Up 2 Check Points On Autobahn

Michendorf, Germany, July 15 (U.P.).—Soviet authorities today established two new checkpoints on the autobahn between Berlin and the West to inspect the papers of Allied travelers and reportedly to seize western marks being carried by Germans.

The two new roadblocks were set up last night—one near this Soviet-zone town, 20 miles east of Berlin, and another in the Soviet zone 20 miles west of the border-crossing station at Helmstedt.

All German trucks and cars were stopped and searched by guards at the checkpoints, while Allied travelers were flagged down and required to show their papers.

Angry Germans said Soviet-zone German police were taking away all of their western marks—the official currency of West Germany and Western Berlin, which has been banned in Soviet-held territory.

German police at the Berlin end of the superhighway said, however, that only some of the truck drivers who reported to them had been forced to surrender Western money.

They said East-zone police asked the drivers for their papers. In cases where the drivers handed over their wallets, the policemen confiscated any of the illegal currency they found, the guards said.

A British transport official said that the Russians were technically within their rights in seizing the banned money.

"The measure does not appear to constitute a violation of the New York agreement (ending the Berlin blockade)," the official said.

Prague Radio Terms Net Stars Traitors

Prague, Czechoslovakia, July 15 (AP).—The official Prague radio tonight accused the nation's two top tennis stars, Jaroslav Drobny and Vladimir Cernik, of "treachery" because they announced in Switzerland that they were going into exile.

The Communist mouthpiece broadcast a statement from Sokol, the national sports organization, sharply criticizing the pair and claiming they had gone over "to the pay of capitalist entrepreneura."

Chinese Outline Plans For Rally Against Reds

Canton, July 15 (U.P.).—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek met today with top-ranking members of the Chinese Nationalist government forces against the Communist drive into South and West China.

It was understood the talks centered around the proposed functions of the emergency committee—the Nationalist supreme council—which will direct the crumbling fortunes of the government.

Chiang, who retired from the presidency last January, will serve as chairman of the committee, with Acting President Li Tsung-jen as vice chairman.

Chiang was reported to have told an informal gathering of Kuomintang (government) party members earlier in the day he was confident that if party unity was maintained, the Nationalists would ultimately defeat the Communists.

FBI Investigating 28 Alien U. N. Employes

The FBI is investigating at least 28 aliens attached to United Nations headquarters in New York to see if they are spying on the United States, Attorney General Clark disclosed yesterday.

He said investigations are under way concerning 685 aliens and about 4 per cent of the subjects are connected with the U. N.

In testimony before a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee, he also lifted the curtain on official knowledge of foreign spying to disclose that:

A military attache from an Iron Curtain country arrived here after 1945 with "instructions to organize a military intelligence network in the United States." Clark said the attache apparently failed and left before this year.

An Iron Curtain consulate employe was assigned to developing the Communist Party among national groups, and is suspected of submitting data through his embassy.

A couple active in the American-Russian Institute, the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee, and other groups are reported to be "contacts" between an Iron Curtain consulate and the Communist Party.

A United Nations employe is reported to be a contact of a suspected agent of an Iron Curtain country; another U. N. worker is suspected of working for the intelligence service of a Communist nation.

The subcommittee is investigating subversive aliens in the United States before acting on legislation to keep them out of the country or speed their deportation.

Clark would not name any names. And he refused on security grounds to say whether he knows of any Communist spy rings employing aliens who entered this country as diplomats or employes of the U. N.

Clark emphasized that the FBI investigations of U. N. employes does not mean to imply the aliens are "actively engaged" in spying. He said available information "requires these investigations and they are in progress."

Clark said a certain newspaper published in this country reportedly is subsidized by an Iron Curtain country. The publisher supposedly maintains close contact with diplomatic officials of the Iron Curtain nation and prints news favorable to it, he said.

"Such cases as the so-called Canadian espionage case, the case of Nocolai Redin who was tried in Seattle in 1946, and others, indicate that aliens attached to official establishments may be active in intelligence activities or in directing such activities," Clark said.

Cape St. Claire has one of the finest and safest beaches on Chesapeake Bay, which insures your kiddies strong, healthy bodies and clear, active minds by providing the perfect place to obtain summer sunshine. Here the salt breezes temper the air, making it cool and delightful, so that you and the kiddies can spend carefree days in fun and frolic.

Our guests are amazed when first they see Cape St. Claire with its wide, white sandy beach, the sapphire blue Chesapeake, shady groves to the water's edge, great ocean ships just off shore, white winged yachts dipping and curtsying nearby, motor craft landing pleasure parties, fishing, boating, swimming—all manner of sport in an ideal setting.

It is impossible to describe the charm of Cape St. Claire and equally impossible not to feel it. It is a charm compounded of so many elements that the loveliness of a great stretch of shimmering water, clear sunshine, invigorating air and the glorious blue of the sky are soothing to the soul.

Cape St. Claire invites you to drive down and admire its large, shaded area, to enjoy its pungent wood-scent, take deep draughts of invigorating salt air and see for yourself how Cape St. Claire meets your need. It is hard to realize there is such a restful haven so near to Washington where one feels miles away from care and business and which may be reached by a short, delightful drive over a scenic and well paved highway.

Miller Welcomes State Labor Vote

Richmond, Va., July 15 (AP).—Francis Pickens Miller, candidate for governor in the Democratic primary, tonight said he welcomed "the public support of Virginia labor," but rejected "outside interference" in Virginia affairs.

Miller turned his attention to labor support in an address to the Fort Mosby Social and Political Club here.

It was an indirect answer to what he described as "the appeal to class prejudice" that "continues to mar this campaign." Miller said the appeal had been used by Candidate John S. Battle, Senator Byrd and Republican Henry A. Wise.

He 'Abhors' Methods

Miller said tonight, "I abhor" their methods.

[Byrd, speaking at Harrisonburg last Saturday, launched the attack on Miller, describing him as a "CIO candidate" supported by "outside labor interests." Similar charges were made by Representative Howard W. Smith of the Eighth Virginia District Thursday at Culpeper and by Wise. Byrd Smith, and Wise have indorsed Battle.

[Miller, in a reply to Byrd last Sunday, said that Byrd was "conjuring up ghosts." He rejected the "CIO" tag and said he had not received any campaign contributions from any labor group. He added that he would not take any such contribution.]

Tonight, Miller said:

"I am in accord with the principle that there should be no outside interference with our political affairs and solemnly promise the people of Virginia that my administration will be free from such interference. This cannot be said of the present administration."

He added:

"I am proud to have the support of so many of the leading farmers of the State. I am proud to have the support of some of Virginia's most distinguished women led by Miss Meta Glass. I am proud to have the support of veterans.

"All in Great Crusade"

"I am proud to have the support of members of every labor organization in Virginia, whether they belong to the Railroad Brotherhoods, the CIO, the AFL, or the United Mine Workers. I am proud to have the support of clergymen, of teachers, of business men, of professional men, of office men, of all who are enlisting in this great crusade.

"Women have issued statements in support of my candidacy. Farmers have issued statements. The Byrd machine talks and acts as if there was something sinister about workingmen issuing political statements or expressing their political opinions publicly.

"Though Senator Byrd seems unaware of that fact, workingmen are free Virginians, as free as he is. I welcome the public support of Virginia labor, organized or unorganized, just as I welcome the public support of all other Virginians who want to set Virginia free.

"Freedom of speech for all is the essence of our political system. In Virginia the dignity of each individual is recognized as is his freedom to choose for whom he will vote on August 2 without intimidation, coercion or secret promise of any kind."

In another development Delegate Robert Whitehead of Nelson County called Wise's plea for Republicans to support Battle "the most brazen political proposal ever made in our time."

Whitehead spoke over Station WRVA in behalf of Miller.

"In the last two days," Whitehead said, "the Democrats of Virginia have witnessed a political spectacle as sorry and subversive of political honor as ever came before the eyes of the people of Virginia.

"It is the politically dishonorable and dishonest effort made by that political hybrid, Henry A. Wise, a pro-Byrd Republican, to have the straight-line Republicans boycott their own primary this year and enter our primary and vote for Senator John S. Battle for Governor."

San Francisco, July 15 (U.P.).—Kirsten Flagstad, Norwegian soprano, was barred from singing in the War Memorial Opera House this fall and the San Francisco Opera Company said today its whole season may be canceled.

The singer has been the center of controversy because her husband was a member of the Norwegian Quisling Party which collaborated with the Nazis.

Arnold Lieutenant Implies He'll Take Up Byrd Challenge

By Richard Morris
Post Reporter

Richmond, Va., July 15.—Remmie L. Arnold's campaign manager, Robert M. Hazelwood, said today he will reveal "if necessary" the names of those who offered Arnold the Senate seat of Harry F. Byrd if he would quit the gubernatorial race.

In Washington, Byrd challenged the Arnold forces to do just that, describing the supposed proposal as "fantastic."

"I hope he (Arnold) will enlighten the people of Virginia," said Byrd, "giving names and all details."

Later, in a speech at Petersburg, Arnold said Governor Tuck asked him not to run before he entered the race. Arnold did not say, however, that Tuck had extended any job offer.

Hazelwood's statement today was made to The Washington Post after Arnold stood firm on his surprise allegation Wednesday that choice jobs have been extended to him by "influential Byrd men" to get his support for State Senator John S. Battle.

"If any parties concerned in the overtures make it necessary, I am prepared to go into more detail on the matter," Hazelwood said.

Arnold has charged to a Fredericksburg audience that "the pressure is so great to get me out of the race for Governor that I have even been offered Harry Byrd's seat in the Senate."

Hazelwood said the offer came about during an informal luncheon meeting with several highly regarded "organization" Democrats.

Hazelwood, vice president and general manager of the Atlantic Rural Exposition here, said he would prefer to withhold their names if possible because they are his friends, personally and professionally, but would disclose them if called on to do so.

Arnold affirmed today that he was made the "promises" and added: "I shall not withdraw the statement I have made in connection with them."

"I have been offered the lieutenant governorship on a silver platter and Hazelwood has been approached on several occasions with other offers," Arnold said.

Byrd, when questioned in Washington about Arnold's statement, had this to say:

"As I happen to occupy the Senatorial seat to be traded off, should Mr. Arnold accept the deal, I have a peculiar interest in knowing the names of those who have made this fantastic proposal, and upon what basis they have the power to speak for the voters of Virginia.

"I hope he will enlighten the people of Virginia, giving names and all details."

Edwards Says Byrd Must Be Desperate

Isle of Wight Courthouse, Va., July 15 (AP).—Horace H. Edwards told his friends and neighbors at a homecoming rally today that Senator Byrd's indorsement of John S. Battle for Governor was "a move of desperation."

It was aimed, Edwards said, at the thousands of middle-of-the-roaders who prefer him as their candidate.

Thousands of Virginians are behind his candidacy, Edwards said, because they don't like the ultra-conservative views represented by Battle, nor do they care for those "radical elements" which are behind the candidacy of Francis P. Miller.

Edwards said he didn't believe Virginia needed any revolutionary charge in government. But the government it has now, he added, needs to be renovated and improved and he proposes to do just that.

Edwards spoke of Battle's proposal to finance school improvements out of surplus funds as "the pot of gold they say is hidden around the Capitol somewhere." He said the surplus of 15 million dollars or so would be far from enough to carry out the candidates' pledges when school construction needs alone in the State have been estimated at nearly 400 million dollars in the next 10 years.

The former Richmond mayor, who was born here at Isle of Wight 46 years ago, devoted most of his fire to Battle.

He cited Battle's position as chairman of the State Senate Finance Committee, which passes on money legislation, and declared:

"If Senator Battle had the same interest (in schools) then as he has now and fought for the needs of the State, he wouldn't be going about promising the things he has turned a deaf ear to in the past."

Battle Cites Reforms In Front Royal Talk

Front Royal, Va., July 15 (AP).—State Senator John S. Battle, candidate for Governor in the Democratic primary, tonight cited Virginia's progress in penal reforms, school improvements and health betterments in which he played a part.

Speaking to a rally here, Battle said he took "greatest pride" in having sponsored "the passage of the parole system in Virginia" and legislation "to abolish the iniquitous fee system for compensating sheriffs on the savings from the food of the prisoners.

He said the probation-parole system has "kept out of jail many hundreds of young men."

"In the last session I took great satisfaction when we were able to increase the appropriation for the public school system to the extent of 15 million dollars for the biennium. We were able to appropriate $2,500,000 to match Federal funds for the construction of hospitals in the Commonwealth under the Hill-Burton Act. . . .

"On schools, I don't think we have been quite as backward as some would lead us to believe."

Washington Socialite Slain in Texas

News of the slaying at Midland, Tex., of Homer A. Stillwell, 29, member of a family prominent in Washington society, reached friends here yesterday.

The slaying took place in a thunderstorm on the night of July 7.

Sheriff Ed Darnell of Midland County told The Washington Post by telephone yesterday that Stillwell was knocked in the head, probably with a revolver butt. Then he was shot twice in the chest and left dead.

Fired at Year Ago

Sheriff Darnell said that more than a year ago, Stillwell was fired at through a window where he lived but the bullet struck a companion, Richard Ericson, in the eye.

Sheriff Darnell said a hunt by his department, Midland police, and Texas Rangers, with laboratory aid from the FBI, has turned up no active clews. He said two bullets were recovered after Stillwell was killed, and footprints near the body indicated only one man did the killing.

For about two years, Stillwell has been employed by the Stanolind Oil Co., first as an oil lease man and for the past eight months, inside the company's Midland office as a land man.

"We've checked on every deal he's made since he's been in Texas," the sheriff said, "and every other possible contact we can establish. He hadn't an enemy that we can find. He was a quiet, pleasant man."

Married Last November

Stillwell's records in the personnel division of Capital Airlines here, where he worked in 1946, have been sent to Texas.

Stillwell married last November. He lived in Midland with his wife, Helen, and her 5-year-old daughter by a previous marriage. They were all at home the night of the shooting.

The victim enlisted as a private in World War II and was discharged as a captain with decorations for bravery in Italy. After leaving Capital Airlines, he attended George Washington University briefly, then went to Texas.

His father, Wellesley Stillwell, who now lives at Lake Geneva, Wis., was the son of a wealthy Chicagoan. Wellesley Stillwell once owned the historic Wye Hall estate on Chesapeake Island. Stillwell's mother later divorced his father and married the former Argentine Ambassador to the United States, Felipe de Espil. The de Espils now live in Argentina.

Stillwell's sister, formerly married to Randall H. Hagner, jr., Washington real estate man, now is Mrs. Hugh Leighton of Tarrytown, N. Y.

Glib Thief Gets $600 Loot In Maryland U. Dormitories

A glib thief with a Southern drawl yesterday visited several University of Maryland dormitories in College Park as students slept and made off with about $600 in cash and a hairdressing set worth $225.

Chief Daniel B. Wiseman of the campus police, who disclosed the thefts, said that more than 40 students had filed complaints.

E. Scott Moore, 23, a pre-law student, said he was awakened at 6:15 a. m. in his room at the Phi Sigma Kappa Fraternity House, 4302 Knox rd., College Park, by a man who was thumbing through his billfold.

The man, according to Moore, said, in a Southern accent, "I'm looking for Paul Smith. He ain't in here is he? I didn't want to wake you up. I was just looking to see if I could find some identification."

"That's a helluva way to find it," Moore retorted. The man then left A minute later, an arm reached through the partly-open door and took the wallet.

Moore chased the thief through the fraternity house to the back door, but stopped there because he had no clothes on. The man escaped.

The hairdressing set, police said, belonged to Joseph McCune of Hagerstown. A professional hairdresser, he is taking a four-week course in cosmetology.

Zany Builders Win Small Fry

By Richard L. Coe

ABOUT THE TOWN: The small fry crowding into the Capitol to see "The Wizard of Oz," that happy fantasy filmed 10 years ago, also are chortling over a live entertainment of exceptional vintage . . . This is that house-building act, "Willie, West and McGinty," one of the most reliable comic acts in vaudeville and one of the very few in pantomime . . . That's the trade-name of the act, formed 35 years ago by Willie West, sr., who died only six weeks ago . . . Oldtimer of the act is Ted McGinty, the dazed chap who wanders in and out of the Chic Sales building . . . Ted joined Willie the First a few years after the act got underway; the third member of the trio is now Jerry Gibbons, the heavy-set fellow who's only been around a few years . . . Willie West, jr., inherited his father's ownership, has been in the act 19 years, with several out during the war, after which dad retired permanently . . . The long history of this topflight turn is so tangled even its members admit it's not only beyond the capabilities of a heat-pressured columnist but, sometimes, their own . . . They can play anywhere, in any language, have lost track of how many times they've fouled up their house-building . . . Just back from a tour in England—where Britisher West originally formed it—the trio is amused at the chuckles their shenanigans are getting from youngsters who've come primarily to see a movie that came out when they were teething . . . Their recent run at New York's Palace convinced them that this fall will see a strong vaudeville comeback . . . (And by vaudeville, this department doesn't mean performers who stick stolidly by a mike or black velvet drapes that are a psychological hurdle to any performer) . . . They call New Hampshire home and after a sweltering week here they'll be glad to get back to the cool White Mountains.

W. C. FIELDS fans will be served by the Little when, on the twenty-seventh, the engaging boite revives two of his comedies, "The Bank Dick" and "My Little Chickadee," the latter being the Western spoof he made with Mae West . . . This should be one of the better bills of the summer and don't think that Robert Taylor's (not the Stanwyck's husband) swell series about Fields in the Saturday Evening Post hasn't had its effect.

BEN STROUSE, general manager of WWDC, is almost delighted to have his well-laid plans for the Miss Washington 1949 contest upset . . . Seems there have been so many contestants, 81, that the first preliminary judging has been postponed from Monday night to Wednesday . . . The finals still will be at the Capitol on Monday, August 8, with the winner going on to represent the voteless District at the Atlantic City shindig in September.

"ELECTRA" will be acted Wednesday night by Carolyn Hill Stewart on Howard University's open-air stage before the steps of Douglass Hall on the university campus . . . Poet-Playwright Owen Dodson is directing Hugo von Hofmannsthal's version of the Greek tragedy, with Juanita S. Tolson as Clytemnestra.

TWO MORE performances are set for the Meridian Hill's current tenant, "The Importance of Being Earnest," which has been dogged by rain or threats thereof all week . . . This is the obvious peril of an open-air theater and it seems a pity that an effort to present live actors near the heart of the city must be so plagued . . . It reminds me of London's open-air Regent's Park, where Shakespeare is the summer fare . . . Six weeks ago this familiar haunt bought itself a canvas canopy, after threatening to so avert rain threats for years . . . Perversely, it hasn't rained since . . . Estelle Winwood and John Buckmaster play the Wilde comedy tonight and Sunday, then head for Saratoga, where they open the next evening.

HOWARD SOUTHGATE, author-director of "Alexandria, Thy Sons," which also completes its run Sunday night, has written and directed over 50 such historic pageants, ranging from Richmond to New Mexico . . . A member of New York's Provincetown Theater in the O'Neill days, Southgate is now on loan from the Navy Department to do the Alexandria bicentennial pageant.

TO ORANGELO RATTO, manager of the Palace Theater, the sympathy of the Washington theater community has been extended with sincere feeling . . . All in the Capital's show world have long delighted in the supremely happy marriage of Angie and his late wife, Louise . . . They were an inseparable couple and we all share in Angie's loss.

PYRAMID CLUB—ELEPHANT STYLE: Pyramid Clubs are nothing new to elephants, as Walt Disney points out in "Dumbo," now sharing the Keith screen with another Disney comedy, "Saludos Amigos."

200 See Port Tobacco Players Act Famed Drama in La Plata

By Lee Grove
Post Reporter

La Plata, Md., July 15.—A comedy that entertained theatergoers 200 years ago entertained members of another generation here tonight.

The play is "The Clandestine Marriage," presented by the Port Tobacco Players for the "entertainment of the gentry of southern Maryland and vicinity" at Brent Hall here.

The play by George Colman, the elder, and David Garrick, director and actor at the famous old London Drury Lane Theater, will be repeated at 8:30 p. m. Saturday.

200 Attend Performance

More than 200 persons attended tonight's performance, including a number of persons from beautiful Port Tobacco, the Seventeenth Century "ghost town" three miles west of La Plata that is now in process of restoration. Theater goers were ushered to their seats by a bevy of hostesses in cap and kerchief to the strains of violin and piano music.

Tonight's performance was something of contrast—as a concession to safety the footlights were electric lights instead of candles.

The colorfully costumed production was directed by Mrs. John Hanson Mitchell, assisted by Mrs. Francis Donohue, assistant director.

Miss Margaret W. Brown is production chairman. The play is the Port Tobacco Players' first production.

The Colman-Garrick play, written at a time when sentimental comedy was very much in vogue, has some of the earmarks of a modern French farce.

First Produced in 1766

"The Clandestine Marriage" was first produced in London in 1766.

In the play, Lovewell, clerk in the office of a wealthy London merchant, Mr. Sterling, has secretly married Sterling's young daughter, Fanny, but is afraid to tell his father-in-law.

The socially ambitious father decides to marry his eldest daughter to Sir John Melvil, nephew of Lord Ogleby, who sees it as a good match financially. When Sir John suddenly decides he wants to marry Fanny, all sorts of complications ensue. Before the truth comes out, the angry father is appeased and love triumphs.

The part of Fanny is played by Mrs. Russell Levering with appropriate maidenly sentiment. Playing opposite her as Lovewell is her husband, in real life Russell Levering. Alfred Mudd plays the role of Sir John Melvil with the simperimgs appropriate to an eighteenth century fop. George Barnes, as Lord Ogleby, gouty old roue, almost stole the show. Others in the cast included:

Frank Bolton, Pat Moure, Howard Alger, Harris Matthews, Mrs. Robert Barbour, Mrs. Edward Middleton, Betty Fort, Theresa McDonagh and William H. Winstead.

The Port Tobacco Players are sponsored by the Society for the Restoration of Port Tobacco.

Arlington Seniors To Attend Conference

Fifteen Washington-Lee High School seniors, chosen as student leaders, will leave Sunday for the American Legion-sponsored Girls and Boys State conference in Blacksburg, Va.

'Hex' Slayer Dies in Noose Thrice Evaded

Walla Walla, Wash., July 15 (U.P.). Jake Bird, 47-year-old Negro ax-murderer who evaded execution three times, was finally hanged early today despite a "hex" he claimed to have cast on officials connected with his trial.

He was sentenced to die almost two years ago for slaying Mrs. Bertha Kludt of Tacoma, Wash., in a robbery. He also was charged with killing her daughter.

As one of his devious maneuvers to delay or escape death, the Negro had confessed that he committed or participated in 29 other murders. The Supreme Court yesterday had rejected, for the third time, his appeal for a review of his case.

Officials found evidence tending to prove that he really had been connected with at least 11 of the crimes.

Bird dropped to his death on the gallows at Walla Walla State prison at exactly six minutes after midnight, while his last statement was being read.

Court Denies Meyers Writ For Freedom

Bennett E. Meyers, former major general, was denied a writ of habeas corpus by the Alexandria Federal Court yesterday on the technical ground that he had sought remedy in the wrong court.

The former Air Forces officer had sought the writ to obtain his release from the District Reformatory at Lorton, Va., where he is serving 20 months to five years for inducing a witness to lie to a Senate subcommittee.

Judge Albert V. Bryan ruled that Meyers should instead seek his release from the District Court here where he was tried last year.

A motion to set aside the verdict would be the proper action, Judge Bryan indicated.

Attorney Russell Hardy of Washington, representing Meyers, protested that such action would take too long a time.

Meyers based his request for another court hearing on the contention that the committee did not have a legal quorum present when Bleriot Lamarre lied about Meyer's secret wartime business connections. His lawyers cited the case of Harold Christoffel, former union leader who was freed last month by the Supreme Court for that reason.

Prichard Plans Fraud Appeal; Retrial Denied

Lexington, Ky., July 15 (AP).—Edward F. Prichard, jr., 34, convicted in Federal Court here yesterday for conspiring to vote 254 forged ballots in the Bourbon County election last fall, will appeal the decision.

Prichard was denied a new trial when motion was made today before Judge H. Church Ford.

His counsel announced immediately the appeal would be made.

The judge, who sentenced Prichard to serve two years in Federal prison, granted him $5000 bond pending outcome of the appeal, and he was released after spending the night in Fayette County jail.

A. E. Funk, jr., 27, Prichard's law partner and codefendant in the trial, was acquitted by the jury that convicted Prichard.

Prichard formerly was connected with numerous Government agencies and officials in Washington.

'Y' Group Plans Fair

The Veterans Memorial YMCA will hold its second annual fair Friday and Saturday, July 22 and 23, on the "Y" lots at S. 22d st. off Glebe rd., Arlington. Pony rides, clowns and a county fair atmosphere are planned.

TRY IT A BOTTLE-CAP TIN TAMBOURINE

No rhythm band would be complete without a tambourine, for it adds gay jingling rhythm to any music! Down in the Latin American countries where dancing is lively, children grow up keeping time to the tambourine.

For your dancing and musical parties try to find an old pin pan that Mother can spare. With a nail, punch six or eight holes evenly spaced around the edge. Flatten out 18 to 24 bottle caps, remove the corks, and punch a hole in the center of each disc.

Lace with cord, knotted around each disc (step 4) and tie the sets of three discs to the holes in the edge of the pan. Paint a design in the center, tie a bow on the edge, and whirl away dancing and tapping your tambourine.

Metropolitan Planning

Coordinated development of the Washington area has received a needed boost in the Senate District Committee bill to revamp and expand the authority of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission. For purposes of the Federal and District governments, Arlington and Montgomery counties are as much a part of metropolitan Washington as is the District Building. It is high time that reality was recognized in the law by extending the domain of the planning commission, as the bill proposes, to a 50-mile radius.

Under the new setup the nine-member NCPPC would be reconstituted as the National Capital Planning Commission. It would have 15 members, including one each from Virginia and Maryland, and would have jurisdiction over Federal and District projects in suburban areas as well as in Washington proper. No change would be made in the present advisory relationship between the planning commission and the local planning bodies of adjacent communities. A case can be made, we think, for broadening the public representation from the District, though we are in accord with the Senate Committee's insistence that District government projects in outlying areas should be cleared by the planning commission. If the bill is approved, as we hope it will be, the next job of the planning commission ought to be to end its closed-door sessions and get closer to the people of the area in which it operates.

Indonesian Policy

Suppose, by some wild chance, that the fears of the New York Herald Tribune's Mrs. Brandon were well founded, and that the KLM crash in India, which cost the lives of 13 American reporters, resulted from sabotage by Indonesian Republicans—then the saboteurs certainly threw a boomerang. For the tragedy has served to focus attention on the posthumous dispatches of the lamented correspondents, some of whom seem to have been anti-Republican. However, the tragedy has also attached special interest to the reports of William R. Mathews, the astute and deeply experienced editor of the Tucson Daily Star, who, by a lucky fate over which we rejoice, decided at the last minute not to take the plane. For Mathews, in his air-mailed dispatch of July 3, published in the Evening Star, amply demonstrates his sobriety and sagacity.

Mr. Mathews first pays high tribute to the intercessory work of Merle Cochran, United States member of the U. N. Commission, but calls attention to the difficulties that Australian "bluster" have placed in his way. This "bluster" has apparently been the standard Australian technique in this difficulty—a technique based upon an ambition for influence in Pacific Asia not founded on contribution. The burden of Mr. Mathews' plea is for a line of policy which is not only consistent but which also serves the American interest rather than the interest of either party in the Indonesian conflict. For this we have been contending all along. The United States cannot and should not play second fiddle either to the purblind Batavia Dutch, the Indonesian irresponsibles, or the Australian weight-throwers.

No people are ever "ready" for independence, especially when they have just come out of an ordeal by fire and destruction; yet American policy cannot renege on liberty in Indonesia. Neither can the United States permit the Indonesians to think that liberty is possible without order, or that this country will support them in license. A vast problem, now that the Dutch and the Indonesians have come to an agreement through Mr. Cochran's good offices, is presented to the Indonesians, and it will be a good thing all-around to help, even guide, them to solve it. Mr. Mathews is an excellent guide on how to do it, and it is a relief to turn from the fantasy on sabotage (which KLM itself refuses to entertain) to his reports.

Chance For Statesmen

The buck has been passed back to the Hawaiian Legislature for a solution to the dock strike that has blockaded the Territory for 2½ months. The Federal Government's part in this affair has been somewhat ignoble, for Hawaii's welfare is a Federal concern and plainly the President has or could easily obtain powers to cope with the strike. Nevertheless, it is apparent that Mr. Truman does not intend to act, and the important thing now is for the Hawaiian Legislature to measure up to its responsibility in the emergency.

Gov. Ingram M. Stainback plans to call a special session of the Legislature after an interim committee has drafted legislation. The kind of legislation proposed is of the utmost significance. With fraying tempers, the temptation will be to enact a vindictive law or become snarled in endless debate. Either result would be unfortunate. What is needed is a recognition that the public interest must be protected. There would be little point in a new fact-finding board alone; clearly the Governor ought to be granted seizure and injunctive authority to reopen Hawaii's ports immediately while union-management differences are ironed out. By dealing calmly but firmly with the crisis on its doorstep, the Legislature can demonstrate Hawaii's maturity for statehood.

Rip Van Winkles

The Taft-Flanders resolution supplies fuel for enough resentment in western Europe to make the onlooker aghast. It calls upon the President to extend the Monroe Doctrine across the Atlantic, presumably as an alternative to the North Atlantic Security Pact.

By this action the two Senators—of whom Mr. Taft is apparently actuated by a desire to soften the appearance of isolationism left by his anti-pact stand—advertise themselves as having been asleep for a whole generation. The fact is that there is no Monroe Doctrine left to extend. At successive Pan American conferences the doctrine has been transformed into a regional security pact which came to flowering two years ago at Rio and which is the model of the North Atlantic Security Pact. To gain some measure of the lack of relevance of the Taft-Flanders move, you would have to think of a proposal to extend the Articles of Confederation to the Territory of Hawaii.

Aside from the effects of the motion upon western Europe, Senators Taft and Flanders have no doubt given deep offense to the Latin neighbors. Originally the Monroe Doctrine was a unilateral declaration telling the Europeans to keep what the late Mayor Thompson of Chicago would have called their snouts out of this continent. On its other face the doctrine put an umbrella of security over the Latin Americans. But the Latins did not take kindly to Uncle Sam in the role of paterfamilias. To them the doctrine appeared to be a gratuitous way of saying they could not look after themselves. Eventually the United States came to appreciate the Latin attitude. So the aim of statesmanship beginning in President Wilson's time was to try to Pan Americanize the doctrine, that is to say, to develop a system which would make the job of protecting the continent a common responsibility. Little was done, however, till the aim took form in the policy of the Good Neighbor. Perhaps Secretary Hull did more than any single man to hasten the achievement of joint responsibility, though the end-product, viz, the Rio Pact, occurred after he had quit the Secretaryship.

All this history is ignored in the Taft-Flanders resolution. It is the sort of forgetfulness that is likely to make our Latin neighbors wince. After all, the Monroe Doctrine implied that they were under-age, and had to be looked after. Now they are grown-up, and recognized as such in successive agreements putting all the Americas on an equal footing of responsibility for keeping peace in the family, as well as for defending the continent against outside encroachment. Yet nobody seems to have raised a voice in the Senate to remind Senators Taft and Flanders that the Monroe Doctrine is dead.

If the Latins will feel offended, how about the western Europeans? Are they not regarded as adult enough to join with the United States in the common defense? The effect of the Taft-Flanders resolution is to declare them to be satellites, precisely as the Latins felt prior to the Rio Pact. The Atlantic Pact as the corollary of the Rio Pact provides for allies, not satellites, and the American security in the North Atlantic area is dependent upon the building up of self-reliant allies.

Steel Truce

For the time being it appears that the threatened strike which would have idled more than half the Nation's steel productive capacity has been averted by the belated decision of the big steel companies to declare a truce to hostilities while a fact-finding board appointed by the President investigates the issues and prepares recommendations for a settlement of the dispute. The original decision of these companies to risk prostration of a basic industry rather than submit to even the mild coercion imposed on them by Government-sponsored recommendations that they are free to reject was extremely shortsighted. Happily the change of policy is an acknowledgment of error which strengthens the hope that the leaders of the steel industry will make a determined effort to reach a peaceful settlement of their dispute with the union before expiration of the truce.

The President's Council of Economic Advisers said in its midyear review of the economic situation that industry-wide strikes "would not merely reduce the spending ability of the directly affected workers, but would also spread loss of production and income to other areas and thus darken the business outlook." That is a danger which both the steel industry and the union should keep in mind. For, as the council pointed out in another section of its report, the decisions taken by businessmen and workers as well as farmers and consumers, not only "determine whether the economy will move up or down but whether the Government will be required to play a larger or a smaller part." If either party to the present steel dispute maintains an uncompromising attitude, rejecting reasonable terms of settlement proposed by the fact-finding board, the truce will be only a prelude to delayed conflict that will undoubtedly lead to Government intervention of a more compulsive nature.

Atomic Hex

The hush-hush atmosphere surrounding the atomic conference at Blair House Thursday night invited all sorts of wild conjectures—including the one that the Nation's leaders were being told that the Russians had the bomb. Such conjectures probably were much graver in import than the actual subject matter of the meeting. One reasonable explanation, reported by Carl Levin in the New York Herald Tribune, is that the conference concerned the exchange of classified information with Great Britain and Canada.

Canada and Britain were partners with us in the development of the atomic bomb. During the war they shared our secrets, and contributed much from their own knowledge. Since 1945 each country has proceeded independently, but a basic information liaison has been continued on non-military scientific and technical data. The Secretary of State is chairman of the combined policy committee for the three nations which has worked out a formula for information exchange.

It is often assumed, narrowly, that the exchange of information is a one-way proposition. Such is emphatically not the case. Both Britain and Canada now have atomic piles in operation. These differ in some respects from our own piles, and we have obtained valuable aid from them. In the same context it is reasonable to conclude that the United States has shared its own experience relative to such things as disposal of atomic wastes.

Important questions now arise with respect to atomic relationships with Britain and Canada. For example, what bearing do the Atlantic Pact and military assistance have on exchange of information? Should we encourage Britain and Canada to develop atom bombs of their own, or should we guarantee them access to our own stockpile in the event of war?

This newspaper has no inside knowledge that such matters were discussed between the President and congressional and atomic energy leaders. However, it is certain that the exchange of information recently has come in for attacks by those who have protested the sending of radioisotopes abroad. It would be tragic indeed if misguided interpretation of "security" were allowed to disrupt the relations with Britain and Canada.

The whole concept of security through secrecy arises from a misconception of this country's atomic position. Our atomic monopoly is about the same as the monopoly of a boy with an ice cream cone. It is one of end results and techniques, not of brains or basic science. Real security is advanced by recognizing this fact and encouraging the broadest possible interchange—and public disclosure—of information beyond strict military applications. For atomic isolationism is no more practicable in this age than the political isolationism shattered by the war.

Unused Talents

As Senator Dulles himself says, he does not have to be a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in order to make his foreign policy views known to his colleagues. But his interests, talents, knowledge and experience combine to make an assignment to that committee the most logical and natural for him. Certainly it is unfortunate that the seniority rule stands in the way.

Several possible doors might be opened to him, but none seems very likely, and in every door Senator Morse will take his place at the head of the line of prior claimants.

The claim of Senator Morse is strong under the seniority system—and will be vigorously pressed. He could be passed over only if the Republican leadership wished to risk alienating him. Indeed, Senator Morse has already given notice that he would not take it passively. And the Oregonian is not the only Senator with a claim to precedence over Mr. Dulles for assignment on this committee.

Freshman Senators rarely if ever get the choicest committee assignments, and Foreign Relations is the choicest of the choice. Senator Dulles faces exactly the same barrier as any other senatorial novice. The only difference is that Senator Dulles is so patently not a novice in world affairs that the illogic of the old rule shows up more clearly than usual.

OUT OF HATRED

No energy is lost, only transformed, the physicists say
And who knows but the energy of human emotions is so transformed? out of our hates and our despairs often beauty and happiness arise. I have built a dam
when fury of hate burned in my blood; the anger
went out in the turning of rock and earth.
Years later
the pond is a jewel in the morning light; swallows skim
its mirror surface, the willows are reflected there,
water laps rock, people swim, and wild ducks sometimes settle like leaves that float down with no wind.
The ugliness and the anger are forgotten;
even I have left them in the past almost beyond recall,
like flowers that grow about a garbage heap, and eat filth with their roots, and blossom in the sun.

Britain's High Costs

In his letter on "Gold as the Villain," published July 11, "Realist" succeeds only in further muddying the waters. The dilemma in which competitive British industry finds itself cannot be so patly attributed to "purchasing power parity."

Confining the discussion to the example he cites of the British car, it must be pointed out that the British purchase a large portion of their raw materials in countries of the British Empire, where the British enjoy "purchasing power parity."

The statement that "labor makes up 90 per cent of the cost of any manufactured product," shows downright ignorance of established percentage ratios for labor costs. For example, a comprehensive survey of percentage ratios of labor costs prepared by the Federal Trade Commission which covers 85 major industries in the United States, does not reveal one with direct and indirect labor costs totaling over 35 per cent. For the industries in question, automobile parts were 24.01 per cent and motor vehicles 18.55 per cent. Granted the lower productivity of the British worker, 90 per cent seems like a loose statement.

No mention was made of the other villains plaguing British industry; excessive cost of raw materials due to long water hauls, obsolete machinery and machine tools, lack of sufficient trained engineering and production personnel, and a medieval approach (in many British firms) to labor relations based upon the master-servant relationship, all of which are contributory causes for the high costs of British manufactured products.

Robeson's Reasons

It is not difficult to understand a man of Paul Robeson's cultural and intellectual attainments being carried away by his emotions despite his wide travels and experiences. That—because of his American Negro background.

The man has been continuously exposed to and completely accepted by many Europeans of unquestioned intellect and quality. There is no such thing as "tolerance and racial understanding" involved in his relationships abroad—he is simply a gentleman of unusual talent and attainment in a field where standards of quality are much the same the world over. Hence, Paul Robeson is one of an unknown, perhaps small, number of American Negroes of attainment, who has tasted and recognizes from his heart complete and sincere acceptance.

Statements have been made about how much America has done for him. But is it not true that he has collected only about 10 per cent on his contribution and that America owes him 90 per cent of it yet in bringing to par his bond of citizenship, that he might walk in every State a 100 per cent man? The same form of reasoning is true, to me, in relationship with what Jackie Robinson has done for Branch Rickey, organized baseball and America. Joe Louis, too, traveled the rocky road of humiliation proving democracy to Americans and the world.

Deny if you will that Robeson's citizenship is sub-par—his or most Negroes' citizenship is flagrantly violated every hour in every day in some form. All of Robeson's money couldn't get him a drink of "free" water, not to mention food and rest, except "in his place."

What a lot of people don't like about Robeson is his independence—he's not compelled to act or speak in deference as do most Negroes in high places. Though he spoke not for me or 99.9 per cent of other American Negroes, why doesn't the press prove his lie instead of letting some Georgia Congressmen drop the weight on Jackie Robinson and some minister.

Accident Pictures

In your July 10 issue someone expressed disgust at photographs of automobile accidents. I was surprised at the suggestion that you should not show such pictures.

Two members of my immediate family have been innocent victims of auto accidents, with compound fractures resulting in each case. Seeing my family suffer hasn't been pleasant. Photos of accident victims aren't pleasant, but they help a little to wake up the driving public. They help to make drivers aware of the potential weapon they handle daily and the serious nature of that weapon.

Hiss Trial

Inevitable as was the disagreement of the Hiss jury, there are elements in it which must be disquieting to us all.

If Mr. Hiss is guilty as charged, he has already "gotten away with" far too much; and that he should continue to go scot free is a matter of deep concern to every citizen.

If, on the other hand, Mr. Hiss is telling the truth—and if he is not, he is apparently breaking the habit of a lifetime—the ordeal of the past months, now to be continued indefinitely, is not only personally tragic for him and for his family, but, in its implications, terrifying to the rest of us.

Who of us, involved in multitudinous contacts in the course of our daily routine, can feel secure that, out of a past deep enough to protect himself by the statute of limitations, some disgruntled erstwhile acquaintance will not rise to frame us with circumstantial evidence which can not be disproved?

It is important to us all to know who typed the documents in question, why, and how they came into the possession of Mr. Chambers. It is more important for us to be certain that our Government is using its unique resources, including the FBI, to find the answers to these questions, and not merely to a conviction.

Algeria In The Pact

The very day 11 foreign ministers gathered in Washington to sign the Atlantic Pact, His Highness Emir Abdel Krim, chairman of the Committee for Freedom of North Africa, issued a statement denouncing the inclusion of Algeria in the pact.

Unfortunately, and for reasons not too difficult to understand, certain French "colonial" papers, misinterpreting Abdel Krim's position, gave it to mean that he was opposed to the Atlantic Pact. The same interpretation was hastily made by foreign Marxist writers who were only too eager to exploit it for their own purposes.

As one who fought gallantly, though unsuccessfully, for the freedom of Morocco, Emir Abdel Krim is better qualified than most to understand the determination of any nation or group of nations to protect themselves against an evil.

This pact, however, as it is now drafted, would seem designed to protect not only the several sovereign states of western Europe, but also France's colonial conquest of Algeria. Article 6 of the pact, defining the territorial scope of this regional agreement, states: "An armed attack on one or more of the parties is deemed to include an armed attack on the territory of any of the parties in Europe, North America or the Algerian departments of France."

Diplomatic expediency and strategic necessities cannot discard the fact, whatever the contention of France, that Algeria is geographically, technically, culturally, and religiously an entity separate and distinct from France. In the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries Algeria was a dominion of the Sublime Porte, but in 1669 Turkey along with many European states, gave it de jure recognition.

The fact that Algeria was aggressively invaded by the French in 1847 and ruled by them ever since does not, under international law, support or justify the claim of France for permanent sovereignty over Algeria. To defend this opinion one need only cite any one of the several precedents Great Britain has so wisely and realistically established in Egypt, Iraq, India, Ceylon, Burma, etc.

Emir Abdel Krim's opposition to the pact is based, as is that of other North African leaders, on legal, political and moral grounds.

1. Despite their peaceful, democratic proclamations, some European colonial nations, particularly France and Holland, are today as in the past still directing their colonial policy toward the ruthless subjugation and selfish exploitation of millions of men and women in Africa and Asia.

2. The inclusion of Algeria in the pact and reference to this country as "the Algerian department of France" is a diplomatic injustice which prejudices the rights and claims of the Algerian people who are presently engaged in a struggle to regain their lost freedom and independence.

3. The incorporation of Algeria without the consent or consultation of the people of Algeria is not only inconsistent with the most elementary democratic traditions, but also constitutes a serious violation of Article 73 of the United Nations Charter.

4. The preamble of the Atlantic Pact refers to its members' determination to "reaffirm their faith in the purposes and principles of the Charter . . . based on the principles of democracy, individual liberty and rule of law." To those unfamiliar with the situation in North Africa we might note that as yet not one of those lofty principles has been extended to the people of Algeria, to whom even the most fundamental human rights are ruthlessly denied. In Algeria today there are more than 100,000 political prisoners languishing in French medieval jails.

There can be no ideological, political or moral justification for a pact which on the one hand affirms the right of France to protect her freedom and on the other gives its blessing to the tyrannic subjugation of 10 million Algerians by the French. We believe that the free Atlantic nations have only helped to serve the interests of Communist propagandists when they arbitrarily included "slave" Algeria in their "democratic" alliance.

U. N. Role In Marriage

By Malvina Lindsay

'White Queen' Issue

THE MAZE of international marriage thickens as an American movie actress becomes a potential begum to millions of Mohammedans and a British stenographer prepares to become the "White Queen" of an African tribe.

Hence some see the United Nations as eventually driven to setting up a family relations agency. It has already been bedeviled with the problem of the Russian wives of other nationals who have not been permitted to join their husbands. Its Trusteeship Council had to call to task the much-married Fon of the Bikom tribe in the British Cameroons when he was accused of taking wives by force. This council may now be drawn into the troubles of the Bamangwatos of southwest Africa.

This tribe, heretofore well-ruled and a force for stability and progress in its region, is now threatened with disruption over the determination of its young chief-designate, Seretze Khama, to bring his white bride, Ruth Williams, 24-year-old London stenographer, to Africa to share his "throne." And if this tribe, strategically located, should become weakened, there could well be international complications affecting interests of the South African Union.

AS IT IS, the Union, which has just passed a law forbidding mixed marriages, is reported greatly disturbed over the situation. Equally disturbed, though from a different standpoint, are tribal chiefs of the region, as well as many of Seretze's 200,000 tribesmen who speak with disdain of "the white woman."

On the other hand the United Nations stands for "freedom of choice" in marriage. And Soviet representatives there have repeatedly sought to embarrass this and other countries, including the South African Union, by assailing laws that set up barriers to mixed marriages.

Aside from the race issue, the marriage of Ruth Williams to Seretze Khama dramatizes the background barrier that has to be met in some degree in all international marriages. If Ruth Williams becomes a "white queen" she will have to adapt to an alien and primitive life. Though her husband is Oxford educated, she will live in a sprawling bush "village" of 30,000 inhabitants, its houses mostly mud huts without plumbing or electricity. She will have to take the lead in many of the arduous duties of Bamangwato women. She will have to accept tribal beliefs and customs. If she has a child it will be "half caste" and that is what the Bamangwotas especially are opposed to in a future ruler. She will meet ostracism from both her own and her husband's race.

ON THE other hand, Rita Hayworth, as the wife of young Aly Khan, has fallen into a life of idle Riviera splendor. But she also is likely to meet intangible barriers of religion, social attitudes, tradition, family relationships. The problem becomes nearer at hand in the Japanese, and even the British, French and German girls, trying to fit themselves into American life as the wives of former GI's.

Social agencies that try to help in this process say the adaptation is going fairly well but that it is seldom easy. Strange food, different ways of doing household tasks, homesickness and frequently a chip on the shoulder attitude toward Americans—who may or may not be guilty of ostracism—all these make the way of the foreign bride or bridegroom difficult even in this country, probably the easiest of all from a material standpoint to fit into.

Yet marriages across national boundaries inevitably will increase. So probably will marriages across other barriers, race, religion, background, social class. Every time one of these takes place there is yet great babble, argument and much to-do. The trend of the times seems to be that it is a personal matter except when there are legal and political complications.

However, any individual is taking a risk—usually not calculated—in such a matter. For authorities on marriage still stress the importance of similarity of background as one of the main sources of marital harmony. It would seem that the least anyone entering such an arrangement would do would be to become as well versed in the background, culture and attitudes of those across the barrier as do young diplomats preparing for State Department assignments abroad.

Investigation's Reward

Congressional investigations are an important function of our Government. Opinion may differ on the merits of some of the current and prospective ones. Personally, I feel toward them like Jefferson did toward a free press.

There may be some danger, however, that they will become cannibalistic. My vice president in charge of statistics informs me that, at the present inquisitorial birth rate, every member of Congress will be so involved in conducting investigations by about 1955 that he will have no time for legislative work. (Please don't wisecrack that such a situation would be "a consummation devoutly to be desired").

To forestall the realization of so dire a prediction, I make this proposal: Let us have a congressional investigation of Congress.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Sabotage Of Public Power

EVEN THOUGH political memories are notriously short, few politicians can have forgotten President Truman's repeated campaign pledge to work for low-cost public power. At every whistle stop in the West he talked about the need not only for Government-owned power dams but for Government-owned transmission lines to carry public power at low rates.

Childs

Those promises helped to carry many Western States, which at the beginning of the campaign were considered sure for Goyernor Dewey. Yet now with the sizable Democratic majorities in Senate and House, a vital feature of the program has been given the ax.

In areas where large public-power projects have been built the advocates of low-cost power believe it is essential that the Government construct and operate transmission lines. Otherwise, a private utility—a private monopoly—buys the power at the dam at a low price and sells it to the consumer at a considerably higher price.

Republicans in the Eightieth Congress cut out funds for such lines. Now Democrats have joined Republicans in a Senate committee report to take the same action.

How can this happen in the face of repeated Democratic campaign pledges? One answer is that highly placed Democrats who participated directly in the Truman victory did not seem anxious to make good on the pledges. On the contrary, they were working for the private utilities.

WILLIAM M. BOYLE, Jr., executive director of the Democratic National Committee, wrote a letter to the Department of the Interior as the representative of Southwest utilities opposing publicly owned transmission lines for the Southwest Power Authority. When Speaker Sam Rayburn got wind of this he charged down to the White House and it was not long afterward that Boyle ceased his private law practice and became full-time paid director of the Democratic Committee.

A little later a former executive of the committee, Richard Nacy, Jefferson City, Mo., banker, asked Congressmen to vote against the power lines. As in the case of Boyle, several Fair Deal Democrats protested to the White House.

Even though the impression was spread by these friends of the President that a vote against this phase of the public-power program was okay, the House approved it. In the Senate, however, the private-power lobby found allies in a few Senators who occupy highly strategic positions.

On the Senate subcommittee considering the Interior Department bill were Senator Pat McCarran of Nevada and Senator Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma, both Democrats. They are credited with doing more than anyone to see that items fought by the power lobby were stricken out of the bill as it came to the Senate from the House. And highest honors are quite generally awarded to McCarran.

THE STOUT Senator from Nevada has in this session of Congress made himself the outstanding champion of special interest and special prejudices. Even though there is considerable rivalry, he stands at the head of that list.

Almost single-handed McCarran has bottled up the displaced persons bill. He got committee approval of 50 million dollars for Franco in Spain, he engineered a 10 per cent cut in the ECA appropriation. And that is only a part of his accomplishments.

McCarran is elected, of course, by a handful of voters in Nevada, which has a much smaller population than most of the industrial districts in the populous States. If he gets a certain number of irrigation projects for his State, as he did when the Senate committee added to the Interior bill 54 million dollars above the total approved by the House, he is free to represent any and all special interests that he fancies.

The Democratic Senators who chopped away the President's program seemed perfectly willing to accept the assurances of private power companies that they would carry and distribute the Government power as cheaply as a public-power authority. That is not what the President said on the stump last October. Failure to follow through on the campaign promises will leave many Americans wondering whether there is any meaning in a campaign promise or whether it is all "just campaign oratory."

'Bait' for Suckers . . .

The Washington Post

THEY TAKE THE PENNIES—Ernest E. Blanche, the author, shows part of his collection of punch boards, many of which are used by storekeepers to fleece children of their pennies mines for the dealers—and illusory gold bricks for the children who are taken in by them. Most punch boards pay out less than 40 per cent of the money put into them. Sometimes the pay off is as low as 15 per cent.

The prize displays are often nothing more than bait. One day a lad walked into a shop, saw 9 or 10 prizes surrounding a punch board, and noticed that 30 punches were unsold at a nickel each. Sensing a real opportunity, he bought the 30 punches with full confidence that he would secure the unrewarded prizes. But none of his punches yielded a single winner!

Candy Game Called Unfair

When he insisted that something was wrong, he was blandly informed that there was no guarantee that the punch board contained winning numbers for the exhibited prizes.

There are many other games that take children's money unfairly. A common candy game is the one in which children pay 1 penny for a small piece of candy. If the center is pink, the purchaser receives a prize. If the center is white, there is no prize.

Children are often deceived by the schemes of storekeepers who promise to award prizes for a complete collection of card pictures of 48 movie actors or baseball players. One picture is given with each penny purchase of candy. While it is comparatively easy to get 47 of the pictures, it is almost impossible to obtain the forty-eighth card. To all indications, the circulation of the forty-eighth picture is exceedingly limited.

These games may seen inconsequential, but actually they are not. Their influence has had a great deal to do with the fact that so many young people indulge in more serious types of gambling as they grow older.

Confidence games are not games of chance, but some of the circumstances and conditions associated with gambling are often found where confidence games are played. Most people who are fleeced by con game techniques are reluctant to make any complaints to the police because of possible ridicule, embarrassment, or disgrace.

A victim or intended victim of a con man is a "mark" and every con game depends essentially upon the potential or actual dishonesty of the "mark." The con men couldn't get very far if their victim held to the Ten Commandments more resolutely.

One of the most daring confidence men was Joseph R. Weil, "the Yellow Kid." Weil spent much time as a youth in Hinky Dink Kenna's saloon in Chicago. Complaints from customers who said Weil was beating them at matching coins or playing dice led Kenna to declare that Weil had more tricks than the Yellow Kid, a newspaper comic-strip character of the period.

For half a century, Weil's exploits made newspaper headlines. But during that time he served 41 prison terms for defrauding people of more than 10 million dollars. At the age of 70, he analyzed his victims this way: "The biggest chump in the world is a hot-shot business man with a touch of larceny in his heart."

Sneered at Mere $4000 "Take"

Weil operated for high stakes. Upon being accused of a $4000 con game, he is said to have sneered that he would not stoop so low. He usually operated with a partner, one of the best known of whom was Fred Buckminster.' The latter had an appearance similar to that of a minister, and for that reason was called "The Deacon."

The simplest of con games is the money-making machine. A "roper," confederate of a con man, wins the confidence of an intended victim, then introduces him to a friend who has a wonderful machine which makes "perfect" $10 bills from a special kind of paper.

They give a demonstration, turning out two perfect bills which have been cleverly substituted for the blank paper. The mark becomes excited when he learns the bills are accepted at the bank as genuine. Then he is told that some cash must be obtained to buy the special paper to make the bills.

The victim is invited to put up as much as he can. The more he puts up for blank paper, the more $10 bills he can make. To show their good faith, the con men agree to leave the money-making machine in his custody. The con men then leave with the mark's money on a trip to buy the special paper. When they fail to return, the mark finds that the machine he has been holding is a cheap and useless contraption.

In another game the con man introduces the mark to an old man who has 100 shares of stock which is not listed on the stock exchange. The con man tells the mark that he is convinced he can buy the stock from the old man for a dollar or two a share and immediately sell it for $10 a share because the old man does not know its true value.

The con man may even send telegrams to confederates in other cities inquiring about the price of the stock. The confederates wire back that they will pay $10 a share for it. The con man explains that he has no cash available and wants only a small percentage of the profit for his trouble. Then he gets the mark to buy the old man's stock for cash.

Immediately, the con man sends the victim to New York or Chicago to sell the worthless stock at a certain brokerage house which does not exist. The mark never finds the broker and the con men vanish.

The harmless little pastime of matching coins is essentially a confidence game. Some men make a comfortable living at it. Generally two confederates will be matching coins in a tavern or railroad station. Their game attracts some unwary person who stops to watch. After several minutes one of the confederates suggests that the three of them play "odd man wins."

Each man will have a small stack of coins, mix them thoroughly, and hold them in a roll between the first two fingers and thumb of the left hand. The right hand covers the top coin. When each man uncovers the top coin, the person with the odd coin wins the other two coins. If all three are alike, each keeps his own.

The game looks fair, but one of the confederates has all heads in a pile and the other all tails, or some prearranged sequence. Thus, they never can lose.

Some confederates have methods which are less obvious. Sometimes they have such sensitive fingers they can distinguish heads and tails by touch and can arrange coins without looking at them. When only two persons are matching coins the game is usually free from the possibility of prearrangement. In such a game, the chance of winning favors the one who starts out with more coins.

This does not mean that the person having 10 coins cannot lose to a fellow with only 5 coins. It means that the fellow with 10 coins will win all 5 coins from his opponent more often than he will lose his 10 coins.

In order for the 5-coin man to win the game, he must win 10 times more than his opponent, no matter how long they play. In order for the 10-coin man to win, he must win only five times more than his opponent, no matter how long they play.

You can't win at confidence games—or gambling. There aren't any two ways about it.

The President's Calling List

President Truman yesterday had the following White House appointments:

10 a. m.—Cabinet.
11 a. m.—James D. Cooney.
11:15—Maury Maverick, former Representative from Texas and Mayor of San Antonio.
11:30—Roy Lehaney and William Boyle.
12 noon—The President signs the General Housing bill.

Arlington Group To Meet Monday

The "Fact-Finding Council" will launch its fall activities in the coming county elections with a meeting at 8:30 p. m. Monday in the Old Dominion Bank Branch, 2926 Columbia Pike, Mrs. Ruth Marcey, president, announced.

The group, which opposed the county's 6½-million-dollar school bond issue last year, plans to "tell Arlington what the school board has really been doing while it should have been building classrooms," according to Mrs. Marcey.

the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth?"

But the President yesterday brushed aside reporters questions with a grin.

"You just want to find out something, and you ain't going to do it," he quipped.

One conference participant indicated the subject matter concerned a matter of "long-range policy" and nothing of 'current application."

One Senate leader who did not attend said that if the conference involved the issues he believed it did that the national interest would prevent any publication of it. He has a considerable knowledge of atomic energy matters.

Representative Durham (D., N. C.), vice chairman of the Joint Atomic Energy Committee, who attended the conference, said he did not consider the subject matter too serious. Representative Cole (R., N. Y.), ranking Republican House member, who also was present at Blair House, agreed.

"Orson Welles Build-up"

As much comment was concerned with handling of the conference by White House press attaches as with its subect matter.

One Senator called it "perfectly awful," and said that if the White House had been attempting to give the conference "an Orson Welles build-up" it couldn't have been better done.

Relations of Great Britain, Canada and the United States on atomic issues recently were brought into committee hearings on the management of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Dr. Robert F. Bacher, former commissioner, recalled that British and Canadian scientists gave valuable cooperation during the war in developing the atomic project at Los Alamos, but their participation "was cut to zero in 1946" when Congress passed the Atomic Energy Control Act.

"Bitterness" Reported

AEC Chairman David E. Lilienthal said, the commission found relationship with Great Britain and Canada "to be causing bitterness among allies and friends." He said "an exchange of information with these countries" has since been launched but only "in a limited way."

He urged the committee to call Secretary of State Acheson and General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower to discuss the situation.

predicted "fewer than 10" would oppose the treaty, now conceded the "No" vote might climb to an outside of 18.

Senator Lucas originally proposed a vote at 5 p. m. Monday. This was blocked by Senator Donnell (R., Mo.), a leading opponent, who called the pact the most "momentous" shift in foreign policy since the Monroe Doctrine.

Donnell and other opponents finally agreed to vote Thursday. Once the deadline was set, Lucas abandoned plans for a Saturday session but held the Senate beyond the dinner hour to thin the long line of waiting speakers.

These speakers meanwhile highlighted the two opposed viewpoints:

1. Senator Morse (R., Oreg.), a firm advocate of the pact, said opponents are reviving the discarded doctrine that "America can go it alone." Said Morse: "I see stalking across this chamber once again the ghost of American isolation." He bluntly warned the Senate the United States can't win a war with Russia without allies, saying: "If we turn our back on this treaty, we will have little hope of allies."

"Unnecessary, Dangerous"

2. Senator Jenner (R., Ind.), a bitter-end foe of the arms program, accused proponents of deceiving the public about the extent of our obligations. He called the treaty a "radical departure" from American tradition, but insisted he would vote for the pact were it not for the implementing arms. Jenner said the arms commitment "makes it an unnecessary, dangerous instrument, that is far more likely to incite a war than to secure peace."

3. Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) told a special night session of the Senate that the pact will be reduced to a "shambles" if a chain reaction of treaty reservations is set off.

Vandenberg begged Senators to keep an "open mind" on reservations pending "totally convincing proof" which he said would be presented against them.

In proposing a treaty "declaration" making it clear that arms supplied by the United States must be built into a unified defense force, Fulbright told newsmen a policy statement of intentions by the State Department might serve the same purpose.

The Arkansas Democrat, whose famed House resolution was one of the forerunners of the United Nations, said he had tried and failed to obtain the same European unity on economic matters when the Senate last voted Marshall Plan funds.

Fulbright said he firmly believes we are committed to supply arms, but they needn't be sent to Europe "immediately."

He said the pact "will help give us a breathing spell during which, if we are wise, we may be able to find a solution to our real problems.

"This body can and should make it clear that as a condition to sending arms, the Europeans should cooperate in the creation of a single defense establishment," he said.

"I think a clarifying interpretation of Article 9 might properly be adopted in order to give the members notice of our intentions."

Prospects of Raise For Military Grow

59 Jobs Okayed

House Group Backs Army Building Bill

By The Associated Press

Fifty-nine Army construction projects totaling $136,538,400 were approved tentatively yesterday by the House Armed Services Committee.

The committee okayed most of the Army's section of a 620 million dollar military public works bill. The Navy projects will be considered today and the Air Force plans next week. Chairman Vinson (D., Ga.) said he hoped the committee would give final approval to the entire bill by next Wednesday.

The committee accepted all the Army projects without change except $14,529,000 for secret special weapons improvements. That item will be considered later behind closed doors.

About half the Army construction would be for new permanent homes at military posts. They would cost an average of $14,000 each. Because of higher costs in Alaska, Okinawa and other points, the committee agreed to lift the cost limit for houses to be built outside the continental United States.

Majj. Gen. Lewis Pick, Chief of Army Engineers, said it would cost more than $35,000 to build at Fort Richardson, Alaska, near Anchorage, a house a little smaller than those to be built for an average of $14,000 in the States.

Aside from housing, the Army section of the bill provides for improving various stations specializing on highly secret work like development of radiological and biological warfare, rockets and guided missiles.

Prospects of the military pay bill passing this session brightened considerably yesterday with the breaking of the deadlock over unification.

Chairman Tydings (D., Md.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee predicted that the group will approve the pay bill when it meets Monday morning.

While much more optimistic of the measure's chances than the day before, the Marylander made it plain that it will not be taken up on the Senate floor until approval of the Administration's unification plan is assured.

The Senate committee has been reported split about 50-50 over approving the pay bill unless unification also is passed. Several members insist that the latter bill must be passed to make possible savings to offset the 300-million-dollar-a-year cost of the salary boosts. However, once unification is "nailed down," a large majority of the group is expected to go along with the pay bill.

Tydings indicated that House approval of the Short bill making fiscal reforms in the armed services and likelihood of action on other provisions of the unifying plan would be assurance enough for his committee to proceed with the pay legislation.

The Short bill—containing Title IV of the original Tydings unification measure—was indorsed by the House Armed Services Committee Thursday. It probably will be passed by the House next week, perhaps Monday.

Once this happens, approval of the full unification plan can be accomplished in either of two ways. The Senate could tack on the other provisions—expanding the power of the Defense Secretary, creating a chairman for the Joint Chiefs of Staff, etc.—and work out a satisfactory bill in conference. Or President Truman could send up a reorganization order to bring about these changes. The fiscal reforms cannot be put in effect by reorganization order.

Then if neither House has voted down the order it will go into effect in 60 days provided Congress is in session.

Even with approval of unification, the pay bill is due for trouble on the Senate floor. But sponsors believe the odds are in favor of passage once the snarl over the unifying bill is untangled.

broad" authority to transfer funds from one purpose to another was written into the bill.

Could the Defense Secretary take all the 433 millions out of one service, a reporter asked?

"He could," replied Thomas. "But we know that he won't or he never would come back up here again."

The committee took these three other important actions with regard to the bill:

1. Approved plans to let the Navy modernize two Essex-type aircraft carriers with funds saved from the cancellation of the supercarrier, United States.

2. Authorized defense officials to go ahead with plans to build a radar screen around North America, but without adding funds for the purpose. The money will have to come from cash in the bill, Thomas said.

3. Struck out a proviso carried in military appropriation bills for years barring the purchase of oleomargarine.

As passed by the House, the armed forces bill carried an actual total of $15,908,116,800. This included, however, not only new cash and contractual authority, but also cash to pay off 1948 and 1949 contractual authority.

Officials said that if the money bill—for the fiscal year which began July 1—is approved as rewritten yesterday, and if two pending Administration bills are passed, defense spending will total just under 14 billion dollars this year.

That estimate is contingent on passage of the 30-million-dollar military pay bill and the 400-million-dollar public works measure, plus cutting back of the 850-million-dollar stockpiling fund.

Thomas said that a subcommittee will review the latter and probably recommended some rescission.

The Oklahoman explained with regard to the stopping of special 18-year-old enlistments that youths now in uniform will serve out their terms.

Boy Digs Up 'Toy'—75 mm Artillery Shell

Urbana, Ill., July 15 (U.P.).—Seven-year-old Ronnie Runyan sobbed today when they took his "toy" away, but Urbana citizens sighed with relief.

Ronnie found a 75-milimeter artillery shell in a trash pile at the University of Illinois, and it turned out to be a live one. His mother said he kept dragging it into the house to play with. Police called demolition experts of the Air Force at nearby Chanute Field, who carted it off.

Butler Names Ex-Officials In 'Fee' Charge

NYHT News Service

Senator Hugh Butler (R., Nebr.) demanded a congressional investigation yesterday of reports and "rumors" that many former Government officials are collecting "fat legal fees" for representing private clients before the Government agencies they once headed.

Senator Butler, in a statement placed in the Congressional Record, named seven such former Government officials who he alleged were engaging in such practices.

He called for a "thorough airing" of their activities, which he said "may be legal," but which he denounced as "certainly questionable."

The former Government officials named by Senator Butler are:

1. Charles R. Denny, former chairman of the Federal Communications Commission.

2. James M. Landis, former chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board.

3. Thurman Arnold, former head of the antitrust division of the Department of Justice.

4. Abe Fortas, former Undersecretary of the Interior.

5. Paul Porter, also a former chairman of the Federal Communications Commission.

6. Joseph Nunan, former Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

7. James Markham, former Alien Property Custodian.

Senator Butler's demand for a probe of the activities of these and other former Government officials echoed a call for a similar investigation by Senator Earl Long (D., La.). Senator Long, however, did not name any names."

Chicago, July 15 (U.P.).—A makeshift bomb containing oil of mustard was hurled into the press room of the Chicago Defender, a Negro newspaper, today and burned a pressman as it burst.

Seven other pressmen and 12 mailers were driven from the room by choking fumes from the oil. The Defender has been campaigning to halt gambling in Bronzeville, big Chicago Negro district.

12 Germans Die In French Army Depot Explosion

Pruem, Germany, July 15 (AP).—A French army depot exploded tonight, killing 12 Germans, injuring scores more, and leaving hundreds homeless in the vicinity of this West German town.

German police said the death toll may go higher.

The entire northern part of the town was destroyed, police said. Pruem is about 45 miles west of Coblenz and near the junction of the German, Belgian and Luxembourg frontiers.

Cause of the explosion was not determined, but no sabotage is suspected.

The depot, operated by French occupation forces, was in a former air raid shelter built into a hill. It stored TNT and dynamite, but no ammunition was known to be there, police said.

Group Hopes To Fly to Moon By Year 1960

Toronto, July 15 (U.P.).—The Canadian Rocket Society has set the year 1960 as the "target date" for a trip to the moon and back by a space ship carrying a human crew, Boris Dyke, vice president of the organization, said today.

Dyke, in general charge of planning for the trip, said the date not only was "plausible," but the "definite date we are working towards."

The trip, he said, would be made in a "moon ship," in the shape of a gun projectile, 200 feet long and 50 feet in diameter, weighing more than 1000 tons when fully manned, fueled and stocked with provisions.

It would be atom powered, the society being confident atomic power will be in practical use before 1960, Dyke said.

The major engineering problem to be overcome, he said, is the choice of metal for the moon ship.

Total expenses for a two-way moon trip are estimated at five million dollars, Dyke said.

Oldest Member Of GAR Observes 108th Birthday

Rochester, N. Y., July 15 (U.P.).—James A. Hard, oldest member of the Grand Army of the Republic, quietly celebrated his 108th birthday today.

The cigar-smoking centenarian said he felt "pretty good" but birthdays "aren't much different."

"I've had so many of them, it's getting to be a habit," he declared.

Hard intends to go to the "final" national encampment of the GAR at Indianapolis next month.

"I'll be there to answer the roll call," he said.

'Girls' State' Governor Is Inaugurated

Annapolis, Md., July 15 (AP).—Harriett Carlson, 16-year-old Towson High School senior, was inaugurated governor of "Girls' State" tonight.

Harriett was elected after a spirited campaign among six of the 80 girls sent to the Capitol for a four-day project in government by American Legion Auxiliary units of Maryland.

The "thrilled to death" girl governor, who is president of her school's student council, beat out Mona Lou Evans, 15, of Mountain Lake Park, by five votes. Mona Lou had been acting governor before the election.

Both are members of the Federalist Party in the mock legislative sessions at the State House. But the new governor explained that "actually I'm a Republican."

Mona Lou said she's really a Democrat.

After the election they went upstairs to have their pictures taken with the real Governor, William Preston Lane, jr., a decided Democrat.

Bi-Partite Group Approves German Commodity Plan

Frankfurt, July 15 (NYHT).—A long step toward turning control of the internal German economy over to German administration was taken today at the regular bipartite military governors' meeting—the first in which John J. McCloy, the United States high commissioner has participated.

Approval was given by McCloy and British Gen. Sir Brian Robertson to a German proposal which abolishes military government control over all but a selected list of commodities and services. In the future it will be up to the German economic adminstration to decide what, outside the reserve commodity list, will or will not be controlled.

Ohio to Send Negro Girl to Conclave Here

Columbus, Ohio, July 15 (AP).—Joan Rankin, 16-year-old Negro governor of Buckeye Girls' State, will go to Washington after all.

Ohio's American Legion Auxiliary reversed its stand last night and decided to send the attractive Cincinnati girl to Girls' Nation as a representative from Ohio.

Previously, the auxiliary had refused to name Joan as a delegate because it wanted to save her from 'embarrassment" over racial discriminations she might encounter in Washington.

A spokesman for the auxiliary said the group reversed its stand because of "misunderstanding and misrepresentation" of the directors' desire to "protect Joan from the indignities of social discrimination in Washington."

Mae West Sues Hotel For $250,000 in Fall

New York, July 15 (AP).—Mae West today sued a luxurious New York hotel for $250,000 for a tumble she took in her bathroom there, alleging a defective floor mat caused the fall.

The actress said in her action, against the Hotel Chatham, that the fall caused her to become "sick, sore, lame and disabled" and prevented her from continuing to earn $3000 a week as the star of the stage revival of "Diamond Lil." She asserted the tumble forced closing of the play.

Barden Bill Draws Flood of Letters

By Martha J. Hall
Post Reporter

Congressional offices have been flooded during the past few weeks with letters on the controversial issue of Federal aid to education.

A check of the House Education and Labor Committee and offices of six committee members last week showed that the greatest proportion of the letters came from constituents after one bill was attacked by Francis Cardinal Spellman as "un-American, anti-Catholic legislation" on June 19.

The bill assailed by the Cardinal was introduced by Representative Graham A. Barden (D., N. C.), chairman of the subcommittee considering the measure. It was approved by the subcommittee with only three dissenting votes.

Public Schools Only

Now pending before the full committee, the multi-million dollar aid bill limits use of Federal funds to public schools only. Representative John Lesinski (D., Mich.), chairman of the full committee, has voiced opposition to the bill for that reason.

An employe of the committee reported that the office had been "snowed under" with letters opposing the Barden bill. The letters, she said, came from every State and were overwhelmingly against the proposed legislation.

Some of the communications were "form" letters or postcards, she said. The greatest number of letters have come since the attack by Cardinal Spellman.

Representative Barden's office has also been deluged with mail on the issue. Averaging over 100 letters each day, the communications are about nine to one in favor of passage of the bill.

Representative John S. Wood (D., Ga.) has long favored some sort of Federal aid to education. His office is getting "more letters than we can comfortably handle," but not as many as it did last year. Last year there was no opposition to aid to education legislation, but this year about half of the letters are for, half against.

Most of the letters against the bill received in Wood's office have been from members of the Catholic clergy rather than individual church members. Georgians have not brought up the issue of parochial schools, but residents of the Northeastern States who have written to Wood have discussed the issue.

Representative John F. Kennedy (D., Mass.) has had letters from all over the country, at a rate of about 50 each day. Nearly 98 per cent are against the Barden measure. Kennedy was one of the subcommittee members who voted against the bill.

More than 1000 letters, mostly from his own district, have flowed into the office of Representative Charles R. Howell (D., N. J.). Only 50 of the letters favored the Barden bill. Howell is against the legislation.

Representative Ralph W. Grimm (R., N. Y.), who has opposed the legislation on grounds that it might invite Federal control, has received more than 600 letters, mostly from Catholics, opposing the bill. Organized Protestant groups favoring the legislation have sent his office about a dozen letters. About two thirds of the opposition letters are printed forms, form postcards or copies of what appear to be form letters.

Catholic constituents have sent more than 200 protests, many of them form letters, to Congressman Wint Smith (R., Kans.). The majority of the letters followed the Cardinal Spellman statement.

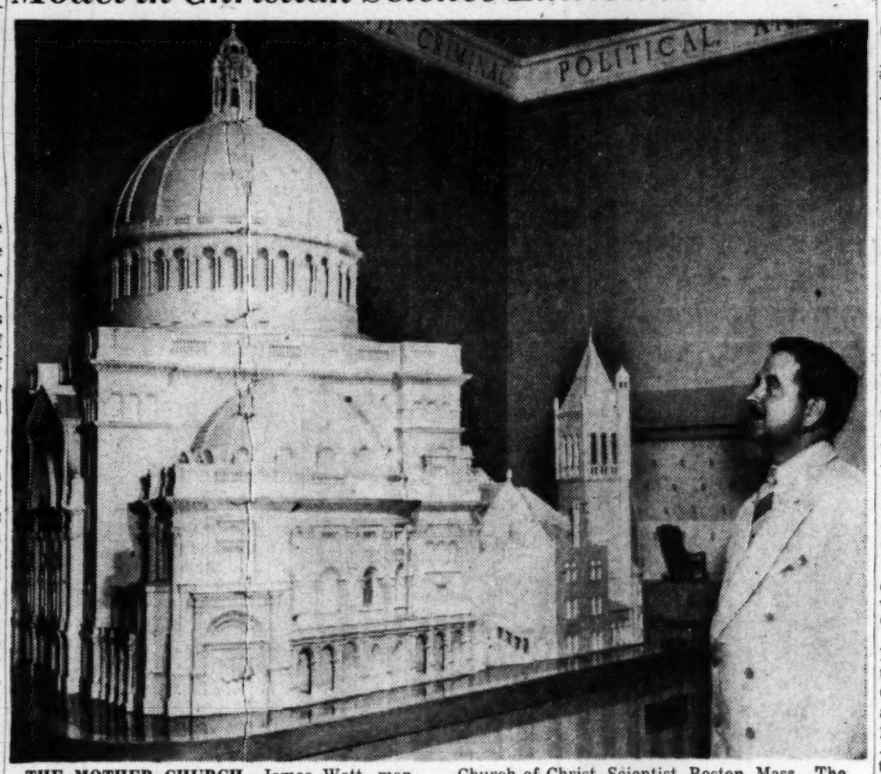
Pimm, a graduate of Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa., has had experience in drama and religious education and holds a license as a local preacher.

He will preach on "The Doorway to Life." Dr. John W. Rustin, pastor of the church, will speak on "To Seek and to Save," at 9 and 11:15 a. m.

Model in Christian Science Exhibit . . .



THE MOTHER CHURCH—James Watt, manager of the Washington office, Christian Science Committee on Publication, looks at the original scale model of the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Boston, Mass. The model, built about 1900, is one of the items in a display of Christian Science world activities at Washington headquarters, 1601 I st. nw.

Feast of Our Lady To Be Celebrated Here on Sunday

Priests, nuns, seminarians and laymen and women attending the summer session of the Catholic University of America will join in the celebration of the Feast of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, Sunday.

A solemn high mass will be celebrated in the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception on the campus at 10:30 a. m. It will be preceded by a procession through the campus, with marchers singing hymns in honor of the Blessed Mother.

A statue of Our Lady of Mount Carmel will be carried by four members of the Carmelite, Capuchin, Augustinian and Dominican Orders in the procession.

The Rev. Robert Biad of the Discalced Carmelite Fathers will be the celebrant of the mass. He will be assisted by Frater Richard Madden as deacon, and Frater Francis Miller as sub-deacon. The Very Rev. Francis J. Connel, rector of Holy Redeemer College and a member of the university faculty, will give the sermon.

Christian Science Group Opens Display

"Christian Science World Activities on Display," a permanent free exhibition on the origin and growth of Christian Science, opened yesterday at the Washington headquarters building, 16th and I sts. nw.

Stages in the life and work of Mary Baker Eddy, discoverer and founder of Christian Science, are depicted at the exposition, established by the Christian Science board of directors of the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Boston.

"Listening Chairs"

Among the innovations at the center are three "listening chairs." The visitor sits in a wing chair and selects one of 20 lectures he would like to hear on Christian Science and its healing activities.

He presses a numbered push-button, then listens to a voice originating from a vitaphone outlet in the headrest of the chair.

Only the person sitting in the chair can hear the tone of the speaker and all three chairs may be used at the same time without conflict of sound. The lectures are available in English and several foreign languages.

On display for the first time is a life-size portrait of Mrs. Eddy by Howard Chandler Christy.

Map Shows Branches

A large carved glass map of the world on the wall between the exhibition halls, on the second floor of the center, shows some 3000 Christian Science branch churches and societies throughout the world.

In addition, there are models of the Baker homestead in Bow, N. H., and a scale model of the Mother Church in Boston.

The display is open daily and on holidays from 10 a. m. to 7 p. m. and on Sundays from 2 to 6 p. m. James Watt, manager of the Washington office of the Christian Science Committee on Publications, is chairman of the exhibit hall committee.

Elder Jemison Reaches New Post At Takoma Park

Elder T. Housel Jemison, new head of the department of religion, has arrived at the Washington Missionary College, Takoma Park, Md.

Elder Jemison succeeds Elder W. R. French, who recently resigned because of ill health.

A graduate of Pacific Union College and the Seventh-Day Adventist Theological Seminary in Takoma Park, Elder Jemison has been serving as associate professor of religion at Pacific Union, Angwin, Calif.

He is scheduled to visit Seventh-Day Adventist camp meetings in several Eastern States this summer and will begin his work at the college in September. Elder Jemison, his wife and small daughter are living at 212 Carroll ave., Takoma Park.

Bible Class Gathering Set For Alexandria

A thousand members of Baraca and Philathea Bible classes from the United States and Canada will gather in Alexandria Monday for their forty-eighth annual convention.

The classes, Baraca for men and Philathea for women, are organized in Protestant churches throughout the world. Forty classes in Greater Washington will be represented.

National headquarters is in the "tower house" near Mount Vernon, Va. Hosts for the convention are the Baraca and Philathea classes of First Baptist Church, 216 South Washington st., Alexandria, convention headquarters, and Washington Street Methodist Church, 109 South Washington st., Alexandria.

Opens With Reception

On Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock the convention will open with a reception at the Methodist Church.

Delegates will be greeted by the Rev. Fred R. Chenault, pastor of the Methodist Church, Dr. E. F. Campbell, president of the Alexandria Ministerial Association, and pastor of the Baptist Church, Armistead L. Boothe, chairman of the Alexandria Bicentennial, and William T. Wilkins, Mayor of Alexandria.

Daytime sessions during the seven-day convention will be devoted to religious services, Bible study, discussion of class activities, recreation and sightseeing.

Dr. Barnhouse in Charge

Bible study will be conducted by Dr. Donald Grey Barnhouse, pastor of Tenth Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia, author, lecturer and world traveler.

Speakers at the evening sessions, which begin at 7:15 p. m. Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday will be the Rev. Newton Gordon Cosby, pastor of the Church of the Saviour, 1707 19th st. nw., Mr. Chenault, and the Rev. Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden, pastor of First Baptist Church, 16th and O sts. nw.

Thursday afternoon the delegates will go to the tower house, where that evening they will burn the mortgage and dedicate the building. On Sunday at 8 a. m. there will be a sunrise service at the tower house.

Officers for the coming year will be installed at the convention banquet, 6:30 p. m. Saturday, in the Washington National Airport terrace room.

Baptists to Hear Convention Aide

Dr. M. Chandler Stith, executive secretary of the D. C. Baptist Convention, will preach at National Baptist Memorial Church, 16th st. and Columbia rd. nw., Sunday at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m.

At the morning service Dr. Stith will speak on "Making Him Known" and at the evening service his sermon will be "Doubt Your Doubts." Dr. Edward B. Willingham, pastor of the church, will speak at the National Christian Education Workers Conference of the Northern Baptist Convention at Green Lake, Wisc., on Sunday.

Cantor Gewirtz Here

Cantor Norman Gewirtz of New York will be heard at services of the Northeast Hebrew Congregation at 8:30 p. m. Friday in the basement of Sherwood Presbyterian Church, 3202 22d. st. ne. Rabbi Hymen Ezra Cohen will conduct the services.

Sunday CHURCH EVENTS

The Rev. George E. Schnabel, minister of Albright Memorial Church, 4th and Rittenhouse sts. nw., has returned to his pulpit after a brief vacation.

Rev. Schnabel

At 10:45 a. m. he will preach another of his sermons on "So Dear to Our Hearts," using illustrations from familiar children's stories. He will speak on "Cabbages and Kings," using "Alice in Wonderland" as his theme. Later he will preach sermons based on "The Tar Baby," "Rip Van Winkle" and "Three Little Pigs."

The Rev. James G. Graham, former chaplain of Mercersburg Academy and World War I chaplain, will preach at Cleveland Park Congregational Church at 11 a. m. Dr. Alfred Wesley Hurst, pastor of the church, is vacationing in Maine.

The Rev. Gustav H. Ulrich, who recently returned from Germany where he represented the Universalist Church of America at youth rehabilitation centers, will preach at 10:30 a. m. at Universalist National Memorial Church, 1810 16th st. nw. He will speak on the Verdun Youth Home.

"Life, a Tale That Is Told," will be the topic of a sermon by Dr. Edward O. Clark at 11 a. m. at Chevy Chase Baptist Church, 5671 Western ave. nw. "Daybreak," a film about displaced persons, will be shown at the 8 p. m. service, which is sponsored by the young people.

The Rev. Larman Sherwood, blind humorist, philosopher and ordained Methodist minister, will preach at 11 a. m. at Hamline Methodist Church, 16th and Allison sts. nw. Mr. Sherwood, a graduate of Union College and New York State College for Teachers, is pastor of the First Methodist Church of Rotterdam Junction, N. Y.

"Toil—Futile or Fruitful" will be Dr. Henry W. Snyder's sermon topic at 11 a. m. at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Connecticut ave. and Everett sts. nw.

"A Time to Look Up" will be Dr. Albert J. McCartney's sermon topic at 11 a. m. at National Presbyterian Church, Connecticut ave. and N. st. nw. Dr. McCartney, director of the Chicago Sunday Evening Club, was pastor of National Church from 1930 until 1945 and is now pastor emeritus of the church.

Alcoholism as Foe To Be Sermon Topic

"Whether Sin or Sickness, Alcoholism is Foe of Man" will be Dr. J. Raymond Schmidt's sermon at 11 a. m. Sunday at Brookland Methodist Church, 14th and Lawrence ne. Dr. Schmidt, general superintendent of the National Civic League, is speaking in place of the Rev. Harry C. Marsh, pastor of the church, who is on vocation.

Baptist Hour Changed

The National Baptist Radio Hour, formerly heard at 9 a. m., has been changed to 8:05 a. m. Sundays over Station WPIK, Alexandria. The Rev. Robert F. McFarlane, Baptist minister and evangelist, is director of the program.

Col. Closson To Be Made Deacon Today

Col. Earle R. Closson (U.S.A., ret.) will be ordained to the Episcopal diaconate at 10 a. m. today at St. Paul's Church, 2430 K st. nw.

Colonel Closson, who retired from the Army in 1945 after service in both World Wars, is director of foreign languages in the School of Social Sciences and Public Affairs at American University.

A graduate of Clark University, Worcester, Mass., he did graduate work at McGill University, Montreal, the University of Caen, France, and received his master's degree from Lafayette College, Easton, Pa.

He has studied theology privately and taken courses at the Virginia Theological Seminary, Alexandria.

Colonel Closson has been headmaster of several boys' schools, including Admiral Farragut Academy in New Jersey, and has taught on college faculties. During World War II he served on the General Staff Corps at headquarters of the First Army and Eastern Defense Command. In 1945 he was in Germany and Japan with the United States strategic bombing survey.

The colonel, who lives at 5714 Roosevelt st., Bethesda, has served as a vestryman of St. Paul's Church for several years. Following his ordination he will serve as assistant to the Rev. James Richards, rector of St. Paul's.

The Right Rev. Wallace J. Gardner, Bishop of New Jersey, will officiate at the ordination at the request of the Right Rev. Angus Dun, Bishop of Washington, who is now in England.

Preacher will be the Rev. Charles W. Lowery, rector of All Saint's, Chevy Chase, and secretary of the standing committee of the Diocese of Washington.

Colonel Closson will be presented to the Bishop by Father Richards, and the litany will be read by the Rev. Arlington A. McCallum, rector emeritus, of St. Paul's. The Rev. Robert C. Keil, rector of Emmanuel Church, Anacostia, will be the priest assistant.

U. S. Church Membership At New High

More Americans than ever before in history are church members, according to Dr. Samuel McCrea Cavert, general secretary of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

Writing in the foreword to the 1949 issue of the Yearbook of American Churches, published yesterday, Dr. Cavert said that slightly over half of the population now belongs to some church.

Recent estimates have placed the Nation's population at 148 million, he said, pointing out that according to the yearbook compilation there are 76 million church members. One hundred and fifty years ago, he said, only 1 person in 15 was a church member.

In round numbers there are 45 million Protestants, 25 million Roman Catholics, 5 million Jews and 1 million members of the Eastern Orthodox Church, Dr. Cavert said.

76 million church members are split among more than 250 separate and independent church bodies listed in the book.

Ninety-seven per cent of all church members, however, are found on the rolls of the 50 largest denominations, and eight denominational families include 80 per cent of all Protestants. These eight groups are the Baptist, Methodist, Presbyterian, Reformed, Disciples of Christ, Protestant Episcopal, Congregational and the Evangelical United Brethren.

Dr. Cavert noted that 14 church unions have taken place during the past 40 years. Among the most noteworthy, he said, were the merger of three groups to form the Methodist Church, the union of the Evangelical and the United Brethren, and the recently approved union of the Congregational Christian Churches and the Evangelical and Reformed Church.

In spite of the fact that, on the surface, at least, the United States appears to be a religious Nation, there is a wide discrepancy between church membership and church attendance, he noted. Recent surveys have shown that in typical communities on any Sunday except Easter, only 30 per cent of those on the church rolls attend a service, Dr. Cavert said.

Vatican Denies Ban Meddles in Politics

Vatican City, July 15 (AP).—The Vatican organ L'Osservatore Romano, today denied leftist charges that the Roman Catholic Church is meddling in politics by excommunicating Catholics who are active Communists.

The excommunication decree's "essentially religious nature, which cannot justify any objection whatever, has everywhere been identified," the Vatican newspaper said.

Communist newspapers across Europe—except in some iron curtain countries where censorship has banned publication of the decree—charged the church had stepped out of its religious sphere and was meddling in politics. The Vatican decree, published Wednesday, ruled that Catholics who continue to support communism will be excommunicated—that is, deprived of the blessing and sacraments of the church.

L'Osservatore Romano indicated the drastic step was dictated by the struggle of the church in Communist-dominated eastern Europe.

"The urgency of the decree was indicated by the most grievous facts abroad which appear in the news columns every day," the newspaper declared.

Charges that the church is enmeshed in politics, the paper said, have been made by Communists since they launched their battle "against every faith, particularly the Christian faith and inexorably against the Catholic Church."

It called the excommunication decree a "provident act in defense of religion and Christian civilization."

The Holy Office has issued no public explanation on how the Catholic clergymen scattered throughout the world are to apply the decree. Some Vatican sources, however, emphasized that the burden of following the church rules falls more on the faithful themselves than on the clergy. It is not expected, these sources said, that the clergy will conduct a "witch hunt" for Communists in their parishes.

[The United Press quoted Vatican sources as saying Catholic politicians and students who wish to may read Communist publications as part of their work upon approval of their local bishops despite the Holy Office excommunication ban against communism.]

Reds Say Papal Ban Violates Sovereignty

New York, July 15 (AP).—The Daily Worker said today a Vatican warning that excommunication faces all Catholic Communists constitutes "a political action disguised as a religious one."

The Communist Party newspaper said in an editorial that the recent decree of Pope Pius XII "clearly violates the sovereignty of nations."

The editorial declared that the Vatican never had excommunicated "a single Nazi, Fascist, anti-Semite, or Axis war criminal.

"On the contrary, the Vatican openly supports and abets fascism in Spain, just as the Vatican's agent in Austria, Cardinal Innitzer, welcomed the Hitler armies as liberators; just as the Vatican's priest Tiso acted as direct agent of the Berlin Fascists in Slovakia."

Protestants Critical

London, July 15 (U.P.).—Leaders of the Protestant world agreed today that Communism is "incompatible" with Christianity, but they were sharply critical of the Roman Catholic "crusade" against the Reds.

March Boegner, joint president of the Non-Catholic World Council of Churches, and three other members of the council's central committee rejected the idea that the church must "declare war" on communism.

The committee meeting at Chichester, approved a resolution condemning the domination of minority religions by churchly majorities after British Methodist Leader M. E. Aubrey had declared that Catholic domination of Protestants in Spanish-speaking countries is worse than Red oppression of churches.

Cleric's Will

Catholic U. Gets Bulk Of Estate

Msgr. John M. Cooper, head of the anthropological department of Catholic University, who died May 22, left an estate of $17,296, the bulk of which will go to the university, it was disclosed in a petition for probate of his will filed in District Court yesterday.

All the estate was in personal property. His will, filed with the petition, gives $2500 to the Catholic Anthropological Conference, of this city; $500 to a cousin, Genevieve Kelly of McArthur, Ohio; $500 to another cousin, Edward H. Thomson of Baltimore, and $500 to the Rev. Louis A. Arand of Catholic University.

To an associate in the field of anthropology, Mrs. Regina Flannery Herzfeld of Catholic University, Monsignor Cooper left his scientific instruments, camping equipment, books and field notes.

The remainder of the estate, including royalties from books, goes to Catholic University.

Pentagon Florist Fined for Failing To Renew License

Raymond Wolfe, trading as Ray's Flower Shop in the Pentagon, yesterday was fined $20 and costs in Arlington County Court for failure to renew his State business license before it expired.

Wolfe, one of five Arlington businessmeh found guilty of the charge this week, received the stiffest penalty meted out to date for the offense by Trial Justice Hugh Reid.

Similar $20 fines were suspended in three other cases and a $5 fine was suspended in a fourth.

Wolfe failed to appear in court Tuesday in answer to a summons and was arrested prior to his trial yesterday.

HISTORIC—The Rev. Thomas Donaldson delivers a rededication address in the Angelican church at Wye Mills, Md. The church, erected in 1721 on the site of an earlier sanctuary believed to have been built in 1650, has been restored after two years' work and was rededicated Wednesday. The original brick floor leads to the sanctuary, where the original communion silver were used at the service. The church building and a restored vestry house nearby are lighted by brass wall candlesticks with hurricane shades

Glenn Martin Moves Up to Chairmanship

Glenn Luther Martin, pioneer plane builder, pilot, and armorer of the United States and Allies in two world wars, officially "stepped upstairs" yesterday and out of executive control of his own company.

Meeting at Baltimore, the company's board of directors created a new position for him, chairman of the board. In his place as president, the board appointed C. C. Pearson of Skyview, N. Y., formerly an officer of Douglas Aircraft Co., Inc., and the Curtiss-Wright Corp. Pearson will be executive head of the Glenn L. Martin Co.

The board also accepted the resignations of two member-officers, Harry T. Rowland, executive vice president and formerly sales vice president; and Morgan R. Schermerhorn, jr., vice president-controller.

One company official said that their problems are principally of sales. He pointed out that a number of aviation companies announced intention of buying the new Martin 2-0-2 airliner, but have been unable to do so.

The board of directors elected Pearson one of its members. Then it advanced a number of other company officials. Daniel A. Evatt, treasurer, becomes vice president-finance. W. L. Lucas advanced from assistant treasurer to treasurer; Earl R. Uhlig from assistant controller to controller; Franklin M. Beall became assistant controller; and Robert A. Schmidt, assistant secretary.

Falls Church Waterworks Saving Seen

Falls Church will probably save from $50,000 to $200,000 on installation of its new "million-dollar" water system, due to the steady reduction in steel tubing prices over the past year, City Attorney LaRue Van Meter disclosed yesterday.

Van Meter made the statement after a conference with Mayor Albert M. Orme and City Treasurer James E. Ferguson.

The water system, scheduled for completion by September, will increase the city's present volume of supply about eight times. A one-million-dollar bond issue to finance it was floated after residents voted 8-to-1 approval in February, 1948.

Van Meter explained yesterday any savings in construction costs would have to be used for further water system construction or improvement.

Retired Colonel Found in Hotel, Wrists Slashed

Retired Army Col. Bream Coley Patrick, 42, yesterday was found unconscious in his room at the Washington Hotel with his wrists slashed.

Patrick, adopted son of the late Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, who was the first chief of the Army Air Corps and former member of the PUC of the District, was taken to Gallinger Hospital. His condition was reported serious.

The hotel said Patrick had been a guest since May 2. He was registered from Sarasota, Fla. He formerly lived at 3010 Albemarle st. nw.

Power Union Confers With Cooperative

Baltimore, July 15 (AP).—Management and union representatives met with a State mediator today and adjourned without reaching agreement in a long contract dispute at the Southern Maryland Electrical Cooperative, Inc.

Joseph F. DiDomenico, Maryland Commissioner of Labor, said the meeting was cordial. He expressed belief the opposing parties will get together without a strike.

DiDomenico reported no actual progress was made in agreeing on them. He expects them to meet next week.

The commissioner said proposals were exchanged by management and the AFL's International Brotherhood of Electric Workers He did not disclose details.

The union, which represents most of the 75 employes at the Hughesville, (Md.), plant, has been seeking higher wages, a union shop agreement and extra pay for night work.

Today's meeting was scheduled shortly after DiDomenico averted a walkout June 20.

5 Shots Fired On Lawyer in Anti-Klan Suit

Atlanta, July 15 (U.P.).—Five shots were fired into the home of a young attorney here late last night, only a few hours after he filed suit for a war veteran seeking court protection from violence at the hands of the Ku Klux Klan.

Attorney Samuel D. Johnson, 25, said he was awakened by the slugs crashing into his house in suburban Decatur shortly before midnight. He said he found a wooden cross blazing in his front yard.

Earlier yesterday Johnson and his partner sought a Superior Court injunction against the Klan Grand Dragon, Dr. Samuel Green, and his followers to restrain them from molesting Hugh Gilliland, 29-year-old Atlanta veteran.

Their petition said Gilliland had been threatened that "the night riders would ride against him if he didn't straighten up."

Court Refuses to Free Jailed Klan Official

Montgomery, Ala., July 15 (U.P.).—The Alabama Supreme Court today refused to free a Ku Klux Klan official from a jail sentence imposed for his refusal to show a Klan roster to the Jefferson County grand jury.

At the same time, a new grand jury's investigation of the North Alabama hooded violence was interrupted by the disclosure that one juryman was a Ku Klux Klansman and another a former convict.

The high court denied a writ of certiorari sought by William Hugh Morris to bring about his release on the ground that his sentence by Circuit Judge Robert J. Wheeler in Birmingham was improper.

The petition was denied "upon the principle that the petition shows that this was direct contempt committed in the presence of the court."

"I'll stay in jail 100 years before I reveal all the Klan's members in Jefferson County," Morris said.

Michigan Family Struck by Polio 3 Times in 5 Days

Lansing, Mich., July 15 (U.P.).—Polio struck for the third time in five days today in the family of Mrs. Margaret Taylor.

Sunday, her 16-month-old daughter, Susan, was stricken. Yesterday, Mrs. Taylor's husband, Calvin, a 22-year-old machine operator, died of polio.

Today, an ambulance took Calvin's sister, 12-year-old Carolyn, to a hospital—third victim of infantile paralysis in the family in five days.

Infant, Maternal Mortality Shows Marked Decline Here

A marked reduction in infant and maternal mortality in the District during the past few years was reported yesterday by the District of Columbia Section of the American Academy of Pediatrics.

General child care—including that of private physicians, community health services and hospitals—was found to rate generally high compared with national conditions, but a number of improvements were recommended.

The survey was made by a committee of the District section and covers the six years between 1942-1947, but the recommendations and much of the data apply to present conditions, according to the report. Some sections of the survey cover the two adjacent Maryland counties and Arlington and Alexandria, Va., as well as the District.

All-Time Low in 1947

The infant mortality rate in the District reached an all-time low in 1947 of 31.9 per 1000 live births, or 37 per cent lower than in 1942, as compared with a Nationwide drop of 20 per cent, the report states.

Similarly, maternal mortality dropped 61 per cent to an all-time low of 10.6 per 10,000 births, as compared with a reduction of 48 per cent for the Nation in the same period, according to the pediatrics group.

However, a relatively high rate for Negro women was cited, with the recommendation that "every effort should be made to identify the causes" and to correct them.

The proportion of children per physician in the District—135—was better than in the suburban areas and better than in any of the 48 States, according to the report.

However, the committee recommends that since "general practitioners care for a large number of children" in the Washington metropolitan area, more undergraduate and graduate instruction in pediatrics be made available to all physicians.

Hospital Beds Needed

The need for more hospital beds for children in the suburban area, and particularly for Negro children, is obvious, the committee found. Findings of the study also indicate a need for improving pediatric and new-born infant services in the area, according to the report.

Other measures recommended are:

Provision or increase of social services, termed "inadequate" in the District; more dental clinics, particularly for Negro children; more facilities for care of handicapped children; more public health nurses, and more school physicians.

The survey committee was headed by Dr. Edgar P. Copeland, vice chairman of the medical staff of Children's Hospital. Other members were Drs. William S. Anderson, Ethel C. Dunham, William A. Howard, Preston A. McLendon and Joseph S. Wall.

Cooperating in the work were the U. S. Children's Bureau, the U. S. Public Health Service, medical and dental societies, hospitals and community health agencies.

Nats' Six-Run Eighth Inning Beats Out Chisox, 9-4

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

THE HURT IN THE TONE of Bobo Newsom was unmistakable, despite the bad connection on the telephone circuit to Chattanooga. For the first time in his life, probably, the big guy, known as the only human able to strut while sitting down, was plaintive.

"I didn't think they'd do this to me," said Bobo.

Thus he lightly shifted to the Chattanooga Club and its president, Joe Engel, the entire onus for the latest Bobo Newsom adventure, which finds him jobless and under suspension.

POVICH

All that Newsom did, you undoubtedly know, was to jump the Chattanooga club. Well, he didn't exactly jump. In fact, it was his refusal to accompany the team on its jump to Little Rock, that accounts for his present mess. He did go as far as the railroad station with the team, and then he announced he wasn't interested in pitching baseball any more in the minor leagues.

Just for a little thing like that, Engel got sore and said he didn't want Bobo to pitch for Chattanooga any more, and took him off the payroll. Engel flared up, that's what. Didn't watch his temper. Got sore just because Bobo eliminated the Chattanooga club, and the contract it held on him, from his future plans.

"THEY DIDN'T TREAT me right," Newsom said. "After all Ive done for this Washington organization. Pitched my head off for Clark Griffith and then packed 'em in for Chattanooga. They gave me the run-around. Didn't keep their promise.

Their promise, according to Newsom, was that Engel would help him return to the major leagues. "Engel said he contacted all the big clubs and that they didn't want me," said Newsom. "I didn't believe it when he told me that, and then he gave me permission to make a deal for myself."

That's what disturbed Newsom. The first team he called, he said, an American League club, "was interested. I called Engel back and accused him of not making the try. He hung up on me. Hung up on me in my face."

He couldn't take that, Newsom said. Ball games have blown up in his face, big leads have exploded in his face, "but no man can hang up in my face and expect me to believe he tried to land me a job. I knew there were too many clubs that needed my kind of pitching to get turned down."

BOBO WOULDN'T WANT it generally known, at least not beyond the Western Hemisphere, but he broke down and admitted on the telephone that "between you and me, I never pitched better or had more stuff before in my life. Been throwing a knuckler that kills 'em. Ask Jake Early, he caught me in Chattanooga."

Early, who joined the Nats last week, actually had said the same thing. Bobo was, indeed, wowing 'em in the Southern Association with a record of ten wins and seven defeats for a club that spent most of the time in seventh place and had won only 35 of its first 88 games.

"I pitched for Engel's club and won, with a broken toe," said Bobo. "I work with one day's rest, and two days' rest, whenever they were in a spot. They were a tough club to win for, but I win three games in a row by 3-2 scores."

He said he was thinking he'd catch on with the Washington club and his friend Clark Griffith, until this thing blew up, but now he said he guessed that was out.

"MR. GRIFFITH LIKES me, I know that," said Newsom, quite unaware that earlier the same day the Nats' owner characterized Newsom as a contract-jumper who never again would be welcomed by the Nats.

"Mr. Griffith would have taken me back last spring," said Bobo, "but Joe Kuhel cooked me. Kuhel doesn't like me. Well, that makes us even. I don't like Kuhel."

When this bureau telephoned Engel at Chattanooga to recite Newsom's complaints, the connection was surprisingly better. Crystal clear came Engel's version of the Newsom run-out:

"He gave me a dirty deal. Now I'm kinda mad. I won't sell him or let him go. He'll have to sit the rest of the season out. If he had listened to me, I'd have had him back in the big leagues in 10 days.

"Of all the screwy things to pull. Hes suspended the rest of the year without pay. That Newsom can botch things even better than I can," concluded the laughing boss of the Chattanooga club.

Macks Blast Feller, 8-0, Snap Streak With Fowler

Cleveland, July 15 (AP).—The Philadelphia Athletics knocked Bob Feller out of the box tonight and defeated the Cleveland Indians, 8-0, for their first victory in seven starts.

Pitcher Dick Fowler again made the World Champs look bad with his so-called nothing ball. He allowed seven hits and beat them for the third time this season.

Fowler, whose sore arm seems to help, let two Indians reach third base and permitted only one extra base hit, a double by Jim Hegan in the second inning.

A crowd of 45,693 watched Feller again drop below the .500 mark. It was his seventh loss against six victories.

A ground ball struck third baseman Hank Majeski on the right knee in the fourth inning. Pete Suder played out the game for him.

Pollet Hurls, Bats Cards to 1-0 Victory

Philadelphia, July 15 (AP).—Howie Pollet pitched and batted the St. Louis Cardinals to a 1-0 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies tonight. He held the Phils to six hits and drove in the winning run with a single in the seventh.

The score was just the reverse of last night's game, when the Phils beat the Cards 1-0 on Del Ennis' ninth-inning homer.

Pollet's victory was his third shutout, his eleventh triumph in his last 13 games and No. 12 for the season.

The Cards scored the game's only run in the seventh after two were out. Robin Roberts walked Eddie Kazak for one of the two passes he handed out.

The St. Louis third baseman went to third on Joe Garagiola's hit through Dick Sisler. Pollet then singled over second to drive in Kazak. Gran Hamner made a fine stop but his throw to first bounced into the stands.

Enos Slaughter robbed the Phils of two scoring chances. He made a slide on his elbows to take a hit away from Richie Ashburn with one on in the third. An inning later he scaled the left field wall to rob Willie Jones of a double.

Snead Leads With 2d 67

Pittsburgh, July 15 (AP).—Sammy Snead shrugged off a storm and a bad hole today to shoot his second straight 67 and take the lead in the $16,500 Dapper Dan Open Golf Tournament.

Snead's total of 134 for 36 holes put him three strokes ahead of Dick Metz of Virginia Beach, Va., who also had a 67 today.

That 67 is five under par for the 6850-yard Alcoma Golf Club course, where par is 36-36—72.

Delayed by a driving rainstorm, Snead needed five strokes on the par three, 250-yard second hole, but from there on he played virtually perfect golf.

Bobby Cruickshank, little Pittsburgh veteran, had a hole in one on the same hole where Snead had his only trouble. Metz covered the short back nine in 31 for his 67 after a first-round 71.

Gene Webb, of Clayton, Mo., also had a 67 today to enter a three-way tie for third place at 138. Deadlocked with him were Dapper Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago, who finished in the rain for a 71, and Otto Greiner of Baltimore, who came in with 70.

Fred Haas, jr., of New Orleans, who had a 66 yesterday and Henry Ransom of St. Andrews, Ill., who had the same score for today's best round, tied at 139.

Herman Barron, who had a 67 yesterday, also skipped to a 73 to join Jim Ferrier, Johnny Bulla, and Ted Luther in the 140 bracket.

Macks Sign Augie Galan

Cleveland, July 15 (U.P.).—Outfielder Augie Galan, who played with four clubs during his 16 years in the National League, was signed today by the Philadelphia Athletics a few minutes after being released outright by the New York Giants.

The veteran Galan, who batted over .300 during six seasons, had seen only limited pinch-hitting service with the Giants and his batting average was only .059.

Manager Connie Mack said he intended to put the 37-year-old native of Berkeley, Calif., in the Philadelphia lineup as soon as he joins the club in Detroit, Sunday.

Key Volo's $43 Win Probed

Race Commission Suspends 2 At Laurel on Saliva Evidence

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

For the second time in Maryland's two-year harness racing history, an owner and trainer were suspended yesterday at Laurel Raceway after their recent winner showed a positive saliva test.

Banned, pending a hearing before the Racing Commission at Baltimore next Thursday, were Owner George P. Woodley, Roseboro, N. C., and Trainer-Driver Harold Harden, Smithfield, N. C.

Key Volo, $43.20 winner in the fourth race Monday night, is the horse suspected of being doped. In four previous starts at Laurel, the 6-year-old pacer finished dead last three times and next to last another.

It was just a month ago that the commission said it would give the "benefit of the doubt" to Jimmy and Alan Myer after their Rosecroft winner, Miss Bonnie Lassie, showed traces of a barbital derivative.

The Bridgeville, Del., brothers were reinstated although Chairman H. Courtenay Jenifer pointed out the "corrupt practices" section of Maryland's racing rules makes the trainersolely responsible for guarding his horse from stimulative or depressive drugs.

At that time, Jenifer said "We reluctantly find the receiving barn itself was not adequately protected and management of it was not free from adverse criticism."

Jenifer added the commission would take immediate steps to insure better protection of harness horses in the paddock area.

In the race Monday, a 6-furlong test, Key Volo got off in front, lost the lead once, pulled away and won easily by 2½ lengths over another outsider, Iva May Win.

Most of the $30,242 wagered on the race was on the $1.90 to $1 favorite, Myrtle Chief, which finished third.

Across the board return on Key Volo was $43.20, $24.20 and $10.60.

Harden's pacer was a winner at a mile at Rosecroft Raceway in 2:11 but hasn't done a thing since. In fact, Key Volo has been notorious for breaking gait.

On July 6, going off at $13.60 to $1, Key Volo broke at the start, again went off the pace and finished dead last in the 10-horse field. It was a repetition of two previous Laurel performances, July 1 and June 27.

Key Volo's last start at Rosecroft, June 22, also was marred by a break at the start and the horse trailed six other pacers.

A saliva test is taken of every winner immediately after a race at the track, but the specimen is sent to the Racing Commission's chemists in Baltimore for analysis.

When they discover an apparent positive reaction, they check and double-check.

When they're convinced of their findings, they noitfy the commission which in turn informs its representative at the track.

At Laurel, Presiding Judge Wayne Groves is the man who put into effect the automatic suspension of Woodley and Harden. The accused may be represented by counsel at Thursday's hearing before the three-man commission.

Rena Grattan Sets Laurel Track Record

Joe Hylan's Rena Grattan sped to a new pacing record at Laurel Raceway last night to interrupt an astounding longshot parade.

Rena Grattan paced the mile in 2.04 2/5 to lower convincingly the old mark of 2.05 1/5 held by William E. Miller's Henry Volo.

The victory was the eleventh of the meet for Hylan, top driver here and at Rosecroft. His mare paid $5.80 in turning back Handy Newsboy and Flo Napoleon.

Rena Grattan was the first favorite to win before the crowd of 8517. Undaunted by the fancy prices, the fans wagered $314,180 on the eight-race card.

Olive Kuno, 3-year-old driven by Bob Housel, got the longshot chain started early, winning the first race to return a juicy $62.20, $35.60 and $14.20.

The two combined to return a $379.20 daily double payoff to 31 lucky customers.

There was no letup in the third, a 6-furlong trot taken by Kathey Hanover, Laurel favorite who rewarded her faithful backers at the rate of $16 for each deuce wagered.

Fletcher Hanover, at a neat $25.40, won the fourth to cause more anguish to the frustrated favorite bettors.

Parker Gains Tennis Finals

Chicago, July 15 (AP).—The expected Pancho Gonzales-Frankie Parker showdown for the National Clay Courts tennis title today was half in the making as Parker bounced into the finals with his hardest-earned victory of the tournament.

Parker, five times winner of this meet and second seeded, had to get down to real business for a 6—3, 7—5, 6—3 semifinal triumph over Herbert Flam, former National Junior champion from Beverly Hills, Calif.

The other semifinal match—between top-seeded and defending champion Gonzales and third-seeded Vic Seixas of Philadelphia—will be played tomorrow. The championship tangle will be Sunday.

In the men's doubles quarterfinals, Sam Match, San Francisco, and Seixas beat Don Lowenbein, San Francisco, and Clarke Taylor, Chapel Hill, N. C., 6—3, 6—4, 6—3.

D. C. Fireaters Lose, 4-2, to New Yorkers

By West McLean
Post Reporter

The New York firemen came to town last night and the Washington firemen were cordial to their fellow smoke-eaters. They gave them three runs, two unearned, in the first inning and never got back into the ball game as New York won, 4-2, at Griffith Stadium before an estimated 8000.

Washington pitcher, Buddy Wickers, walked the first two men to face him. Then Ed Als laid down a sacrifice bunt which Wickers fielded and then threw wildly past first baseman Bill Moore to allow two runs.

After Herb White filed out to deep right center, Joe Veth lashed a sharp single between first and second to score the third run and the one which proved to be the margin of victory.

New York seemed determined not to be outdone in hospitality, starting off by fumbling Bernie Cady's infield roller and Johnny Miggins threw over Veth's head. Ken Auer helped the Washington rally along by walking George Larrick and then an infield out from Bob Mendes at short to Miggins at second allowed Cady to score.

Bill Vaughn hit an easy roller to First Baseman Joe Veth. And Ken Auer registered the first of his nine strikeouts at the expense of Barney Wallerstein to end the inning.

Washington scored again in the second on a double by Vince Largos and a single by Bill Moore, but Auer ended that rally by fanning the next three men.

New York added another run for insurance in the sixth when, after one was out, Leftfielder Hal Krug dropped Dan Hayes' fly and then threw wildly to second trying to trap him. When Bob Mendes followed with a routine grounder to shortstop George Larrick, Washington fans breathed easier, but Larrick threw wild to first and Hayes scored from second.

Tigers Snap Bosox Streak

Detroit, July 15 (AP).—Detroit's hit-hungry Tigers burst out in a rash of 17 safe blows today to whip Boston, 8 to 7, and snap the Red Sox's eight-game winning streak.

The Sox, who collected 10 hits in all off Starter Hal Newhouser, Freddie Hutchinson and Trout, got off to a two-run lead in the first on Vern Stephens' twenty-first home run of the year with Ted Williams aboard.

Center Fielder Dom DiMaggio was lost to the Red Sox for two or three days today as the result of badly-swollen right thumb caused when he was struck by a ball last night.

Yost, Mele Top 18-Hit Attack as Hittle Wins

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Comiskey Park, Chicago, July 15.—Make it 9-4, the Nats over the White Sox today, and if you're inclined to disbelieve it, so did the 3619 fans who saw it.

There they were, were those Wondrous Nats, only six outs away from a 4-2 licking which would have left them only one-half game away from seventh place.

But by the end of the eighth inning, they had routed two Chicago pitchers, shoved over six runs and regained their precious 2½-game lead over the seventh place Chisox.

Eighteen hits—their highest of the season—went into the Nats victory with Sam Mele and Eddie Yost making the biggest noises with their bats.

Yost got two singles and his fifth homer while Mele, continuing to thrive on Chicago hurling, got four singles and drove in three runs. Eddie Stewart wasn't exactly a pushover at the plate either, lacing out three singles.

All of this added up to a victory for Rookie Lloyd Hittle, who worked only the seventh inning after starter Mickey Harris had been retired with a 4-2 deficit. Al Gettel, making his second appearance in the park he was employed until Wednesday, worked a scoreless eighth and ninth for the Nats, giving up the eleventh White Sox hit.

Six hits went into the six-run Washington eighth, but an error by Shortstop Luke Appling on Clyde Vollmer's easy grounder started the parade which sent 11 Nats to the plate.

After Eddie Robinson had followed with a single and Al Kozar had forced him, Sam Dente legged out a hit to third to score Vollmer. Al Evans' single to short right loaded the bases and up stepped Buddy Lewis to unload a pinch-single to right to score Kozar with the second run of the inning and tie the game, 4-4.

Lewis' looping hit also removed Starter Bill Wight and his first successor, former Nat Alejandro Carrasquel, was welcome relief—for the Nats. He walked Yost to force in another run. Stewart's fly brought in the fourth tally and Mele's fifth single accounted for the fifth and sixth runs of the big outing.

Two walks, Evans' second single and a force out by Gettel added up to the ninth Nats' run in the ninth off Matt Surkont, who had to bail out Carrasquel in the turbulent eighth.

Both teams scored in the first inning and the Nats went one up in the third when Yost slapped a homer into the left center stands. But Cass Michaels, who got three of Chicago's 11 hits, punched out his second single to score Appling in the same inning and tie the game again.

Two more singles and a long fly by Charlie Kress made it 3-2 Chicago, off Harris in the fifth. Wight, who yielded 14 hits in absorbing his seventh licking, scored for the Sox in the sixth when Harris walked George Metkovich with the bases loaded.

That made it 4-2 and that's the way it stood when the situation got out of the Chicagoan's hand.

IN SHORT—There were almost as many baseball players in the stands as customers. One hundred Chicago Junior American Legion teams were guests of the Sox . . . Yost's hit in the first inning was through the courtesy of Luke Appling who lost his pop fly in the sun . . . Dave Philley committed highway robbery on Eddie Robinson in the sixth, making a one-handed shoestring catch of his whistling line drive which was earmarked two-base hit . . . the Nats haven't won a series since mid-June when they took two out of three from the Browns and the last one they had won before then was when they swept three from the same Brownies June 2-3-4. Chico Pieretti, former Griffith Stadium employe, duels against Ray Scarborough in tomorrow's getaway game. Pieretti has a 3-4 record, Scarborough 7-5.

'On Friendly Basis'

Griff Still Plans to Let Haefner Go

Unwavering in his decision to dispose of Pitcher Mickey Haefner, Clark Griffith announced yesterday that "it would be on a friendly basis however."

Mr. Griffith and Mickey Haefner talked on the phone this afternoon. They came to a mutual understanding. There is no ill feeling. Mickey is satisfied to go to the claiming club when waivers are asked on him July 20, Griffith said.

Haefner has been at his Athens, Ill., home since a week ago when the Nats owner summarily announced he was firing the little pitcher off the Washington club in the midst of a ball game with the Red Sox.

Griff Cites 'Fine Work'

Griffith accused Haefner of "not hustling" on a ball batted back to the pitchers mound and declared, "He'll never pitch again in a Washington uniform."

Haefner denied that he was "dogging it."

The Nats owner declared yesterday he regretted somewhat his hasty action against Haefner on the night of the game and had written the pitcher a letter expressing his appreciation for his "fine work" for the Washington club in the past.

"Haefner was completely satisfied when I talked to him on the phone," said Mr. Griffith. "He will not rejoin our team but will be kept on the payroll until he is claimed."

The rules forbid Griffith to post Haefner's name on the waiver list until July 20. Griffith declared he has assurances that Haefner will not pass out of the American League at the $10,000 waiver price.

Either the eighth-place Browns or the seventh-place White Sox, who have first chance at him, are expected to claim Haefner. The Tigers, Red Sox and Cleveland are also interested, Griffith said.

Haefner won five and lost five with Washington.

Yanks Win, Berra Stars

St. Louis, July 15 (AP).—Yankee Catcher Yogi Berra, who in three years as a major leaguer has never been able to hit a home run in his home town of St. Louis, realized a lifetime ambition by belting two of them in Sportsman's Park tonight and led New York to a 6-0 victory over the St. Louis Browns.

Pitcher Eddie Popat handcuffed the last-place Browns with a five-hit perfomance. The triumph put the front-running Yanks six and a half games ahead of the runner-up Cleveland Indians, who lost to Philadelphia.

Berra, a product of the Italian neighborhood known as the Hill, hit to the top of the right-field pavilion with Joe DiMaggio on base in the fourth. In the sixth Berra blasted another pitch by Ned Garver to the same pavilion roof.

The homers were Berra's ninth and tenth for the season, and ran his total as a major leaguer to 37.

Hard-to-Find Striped Bass Are Located

By Ralph Murdock

LOCATING the striped bass has been as tough as finding a needle in haystack. Some boat captains fish for rock exclusively and carry out fishing parties that have the same preference. From Annapolis to Point Lookout on the Chesapeake and up the Potomac River to Tall Timbers these skippers are forever on the lookout for the above fish. They carry in their cabins practically every type of lure that is made and quickly attach them to the anglers' lines in a jiffy. When the fish are located they invariably make the bigger hauls.

Murdock

We have had numerous inquiries concerning the whereabouts of the stripers. We have been reliably informed that the mouth of the Chester River has been producing excellent catches for a week. The rock are not the tackle buster type but will weigh up to 4 and 5 pounds. Chumming with grass shrimp has shown best results although some 8-pounders were taken by trolling. The highest reported catch was 126. A chum line from one boat netted 60 rock and 40 hardheads.

The lower Potomac near Point Lookout also has been the scene of action for the rock in the last few days. A little farther up the historic Potomac at Cornfield Harbor a fishing boat docked with a half bushel basket of 1¼-pound bluefish. The latter were taken with peeler crab as bait while still fishing.

FISHING BOATS to Sharp's Light, Poplar Island and the Gooses had poor fishing luck as far as the hardheads were concerned. Small catches of croakers and a few "shutouts" were recorded.

Dr. John C. Sullivan, Herbert Goodman, R. C. Smith and the writer went to Sharp's. A total of 28 fish was the result which included one bluefish about 1½-pounds and 10 spot. Capt. Will Langrall was the skipper. While we were having our fish cleaned Elliot and Bob Solow, brothers, came in with 30 hardheads and one trout that they had just caught while fishing from a rowboat. (Were our faces red?)

While fishing at Sand Gates on the Patuxent River, China Reed, Linton Reed, jr., and Jules Mack nabbed 12 hardheads. The fish averaged 2½ pounds each.

J. W. Diller, Frank Samuel and Red Going had a catch consisting of 7 jumbo-size croakers, 2 trout and 28 spot. The three species of fish were taken on three different baits—frozen shrimp, peelers and bloodworms.

Joseph Simpson, his wife, Stella, Danny Ambrosio, his wife, Sally, and Wilbur Lear brought in 15 hardheads and one pan sized rock in 2½ hours. They fished from their outboard motorboat off Franklin Manor.

HOW ABOUT THIS ONE? Here are nine Washingtonians who caught 50 flounder without even using a boat. They surf fished from shore on Assateague Island near Chincoteague. They fished with minnows which they caught while camping on the island for two days. The vacationists are Robert Carroll, Franklin Carroll, Alfred Purdy and Alfred, jr., Karl Hoffman, Billy Hoffman, Lester B. Thompson and James Melton.

Cacique 2d Beats Icky For Place

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., July 15.—Marvin and Moore's Sun Call, carrying top weight of 119 pounds drove to victory in the William E. Flannery Purse, feature of the Friday program here.

Under Jockey Freddy Kratz's handling, the four-year-old finished three lengths in front of Tyson Gilpin's Cacique 2d with Harry Zook's Icky, the favorite, in third position in the field of seven.

Sun Call returned a $7.40 mutuel and was clocked in 1:27 3-5, creditable time for the about seven furlongs contested over a track labeled slow as the result of rain yesterday and last night.

Fifth Win This Year

The victory was the fifth of the year for Sun Call who has been in the payoff lineup in 11 of 13 outings.

With Icky performing in rather dull fashion following his recent victory, there was little to the race except Sun Call. The four-year-old didn't give his backers any anxious moments being in front after the first few jumps.

Cacique 2d made the only appreciable move, rallying under the urging of Jockey Stanley Austin. However, the South American-bred hung in the final drive. Icky appeared to flounder in the going and was never closer than four lengths off the leader.

Palumbo Has Two Winners

Jockey Sammy Palumbo rode two winners for the day both in the colors of the Montross Stables. He brought Four Ply home in the third race at $9.40 mutuel and won the fifth with Ariel Nymph in a tight nose finish, the mare paying $5.

The daily double 3 and 7 paid $16.40. Johnny Tammaro booted the estate of R. H. Covington's Weatherman home at $4.80 in the first race and Buddy Root booted Galt Davis' Binge into the wire in the second at $6.

STRIDE FOR STRIDE—That's not a loosely-used expression in describing this picture of Flying Tartar (left), with Jimmy Thompson up, and His Honor, Ed McMullen riding. The thoroughbreds' legs are in exactly the same position as they head down the stretch in the first at Monmouth Park yesterday. His Honor faded, however, and Flying Tartar had to hold off Phara Surprise, who sneaked up from extreme left, to win

DEAR FOLKS:

Seventy days of racing, the longest stand ever made at one track in the east, comes to an end with the Saturday program. Racing Secretary Freddie Burton has arranged an excellent valedictory card to be featured by the Villa Maria purse with a limit field assured. Mrs. E. B. Lee's Maxim Miss and Wayne Kendrick's Sure Gift are likely to vie for favoritism. Two other allowance races are on the program. Teaville Farms Kitty Kilts is expected to draw most of the play in the seventh event at four and a half furlongs and Rube Weller's Snow Storm may draw the bulk of the play in the eighth at a mile and a quarter. Get-away day, see you on the rail.

BILL.

Atherton Wins Junior Title; Bradford Boys Tennis King

By Jules Loh

Top seeded Charley Atherton of Charleston, W. Va., won the Middle Atlantic Junion Tennis championship yesterday by downing Washington's Ted Rogers in straight sets, 6—2, 6—4, 6—2, at Columbia Country Club.

Rogers warded off match point four times before Atherton, the Pennsylvania State Champion, climaxed the battle with the only service ace of the day.

In the boy's division, 15-year-old Tommy Bradford of Washington defeated Massie Valentine of Richmond, Va. in quick 6—2, 6—2 sets.

By reaching the finals in this sectional championship, all four boys qualified for the National Championships starting in Kalamazoo, Mich., August 1.

Kay Fletcher Wins Junior Golf Crown

Fletcher downed Winston Sutter, 2 and 1, to gain the final while Foster was beating Denny Bolster, 1 up.

The final match was even at the turn with both boys shooting 40s. Fletcher forged into the lead on the short No. 12 hole and lengthened his lead on the fifteenth, both time with pars as Foster went one over on both holes.

Foster had trouble with his drive on the fifteenth and his younger opponent took full advantage of the mishap to take his eventual margin of victory as the match finished out with both boys parring the remaining holes.

Mike Mehr was taken ill before his final match with Stuart Bowen and was unable to play. Thus Bowen became the winner of the second flight.

CHAMPIONSHIP FLIGHT

Semifinal round—Dick Foster defeated Dennis Bolster, 1 up. Kay Fletcher defeated Winston Sutter, 2 and 1.

Final—Fletcher defeated Foster, 2 and 1.

SECOND FLIGHT

Semifinals—Stuart Bowen defeated Don Kurth, 1 up 19. Mike Mehr defeated John Mawhinney, 2 up.

Final—Mehr withdrew due to illness. Bowen winner.

UNDER FOURTEEN

Semifinals—John Robison defeated Bradley Burrows, 1 up. Shelly Blitz defeated Jack Mitchell, 4 and 3.

Final—Robison defeated Blitz, 6 and 5.

Novice Skating Winner Another Cioni Protege

Although Roland Cioni, top speed roller in the country 20 years back, has never tried his own hand at figure or free skating, as a Brooklyn instructor he has developed more amateur champions than any other professional in the business.

His fifth and latest is Edna Grasso, who won the novice ladies' figure skating event yesterday in the American Amateur Championships now being held at Riverside Stadium.

Cioni's entries also took four second-place positions and three third-place spots. Last year he took nine different positions in the competition and developed the world champion team of Margaret Wallace and Norman Latin.

Mayberry Leads Caps' 16-2 Win Over Merrick

'Frisco Golfers Gain Finals

Los Angeles, July 15 (AP).—It will be an all-San Francisco show in the rival city of Los Angeles tomorrow for the 1949 National Public Links golf championship.

Twenty-year-old Ken Towns of the Bay City defeated Phil Kunkel of Salt Lake City in a semi-final match late today, one up on the thirty-sixth hole. The bitterly waged duel wasn't decided until the final green.

Bill Betger, 25-year-old San Francisco policeman, had an easier time in winning from Lou Barnes, young appliance salesman from Alhambra, 5 and 4.

Towns, handsome employe at a Burlingame golf club near his home, and personable Betger, a lefthanded golfer, will meet over the 36-hole route tomorrow at Los Angeles' new municipal course, The Rancho. It's a 6805-yard, par 35-36—71 layout.

The San Francisco monopoly delicates, with a reverse twist, the outcome of the 1937 Public Links tournament. Then Bruce McCormick and Don Erickson, both from Los Angeles, met in the finals at San Francisco for the National crown. McCormick won.

Houghton Wins MDW Golf Title At Rock Creek

Sergeant Bill Houghton, Army Medical Center, brother of Al Houghton, Prince Georges pro, yesterday won the golf championship of the Military District of Washington by defeating Master Sergt. John Holt, Fort McNair, 4 and 3, in the 36-hole final of the MDW championships at Rock Creek golf course.

Houghton and Holt gained places on the four-man team which will represent the MDW at the All-Army golf championship at Fort Sam Houston next month. They will be joined on the team by Maj. Manny Raley, Arlington Hall and Lieut. Jacob Pokras, Army Medical Center.

Mrs. Egenrode Wins At Washington

Mrs. Charles Egenrode carded an 89—8—81 to take first place in the weekly women's day tournament yesterday at the Washington Golf and Country Club.

Mrs. Conrad Seibold shot 110—28—82 to take second place while third went to Mrs. George Bailey, jr., 91—8—83.

66 Best Ball Wins At Congressional

Mrs. C. J. Matthews, Mrs. V. E. Rosden, Mrs. J. C. Spearman, and Mrs. C. E. Huntley combined for a best ball 66 to win the tournament at Congressional Country Club ladies' day yesterday. Mrs. G. B. Brumfiel, Mrs. W. B. Zleazes, Mrs. F. C. Helan, and Mrs. T. K. Wheeler shot a 71 for second place.

Kenwood Swimmers Defeat Congressional

Department Store Sales Rise Over '48

Department store sales in the Fifth Federal Reserve District in the week ended July 9 were 3 per cent higher than in the corresponding week of 1948, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond announced yesterday. Sales of Washington department stores, however, showed again of 13 per cent.

Sales in the Fifth District showed a decrease of 22 per cent from the preceding week of July 2, 1949, and a decrease of 23 per cent in Washington. The sharp decline reflects the lessened activity arising from the shortened week, caused by the July 4 holiday.

In the four week period ended July 9 sales in the Fifth District declined 1 per cent but in Washington stores they were 5 per cent greater than in the corresponding period of 1948.

REGIONAL MEETING: The Mayflower Warehouse Association of the eastern central district will hold a meeting for the members in Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware and the District of Columbia at Smith's Transfer and Storage Co., Inc., 1313 U st. nw., at 10:00 a. m. Sunday. Ward R. Scull, vice president of Newport News, will speak.

New York Cotton

New York, July 15 (AP).—Cotton futures closed steady today at gains of 15 to 55 cents a bale as a late flurry of short covering found offerings limited. The trading pace was slow, with prices moderately under the previous close most of the session. New Orleans and commission houses were sellers. Prompt of hedge selling pressure when the new crop starts moving in volume and the belief that prices are near the probable 1949 crop loan held the market in check. Crop news favored to the unfavorable side.

Pie Strikers Taking Steps To Dissuade Cafe Buyers

Pickets Are Placed Before Restaurants Whose Owners Get Bakeries' Pastry

If you like a piece of pie with your lunch, but don't like picketed pie, you may be confronted with a dilemma one of these days as you walk into your favorite restaurant.

It seems that the District's pie driver-salesmen, who have been on strike for six weeks now against the city's four major pie bakeries, are trying to curb the public's appetite for pies—or at least, for pies being sold by bakeries over the counter.

Three of the pie companies—Crusty, Perfection and Colonial—have been trying to operate on this basis for about three weeks. They can get the pies baked fairly readily, but the strike has restricted their selling to the cash and carry, nondelivered type of pies.

To discourage restaurateurs from buying the nonunion sold pastry, members of Bakery Salesmen's Local 33 (AFL), are following a plan described by Charles M. Andre, business agent.

Striking pie drivers stationed at the bakeries spot restaurant employes buying the baked goods and follow them to the eating place, he said. There, they try to persuade the manager that he's not doing right by the pie drivers.

If he doesn't agree, two pickets start patrolling the sidewalk in front of the restaurant, with signs trying to induce customers to have their ala mode dessert served without the pie. There is no attempt to keep people from going into the restaurant or from eating their fill as long as they keep away from the three-letter pastry, Andre emphasized.

Andre said some 100 restaurants around the city have been visited by the pie salesmen who are now trying to discourage sales. Several are being picketed daily.

"The pies I serve here pay my rent," said the manager of one restaurant which was pie-picketed yesterday. "I figure from past records that I'm losing about $25 a week because some customers won't eat pies that are picketed."

The union's demand for a 10 cents an hour increase has been turned down by the bakeries.

Cement Union Is Expected To End Strike

AFL cement finishers, one of the five building trades groups still in dispute over terms of new work contracts with the Master Builders Association, yesterday were reported ready to accept a wage proposal made by builders' representatives.

The proposal was said to be similar to the 10-cents-an-hour raise won by the carpenters and builders, which ended their 39-day strike early this week.

An official of the union, Cement Finishers Local 891, yesterday said the builders' offer would be formally presented to a local membership meeting Tuesday night.

"I believe it will be accepted," he declared. The cement finishers, whose base pay is now $2.25 an hour, had originally asked for a 50-cent increase.

Negotiations with the four other building trades unions whose contracts have expired and whose talks with the builders ceased during the carpenters-laborers strike will probably be resumed next week.

The four AFL groups include the rodmen (reinforced steel workers), the ironworkers, truck drivers and operating engineers.

Truck Driver Cleared In Maryland Fatality

Howard A. George, truck driver of 2147 F st. nw., was cleared yesterday of a manslaughter charge in Upper Marlboro police court.

The charge was placed after the death May 9 of Mrs. Mary E. McFarran of 1624 G st. se., in the collision of George's truck and a car in which she was a passenger. The accident occurred on Naylor rd. between Branch ave. and Suitland Parkway.

George was fined $25 for reckless drving.

Thorvald Solberg, 97, Dies; Pioneer in Copyright Law

Thorvald Solberg, first register of copyrights in the United States and international authority on copyright law, died last night at his home at Martha's Acres, Brickyard rd., Bethesda, at the age of 97.

A man who retained his physical vigor into old age, Mr. Solberg retired as head of the copyright office on his seventy-eighth birthday after his retirement was postponed four times.

He spent the rest of his life preparing bibliographies and treatises on copyright law and adding to his collection of rare books. Many of these books were lost in fires that twice destroyed his homes.

Until recently he read extensively in the five languages which he learned largely by himself.

Mr. Solberg was born in Manitowoc, Wis., the son of Norwegian immigrants. His father was a ship's ironworker who lived to be 90.

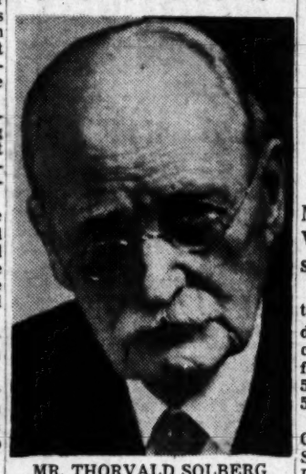
Always reserved, Mr. Solberg recalled that he was a shy youth. "I'm the man who never smoked, never drank and never danced . . . I think I would have enjoyed dancing."

For years he carried in his pocket neatly printed on a card a quotation from Marcus Aurelius: "If thou workest at that which is before thee . . . vigorously, calmly, without allowing anything to distract thee . . . thou wilt live happy and there is no man able to prevent this."

A great love of books led Mr. Solberg to leave Wisconsin when he was 17 to take a job in a bookstore in Tennessee. Later it was to lead him to Boston, the major cities of Europe and the Near East as representative of a book firm, and to the post in the Library of Congress.

Mr. Solberg recalled that when he first entered the employ of the library in 1876 the familiar gold domed building at 1st and East Capitol sts. was only a dream and the library itself was situated in a few offices in the Capitol Building.

As register of copyrights for 33 years, Mr. Solberg devoted his energies to protecting the rights of authors and composers. Many of America's greatest literary and musical figures became his friends. He compiled a catalogue of more than 3000 books and pamphlets, largely European, on copyrights. He drafted the copyright legislation that eventually became law and attended seven international copyright congresses working for improved international protection. In all he estimated he crossed the Atlantic Ocean 38 times for the Library of Congress to bring about just international copyright relations.



MR. THORVALD SOLBERG
Dies at 97

Mr. Solberg and his wife, who died in 1920, both contributed articles on their travels to American periodicals, including Harper's Magazine. After his wife's death he for a time lived at the Cosmos Club where he was a member. In recent years he has made his home with two neighbors, Mrs. Katherine S. B. Hind and Mrs. Owen Carlyle Stilley.

Mr. Solberg leaves two sisters, Miss Henrietta Solberg, who will be 90 in October, and Miss Maren Solberg, 81. Both are retired teachers living in Chicago.

Paul Mellon Gives Virginia 420-Acre Farm for Research

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Middleburg, Va., July 15.—Paul Mellon of Upperville today gave his adopted State a 420-acre farm near Middleburg to be used for grass and forage crop research by Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

The gift includes this year's crops which Mellon has partly harvested, four houses and other buildings, all equipment and "work stock" so research can "get going immediately."

The gift is about equal to an earlier gift of $125,000 by the late Andrew Mellon's son to help finance the grass research project.

Although not a native of Virginia," Mellon told a large audience at Middleburg, "during almost 15 years of residence here I have come to love this State. I wished to do something for it, and it occurred to me that anything I could do to improve Virginia's soil and to further the economic well-being of a large portion of its citizens would be fitting and most gratifying."

Mellon's forebears, best known as bankers and industrialists, originally were farmers, Mellon said. In fact, when his grandfather, Thomas Mellon, father of the late Andrew Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury in the 1920's, decided to go to the city, his father made every effort to deter him. As Mellon told the story yesterday:

"My great - great - grandfather (Archibold) was a farmer when he migrated from Ireland early in the last century. My great-grandfather (Andrew) and my grandfather (Thomas) as a boy followed him shortly after.

"My great-grandfather cleared with his own hands the land in Pennsylvania that he first settled on, and with his own hands he built his house."

He told how his grandfather studied "Murray's Latin Grammar" and read Shakespeare's plays while following the plow.

"When my grandfather was 17 (in 1830) his thirst for education had become such that he gave up farming in a rather violent manner. His father wished him to remain on the land, and offered him a farm of his own."

He then quoted the early Mellons' idea of the professions, reading from his grandfather's autobiography: His grandfather's father felt, the former wrote, "that for me to abandon the honest and noble pursuit of an independent farmer, and become a doctor or teacher or miserly dependent preacher, or, what in his eyes was worst of all, to enter the tricky, dishonest profession of law, was a proposition which seemed to him too preposterous to contemplate."

Nonetheless, his grandfather Thomas went to the city, studied law and became a judge. "Later," Mellon added, "he became a banker and founded his own bank in Pittsburgh—and in recent years we have heard some pretty hard things about that profession, too!"

"I do not claim to be a dirt farmer," Mellon said, "or a knowledgeable cattleman, or a soil scientist; but the soil is in my blood, and I feel a deep debt of gratitude to the soil of America.

In accepting the gift Dr. Walter S. Newman, president of VPI, declared he wished "to congratulate Virginia for having such people and qualities that it attracts men like Paul Mellon to become residents."

Chancellor John R. Hutcheson of VPI related the advances Virginia has made in recent years in agriculture. Potato yields have increased from 102 to 140 bushels to the acre, he said; tobacco from 685 to 1161 pounds; cotton from 259 to 422 pounds, peanuts from 810 to 1208, wheat from 12 to 18 bushels; corn from 22 to 35 bushels, etc.

Child Lured Into Woods

Man Sought in City-Wide Hunt In Assault Attempt on Girl, 4

A city-wide manhunt was being staged last night by police to find the sex pervert who attempted to assault a 4-year-old girl yesterday afternoon in the Southwest section.

The police radio blared a steady stream of leads, none of which proved correct, to suspects spotted in various sections of Washington.

The girl, daughter of a sailor, described the would-be attacker as a tall white man about 45 years old with balding white hair, wearing blue dungarees and blue shirt.

The blue dungarees and shirt led police to surmise the man was a sailor from one of the naval installations near the scene of the attempted attack.

According to the girl, the man accosted her while she was walking on Chesapeake st. and Overlook dr. sw., near the Fort Greble Playground.

As to what happened after that, the girl was not able to give a detailed account, a detective said after the child had been questioned at the Women's Bureau. Examination at Gallinger Hospital indicated the child showed no marks of an actual attack.

The girl earlier told her mother the following details, the mother informed a reporter:

A man accosted her on the street as she was returning from the playground and induced her to walk to the nearby woods with him. There he removed her underpants and her shorts. He attempted to attack her but desisted when she screamed. He gave her 25 cents "not to say anything," and dressed the child.

The mother said she got this account from the girl after she returned to their Hammock Green sw. home, with her underpants and shorts on inside out, and clutching three nickels and a dime.

Police, called by the mother, sent posses out to comb the woods. No suspects were found there.

But throughout the city a series of false clews were turned up. A 44-year-old carpenter was arrested in the Central Lunch Room, 9th and M sts. nw., on a tip from a citizen who apparently had heard the police lookout description.

The carpenter was booked on an open charge at the Second Precinct station, but was released after half an hour of questioning.

Lane to Seek To Extradite Va. Deputy

Tour by Officials Convinces Them Crabber Slain In the Free State

Annapolis, Md., July 15 (AP). Maryland's fisheries war with Virginia approached another showdown today.

Governor Lane of Maryland said today he would request the extradition of David Acree, 26, the special Virginia officer accused of fatally shooting Earl Lee Nelson, 50-year-old Crisfield crabber July 5.

Lane said Maryland Attorney General Hall Hammond and State's Attorney E. McMaster Duer of Somerset County were convinced Nelson had cruised back to Maryland before Acree went aboard from a Virginia patrol plane.

Duer worked on extradition papers tonight, Lane said.

Acree said he had boarded Nelson's boat to arrest the former Crisfield policeman for crabbing in Virginia waters. He said his rifle went off accidentally in a scuffle.

The question of whether the shooting was on the Maryland or Virginia side of the winding boundary line across Chesapeake Bay has been disputed ever since Nelson died.

Lane's decision came two days after a Virginia official claimed jurisdiction over Acree.

Commonwealth's Attorney E. Almer Ames of Accomac County said Wednesday he would seek a special grand jury to act in the case when Circuit Court reopens August 1.

Duer promptly replied he had agreed to postpone the question of jurisdiction until after a bi-State boundary survey had been completed. Ames intimated reports from Virginia representatives in the survey party led him to believe the shooting took place in Old Dominion waters.

Lifer Appeals To D. C. Court To Free Him

James Matthew Smith, 50, now serving a life sentence for a 1935 rape-murder, yesterday appeared before District Judge Jennings Bailey in a plea that the sentence be set aside.

Bailey continued the case indefinitely to give the Government time to round up witnesses, including retired Police Sergt. Walter Beck.

Smith, who was convicted of the rape-murder of Mrs. Florence Dancy, 65, of 2139 L st. nw., based his plea on a confession, later repudiated, by Jarvis Catoe, that he, Catoe, committed the crime.

Catoe was electrocuted in 1943 for another rape-murder.

Harry J. Ahern, attorney for Smith, also pleaded that his client was held for 13 days before he was arraigned.

Smith had been convicted in 1936 of raping a Rockville woman and was sentenced to serve five to seven years. A year later he was convicted of the 1935 rape-murder of Mrs. Dancy.

During the latter trial, the Government produced 25 witnesses. Smith has been incarcerated in the Springfield (Mo.) penitentiary.

Wife Is Held In Triangle Shooting Case

A wife who police say tried to erase the lines of a love triangle by shooting her husband and attempting to shoot the other woman was held in $2000 bond yesterday in Municipal Court.

According to police, Mrs. Cleopatra Branson, 40, went to the home of Gladys Harris, 32, at 200 F st. ne., Thursday night, where she shot her husband, Otho D. Branson, 42, an attorney, and attempted to shoot Miss Harris.

Police said Branson was treated at Casualty Hospital for three gunshot wounds in his left arm. Several shots were fired at Miss Harris but she was not struck, police said.

Mrs. Branson was arrested shortly after the shooting and charged with assault with intent to kill and assault with a dangerous weapon. Yesterday in Municipal Court Judge Thomas D. Quinn postponed her hearing until July 29.

According to police, Mrs. Branson, a former schoolteacher, has been living at 8 Q st. ne., and her husband at 1818 4th st. nw.

Woman, 22, Held On Dope Charge

Alethea Smith, 22, of 19 N st. nw., yesterday was held in $2500 bond for the District grand jury on charges of selling and possessing heroin illegally receiving and concealing narcotics.

The bond was set by United States Commissioner Cyril Lawrence.

The commissioner released, because of insufficient evidence, Lawrence G. Groome, 21, of 19 Todd pl. ne., who had been arrested at Miss Smith's address.

Police Pvt. Joseph A. Gabrys of the Narcotics Squad testified he arrested Miss Smith on July 14 at 1st and N sts. nw., after he had seen her selling narcotics to a known addict. Two heroin capsules were found in her possession, the officer said.

Soldier Gets 24 Years for $104 Holdup

Fort Belvoir Man Admits Mask-Gun Robbery of 3 in Alexandria June 17

A 19-year-old Fort Belvoir soldier drew a 24-year prison sentence yesterday in Alexandria Corporation Court for a $104 armed robbery of three persons in a restaurant June 17.

It was one of the speediest settlements of a major crime case in the memory of court observers. The prisoner, Corp. Charles H. McCoy, of Company C, Ninety-fourth Engineer Batallion, was before the court for only about five minutes.

Speed attended his capture, too, for McCoy was arrested a few minutes after the holdup and readily admitted the crime. He was indicted by the grand jury Thursday on three counts of robbery, one for each person robbed.

Yesterday McCoy appeared in court for arraignment along with 29 other persons indicted at the same time. McCoy pleaded guilty to the charges as read off by the clerk. He told Judge William P. Woolls he did not want a lawyer. Then he sat down again with the other prisoners.

After all the prisoners had been arraigned, Judge Woolls proceeded to dispose of the few cases in which guilty pleas had been entered. He asked Commonwealth's Attorney Howard W. Smith, jr., his recommendation as to McCoy's sentence. "Eight years on each count" replied Smith.

"To run concurrently?", asked the judge.

"No sir," Smith answered.

Judge Woolls then sentenced McCoy to serve eight years on each count, to run consecutively. The prisoner was led away to begin his 24-year term.

McCoy's previous record, according to FBI files, was a two-year sentence for burglary in Georgia in 1947. Under Virginia law he will be eligible for parole after serving six years of his sentence.

On Anacostia

Thousands See Plane in Near-Crash

Thousands of Washingtonians tensely watched a disabled Navy fighter plane narrowly miss crashing into two Anacostia River spans early yesterday afternoon.

Lieut Gregory

For eight threatening minutes the plane skimmed over the Eleventh Street and Sousa Bridges, as well as the Benning Viaduct and waterfront homes, at times only about 75 feet above the water.

The seasoned pilot, Lieut. (j. g.) John D. Gregory, 33, finally got the F-4 Hellcat under control as he was preparing to ditch it in the river, and managed to fly it back safely to Anacostia Air Station.

It took several traffic policemen to unsnarl the ground-level traffic jam created by neck-craning motorists. Two Harbor police rescue boats and a detachment of land-bound police stood by.

One trembling cab driver hoarsely told police the plane had "only barely" missed his cab on the 11th st. bridge.

Gregory later told a reporter, "I was just too darn busy for those eight minutes to give a thought to being scared.

"I took off from Anacostia about 1:30 p. m., on a familiarization flight—to get to know this plane I was going to ferry to Alameda Saturday. As soon as it was airborne, the engine missed and sputtered. It just wouldn't go up beyond 75 to 100 feet.

"The plane was only 15 to 20 miles above stalling speed, which is about 80 miles an hour, and I couldn't get enough altitude to turn back to the field.

"There was no hope for it—I prepared to ditch in the river between the viaduct and the Sousa Bridge. In cutting the throttle I discovered the engine would run reasonably smoothly at a low power setting.

"That made it possible for me to gain about 500 feet altitude, turn around and make it back to the field."

Pageant Extended In Alexandria

Alexandria's bicentennial pageant, "Alexandria, Thy Sons," which was rained out three of its first four nights, will run through Tuesday evening.

It was scheduled to close Sunday, but bicentennial officials yesterday announced the run would be extended because of a great demand for tickets.

Senate Worker Hurts Back

Man Stabbed, Girls Fight And Two Police Cars Collide

A man was critically stabbed last night in a fight which indirectly caused two police cars to collide while speeding to the scene.

The injured man, James Davis, 36, a chef, was stabbed twice in the stomach with a kitchen knife at his home, 1336 11th st. nw. He was taken to Emergency Hospital.

Police broadcast a lookout for a 5-foot Negro, about 33 years old and weighing 140 pounds.

Pvts. Joseph H. McCarthy and J. W. Corbin of the Second Precinct, arriving at the scene, encountered a sidewalk fight involving several teen-age girls and radioed for assistance.

The two police cars which collided were responding to the resultant call that a "policeman was in trouble."

The collision at the triple intersection of Vermont ave., 12th and R sts. nw. Traffic Car 2, of the Accident Investigation Unit, approaching east on R st., and Scout 133 of the Thirteenth Precinct, coming south on 12th st., arrived at the intersection simultaneously.

The front parts of each car were damaged.

Area News in Brief

Man Convicted as Shirt Thief Given Probation for a Year

James A. Marshall, 21, of 202 New York ave. nw. was given a year's probation yesterday after he was convicted of stealing $37 in shirts from Dave's Mens Wear, 705 12th st. nw.

Marshall was arrested within 15 minutes after the theft by police who said they observed him running with a box containing the shirts. They were led to the defendant by a radio alert describing the crime but not the defendant.

Judge Thomas D. Quinn of Municipal Court commended police for the quick work and refused to hold the arrest invalid because of the lack of radio description.

"As long as police are as efficient as they were in this case, we need not worry about deprivation of individual's rights," he said.

Rent Hike Request Filed

A request for a rent increase on 95 units of the Bond Apartments, 1230 New Hampshire ave. nw., was filed with the District Rent Control Administration yesterday.

Present rents range from $30 a month for one room to $60 for two rooms and kitchen. Proposed rents are from $31.05 to $62.50.

Doughnut Thief Jailed

In Bethesda Police Court yesterday, a 33-year-old caddy was given his choice of a $25 fine or 15 days in jail for stealing six doughnuts from a Bethesda store.

Luther M. Sockwell, 906 26th st. nw., charged with the theft, admitted he was broke. He now will serve 2½ days for each purloined doughnut.

Woman, 54, Wounded; Police Seek Her Husband

Man Is Believed To Have Attempted To Feign Suicide In Bid to Escape

A 54-year-old beautician, police say, was shot and seriously wounded by her estranged husband yesterday.

The husband fled, police say, after the shooting and apparently tried to convince police he had committed suicide by jumping from the 14th st. bridge.

Victim of the shooting was Mrs. Myrtle Harrison, employed as a beautician at Jackie's Beauty Shop, 5000 1st st. nw. The shooting was in the kitchen of a home at 4207 Illinois ave. nw.

According to her landlady, Mrs. Bertha Drake, Mrs. Harrison has roomed there for about a month since separating from her husband.

The husband was identified by police as John W. Harrison, also 54, a former contractor and sightseeing guide of 421 6th st. ne.

Mrs. Harrison, who is in "very serious condition" at Emergency Hospital, said her husband came to her home at about 9:30 a. m. yesterday, and when she came to the front door, told her he wanted to talk to her.

Mrs. Harrison told police she refused to admit her husband because she was alone in the house. She said he entered by cutting the front-door screen.

He then asked her to go to the kitchen and sit down at the table. As she sat down, Mrs. Harrison told police, her husband produced a .32-caliber revolver and fired three shots.

Two bullets entered the woman's right chest. The third slug penetrated her breast and left arm.

Mrs. Harrison grabbed a kitchen towel and pressed it against her wounds, then staggered to the front porch.

"I've been shot," she screamed to her nearest neighbor, Mrs. Harriet Grier, at 4205 Illinois ave.

Mrs. Harrison walked to Mrs. Grier's house and sat on the front porch. When an ambulance arrived, she walked to it.

Meanwhile, several neighbors had called police.

Not long after the shooting, Mrs. Harrison's brother, Earl Wilkerson of Forest City, N. C., received a long-distance telephone call from Washington.

The caller identified himself as Harrison. He said he had just shot his wife and that he was going to commit suicide.

At 11 a. m., Washington police received a mysterious call. The caller told this story: That he had picked up a hitchhiker who told him he had just shot his wife, that while they were driving across the bridge, the man asked him to stop, got out, ran to the railing and jumped into the water.

The Harbor Precinct sent two boats to the scene. Headquarters sent a cruiser and the Fourth Precinct dispatched two scout cars.

MRS. MYRTLE HARRISON

After an hour's investigation, during which they received a call from North Carolina from Mrs. Harrison's brother, police concluded it was a hoax, that the "motorist" who had called police was Harrison.

The police lookout said Harrison has a short build, a large red nose, is bald-headed, walks with a limp and was wearing blue clothes and a straw hat.

The Harrisons have been married for about two years.

Heart Attack Is Fatal to Colonel Clark

Funeral services for Col. Gordon E. Clark, 50, director of civilian personnel for the Air Force, who died of a heart attack Thursday night, will be held Monday at 11:30 a. m. in Fort Myer chapel. Burial will be in Arlington.

Col. Clark

Colonel Clark who returned to civilian status in 1946, holding his Reserve commission on the inactive list, was stricken at his home, 1936 38th st. nw.

A native of Plattsburg, N. Y., he was a corporal in the Marine Corps in World War I. Later he was graduated from Georgetown University School of Foreign Service. He also held a law degree from Columbus University here.

He entered the War Department in the 1920s and, in 1931, was commissioned a captain in the Army Reserve.

In 1940 he was called to active service with the rank of major and made chief of civilian personnel for the Army Air Corps.

In 1946 he became Air Force deputy director of civilian personnel and advanced to full colonel. During that year he returned to civilian status and last July he was made director of civilian personnel, administering policies affecting 187,000 employes. He held the Legion of Merit for personnel work during the war.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Frances H. Clark, and a daughter, Mrs. Frances Eleanor Goodrick.

Charter Starts $8000 Fund Drive In Montgomery

The Montgomery County Charter Committee, which fought for the new county charter and election of the present county council, is launching a campaign to raise $8000 and "keep the charter in business."

Committee President Norman B. Ames, in announcing the drive, said committee members "cannot afford to rest on their laurels."

He declared it was "well known" that the charter opponents would renew their efforts in the months ahead, and "that they will be well-heeled."

Missing Clerk Found Dazed in Car in Maryland

A 53-year-old civilian Coast Guard clerk, reported missing since Monday, was found in a dazed condition yesterday near Hughesville, Md., apparently a victim of amnesia.

He is Otha B. Beale, 11 R st. nw. His brother, Park Police Pvt. Porter M. Beale, said a storekeeper a short distance south of Hughesville on Route 5 found the clerk sitting in his car. He notified State police.

Officer Beale said his brother doesn't remember what happened. He said he left on a fishing trip last Saturday but failed to arrive at his destination. He is resting at his home, Officer Beale said.

Rites Are Held For 44 Victims Of India Crash

Bombay, India, July 15 (U.P.).—Final services were held today for 44 of the 45 victims of Tuesday's Dutch Airline crash here by clerics of their various faiths.

Police were still serching for the body of the forty-fifth victim.

H. R. Knickerbocker, radio commentator and 1 of 14 American newsmen killed in the wreck, was buried in a plain brown-varnished coffin decorated with a wreath sent by the American consolate.

A minister recited the words requested by Knickerbocker's family: "This was a good man. He knew compassion."

The bodies of the Dutch crewmen and passengers were cremated. Unidentified bodies—including two believed to be those of United States Newsmen Burton Heath and Charles Gratke—were buried in individual graves during intermittent showers.

The bodies of other American victims had been cremated in earlier services.

Edward A. Johnson

San Diego, Calif., July 15 (AP).—Edward Albert Johnson, 62, of Solana Beach, Calif., one of the Nation's pioneer aviators, died yesterday, apparently of a heart attack.

His automobile crashed into a column of an overpass on the highway north of here. Deputy Coroner Dave Bone said he believed Johnson suffered a heart attack before the accident.

Johnson, a civilian airman, held License No. 32 among the Nation's pilots.

Irving J. Polack

Van Nuys, Calif., July 15 (AP).—Irving J. Polack, 63, veteran showman and circus owner, died Wednesday at his home, it was learned today. He formerly headed the Showmen's League of America, and was associated with his brother, Harry, in an enterprise that presented Shrine circuses.

Prof. Alexich Found Dead in Bedroom Suite

George M. von Alexich, 55-year-old Georgetown University assistant professor and former Austrian diplomat, was found dead in bed in his suite at the Westchester Apartments yesterday at 1:30 p. m.

A Gallinger Hospital physician pronounced the educator dead apparently from natural causes.

Professor Alexich's body was found by Arthur J. Harnett, managing director of the apartment, when a maid reported that she was unable to get a response to her knocking at the door.

Professor Alexich, former Austrian Ambassador to the Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg in the early and middle 1930s, left the Austrian diplomatic service in 1938 when Hitler occupied Austria.

He, with his wife, Ida Maria, Baroness Friebeisz and his daughter Maria, fled France for this country in 1940 as the Nazis approached.

In 1941 he joined the National Catholic Welfare Conference News Service. A year later he became associated with the Office of War Information as senior regional supervisor for Spain and special advisor on Catholic matters.

He joined the faculty of Georgetown University in 1943 as assistant professor on the graduate school staff of the political science department.

His wife and 13-year-old daughter were visiting in Lancaster, Pa., at the time of the educator's death, university sources said.

Morrow Dies; Ex-Executive Of News Chain

Oklahoma City, Okla., July 15 (U.P.).—Walter Morrow, 54, former executive of the Scripps-Howard newspaper organization, died in Polyclinic Hospital here last night.

Mr. Morrow arrived here Monday from Phoenix, Ariz. He moved to Arizona from Washington after he became ill about two years ago.

He began his newspaper career as a cub reporter for the Daily Oklahoman here in 1918, shortly after graduation from the University of Oklahoma.

Mr. Morrow started his last newspaper job in 1942, when he was named editor of the Columbus, Ohio, Citizen.

Later he became manager of the American Retailers Association, a post he held at his death.

Mr. Morrow, born in Indiana, moved to Norman, Okla., with his family when he was in his teens.

He left this post to join Scripps-Howard, and held executive positions on several Scripps-Howard papers during the following 20 years.

Reception at Brazilian Embassy

Mlle. Wankowicz Bride Of Count de Boisgelin

ST AGNES' CHURCH in Arlington, Va., was the setting for the wedding yesterday of Mlle. Yolande Wankowicz and Count Gilles de Boisgelin. A reception followed at the Brazilian Embassy.

The bride is the daughter of Mme. Witold Wankowicz and the late Mr. Wankowicz, counselor for many years of the Polish Embassy. The bridegroom, an Attache of the French Embassy, is the son of the Marquis de Boisgelin and the late Marquise de Boisgelin of Paris. The father was unable to be present at the ceremony. The Marquise, according to French custom, was represented by Madame de Margerie, wife of the Counselor of the French Embassy.

Msgr. Fulton J. Sheen, professor of philosophy at Catholic University, officiated at the ceremony held at 10 a. m. The wedding march, a Polonaise, had been composed by the bride's great grandfather, Stanislas Monciuszka, one of Poland's noted musicians.

Paul Wankowicz gave his sister in marriage. The bride's gown of pale cream satin with the exquisite Alencon lace veil had been designed by her and was a gift of Mrs. Roberts Woods Bliss. The gown made with full skirt and short train was edged about the decolletage with satin flowers in dogwood design.

Mrs. Homes Welch, the former Marie Wankowicz, was her sister's matron of honor and Princess Sophie zu Lippe of Austria was the bridesmaid. The bride's small niece, Balala Welch was flower girl. All wore white organdy frocks and carried bouquets of blue delphinium and deep red roses, colors of the Boisgelin family. Jean Claude Winckler, Second Secretary of the French Embassy, was best man.

The bride has been serving as social secretary to the Brazilian Ambassador. She attended schools in Europe, the Georgetown Visitation Convent and was graduated from Rosemont College.

Count de Boisgelin was graduated from L'Ecole des Sciences Politiques of Paris and the University of Lyon. He was awarded the Croix de Guerre for services in the French Resistance. After their honeymoon the couple will live in Washington.

Miss Watters, F. McD. Culver Are Married

The marriage of Miss Katherine Watters, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James M. Watters of White Plains, N. Y., and Francis McD. Culver, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Culver of Akron, Ohio, took place yesterday at 4:30 in Holy Trinity Church, Georgetown. An informal reception followed at the home of the bride's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James M. Watters, jr., in Georgetown.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother. She wore a blue silk shantung frock with net hat of matching blue, and carried an old fashioned bouquet of roses and carnations. There were no attendants.

The bride has been serving as secretary to Justice Felix Frankfurter. She is a graduate of Smith College. Mr. Culver attended the University of Florida and served as a captain in the Air Forces during the war.

After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Culver will live in New York where Mr. Culver is in the publishing business.

Engaged

Mrs. Thomas U. Dudley of Exning, Middleburg, Va., announces the engagement of her granddaughter, Miss Jane Fairfax Dudley, to William A. Eliason, son of Mr. and Mrs. Talcott Eliason of Upperville, Va. The wedding will take place in the fall.

Miss Dudley is the daughter of the late Thomas U. Dudley, jr., of Wilmington, Del. and of Mrs. Shirley Carter of Warrenton, Va. She is a graduate of St. Margaret's School, Tappahannock, Va. and attended Madison College at Harrisonburg, Va. Mr. Eliason was graduated from Virginia Military Institute in the class of 19[illegible] and is a member of Kappa Alpha Order.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Tate Culberson have announced the engagement of their daughter, Sylva May, to Thomas R Overton, of Greenfield, Tenn. The wedding will take place August 20.

Miss Culberson was graduated from Bob Jones University in Greenville, S. C., last year. Mr. Overton is a student at Bob Jones University. He served with the Navy on Guam during the war.

Dance at Quantico

Special services at Quantico Marine Base will give a dance in the ballroom this evening. Another dance at the noncommissioned officers club of Andrews Air Force Base, will be held this evening at 8 o'clock.

Vacationing

Hannah and Donna Helsing, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Einor A. Helsing of Washington, are enjoying the summer as active campers at Moss Lake Camp, Darts, New York. Outstanding in sports, the two girls are pupils at Holton Arms School.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey will sail on July 28 for Europe. They will spend some time at their chateau in France and will also visit in England and Italy. They will return to Washington the end of October.

Vacationing at Sorrento Hotel, Miami Beach, are Miss C. Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. H. Eiss, Miss Libby Clein, Miss Gertrude Clein, Miss Theresa H. Stern and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Reiter.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernhard Bechhoefer, with their sons, have gone to White Bear Lake, Minn., where they have opened their summer home for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Saks are vacationing at Eastwood Lodge, near Belgrade, Me.

Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Van Kirk of Washington are guests at the Homestead, Hot Springs, Va.

Recent Washington guests of Split Rock Lodge in the western Pennsylvania Poconos include Mr. and Mrs. William Herson of Rockville.

J. C. McCollin of Washington is stopping at the Beekman Tower Hotel in New York City.

Fairfax BPW Club Meets Wednesday

Fairfax County Business and Professional Women's Club will hold its regular meeting on the evening of July 20 at the Methodist Church in Oakton. Dinner will be served by the women's organization of that church at 6:45 p. m.

Mrs. Ruth Evans, vice president, will preside in the absence of Ms. Evelyn Magarity, president, who is in Boston for several weeks. The speaker of the evening will be Mrs. George Beethier of Arlington. Her talk will be on the United Nations.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

Literally millions of children go to camps every summer. Perhaps your Billy or Mary will be one of them this year. If so, just how will you choose the camp to which they will go?

There are many things that should go into such a choice. You'll want to be sure, of course, that safety and health are well taken care of. But there are other things, too, that are important along with medical care, good food, careful supervision of swimming, and other health and safety measures.

Many parents, for instance, are beginning to question the emphasis on competition that still characterizes many camps. Though Junior comes home with medals, ribbons, or other awards, which show that he was better than his fellow campers in this or that activity, they note that he may be more interested in the awards than he was in the activities. He went to nature study to get a badge and as soon as the badge was won his interest was gone. And the excitement of "color wars," in which everyone in camp was under tension to do his best to see that the Red or the Blue team got the most points, left most of the youngsters tense and worn out.

It's a good idea to find out whether the camp activity is stimulated by competition or whether youngsters are permitted to take a more leisurely and healthful part in things that interest them.

With the State Societies

Picnics Take Over Calendar With Massachusetts Leading

By Nicha Soure

PICNICS have completely dominated the State Society calendar.

Massachusetts will lead off with a picnic at Grove 23 at Rock Creek Park on Sunday. The old-fashioned Bay State type picnic will start at 1 p. m. with sporting events such as baseball, horseshoes and badminton, and end up around 9 p. m. with a community singing. Refreshments will be furnished by the society while members will bring their own lunches. And there will be marshmallow and hot dog roasts during the community singing in the evening.

On the same day at 2 p. m. the North Dakota State Society will hold a picnic at Grove 12 of Rock Creek Park. North Dakotans will pack their own picnic baskets and the society will provide watermelons and soft drinks. There will be horseshoe and softball contests for the grown-ups as well as slides and swings for the youngsters.

The recently reactivated Maryland State Society will hold their first of what will be annual picnics from 6 to 11 p. m. Friday. Meeting at Pierce Mill, Rock Creek Park, the society members will be served a picnic dinner preceding the sporting portion of the get-together.

Attendance to the Maryland State Society picnic should be confirmed by calling the treasurer, Roy May, at Chestnut 6149; the society president, Mrs. Winifred Grant, Emerson 1439; or the executive secretary, William Clay, Johnson 3-5923.

And Remember Ohio Night at the Watergate

On the not-to-be-forgotten list of events is the Watergate Concert on July 27 when Ohio State Society members will sit together in a special reserved block of 200 seats.

The secretary of the society, John S. Bartlett (Michigan 0860) is taking ticket reservations on "first come-first served" basis. Besides the pleasure of sitting with fellow-Ohioans, the society will hear the guest soloist, Miss Jane Pickens, sing some old Gershwin favorites. Howard Mitchell will conduct the National Symphony Orchestra and Abba Bogin, pianist, will play Gershwin's famous "Rhapsody in Blue."

Dance to Fete Latin-American Lions Group

The Lions and Lionesses of Washington are giving a banquet and dance this evening in the ballroom of the Mayflower Hotel in honor of the South American and Cuban Lions and Lionesses who are on their way to the International Lions Convention to be held in New York City from July 18 to July 21.

Invocation at the banquet this evening will be given by the Rev. G. E. Lanski, sky pilot of the Lions Club of Washington and pastor of the Grace Lutheran Church.

Calvin D. Johnson is chairman of the banquet committee, and Randolph E. Myers is president. The main speech will be given by Dr. Alberto Lleras, secretary general of the Organization of American States. A response will be given by Edward G. Miller, jr., the assistant Secretary of State for American Republics.

Diplomats and their wives who will attend the affair include the Ambassador of Bolivia and Senora de Martinez Vargas, the Ambassador of Colombia and Senora de Restrepo-Jaramillo, the Ambassador of Costa Rica and Senora de Esquivel, the Ambassador of Cuba and Senora de Gans, the Ambassador of Ecuador and Senora de Dillon, the Ambassador of Peru, Fernando Berckemeyer, the Ambassador of Venezuela and Senora de Pocaterra and the Ambassador of Guatemala and Senora de Gonzalez-Arevalo.

MARKET MEMO

By Lucia Brown

Whether you're heading down toward the Chesapeake or not, it might be fun to have a shore dinner this weekend. You'll find a wide variety of fish on the market here.

For cocktails there's clam, shrimp or crabmeat. For the main course, you might have panned sea bass, porgies, or butterfish . . . or maybe broiled halibut, salmon, or swordfish steaks . . . or a big baked bluefish . . . baked scallops or fried soft shell crabs. The Fish and Wildlife Service says there are plenty of medium-sized and smaller soft crabs available, not so many big 'uns.

Fresh pork is getting scarcer and more expensive, meat dealers report. Large hams—sold in slices or as shanks or butts—are better than the small ones now.

Lamb is scarce and high, beef about the same as last week.

Tomatoes and corn are wonderful buys for the coming weekend. The market is almost flooded from local truck gardens and prices should be very reasonable. Lima beans are plentiful. Peas and green beans are scarce and high.

Cantaloupes are a good item . . . fine ones coming in from California and Arizona . . . reasonable for shipped-in melons. Thompson seedless grapes are beginning to show up from California, too . . . still pretty expensive. You'll find peaches from the Carolinas in most stores . . . some of them pretty hard and green. Blueberries are outstanding among the small fruits.

Novel Necklines

THE portrait neckline cape is the unusual feature of this dusty rose taffeta dress for cocktails and dinner. Designed by Mollie Parnis for her fall and winter collection, the skirt is of unpressed back pleats with rounded front hip pockets

Startling Style Draws Stares

Strip-Tease Neckline Plunges Up, Out

New York, July 15 (AP).—The strip-tease neckline which has intrigued both designers and public this season reaches the height of drama in the fall collection shown today by Ceil Chapman as a grand finale to New York's fashion press week.

Miss Chapman, known for her romantic party clothes, uses the "fan" neckline for ultimate allure on some of her more daring after-five dresses. One such, a swish taffeta cocktail dress, has a bodice consisting solely of a wide accordion-pleated frill starting at the waistline and opening upward and outward to frame bosom and shoulders, in the manner of the opening petals of a flower. The effect is somewhat unnerving, and can be expected to rival the appeal of Gypsy Rose Lee

Miss Chapman goes for strapless cocktail dresses such as one in brown velvet with a cover-up jacket trimmed in mink. Her skirts are either full and shirred or draped at the side or back.

Slated for wide popularity among the college crowd are a series of black taffeta "Pierrette" dresses with youthful low-necked bodices and full skirts shirred or tucked from hem to waist. Another trick of the collection is a permanent ripple pleat in the skirts of date dresses, said to stay put through cleanings and rainstorms.

Evening dresses are for the most part strapless, with a flaring "wing" at one shoulder and big bouffant skirts. Also shown are turtle-neck sweater tops worn with full evening skirts in luxurious fabrics — a reverse switch on the down-to-here neckline.

Also in at the finish was the showing of Mollie Parnis, whose principal contribution is the "teardrop" pocket, shaped like it sounds, and a collection of colors including "racing purple" and "mistletoe green." Her version of the teaser neckline is the "pouch," cut as low as the law allows and flared pouchlike at either side.

Sew on Bits of Fur for 'New Look'

By Peggy Preston

NEW YORK, July 15—Tricks of the trade: a little fur can be big fashion for 1949. Scatter bits of it over a costume for a new and different look. Try taking a couple of skins from the collar of an old coat, clasp them together with a pin at the back of the neck, tie them with a velvet bow in front . . . when you tire of it that way, twist it around your wrist, using different bows for various outfits . . . . match a beret and little muff in inexpensive fur, wear them with wool dresses and suits . . . stitch together a collar and belt of short haired fur for last year's swagger coat.

"Trade" aprons, so called because such a garment is the uniform of the tradesman, are being sponsored by almost every designer from Hattie Carnegie down. You can follow the lead by making a couple of big taffeta aprons to wear over basic wool dresses . . . tie them at back or front, slip them off and use as capes for evening.

Scarfs, used in sets of three, can transform a workaday dress. Band one around your wrist, anchor the other two at either side, letting them fly loose in "handkerchief" panel fashion.

OF HANDBAGS, shoes and stockings: price tags were the nicest surprise in the collection of Koret handbags at today's show. Approximately 45 per cent of the items will retail between $18 and $25, a big drop from last season . . . Richard Koret, who specializes in high-fashion handbags, forecasts that polished calf will finally outclass suede for daytime wear this season . . . purses will be smaller, more casual and uncluttered, in keeping with the slimmer, more simple silhouette. Colors are strong. Included are wine, rust, russet, cypress green, stone blue.

Velvet goes to the feet in the fall shoes made by I. Miller. Glimpsed at the firm's show at the Hotel Pierre were slender, feminine footwear made of velvet and in combination with other fabrics . . . again the gleam of polished calf is a feature to note . . . leading colors are dull green, navy, brown and black . . . sheer, smokey navy blue stockings highlighted the showing by Gotham . . . with the coming of shorter skirts stockings are getting lighter in tone, and are dyed to complement the dress and shoe colors.

Closing notes on Press Week: The Dress Institute concluded its week-long series of fashion previews for out-of-town press tonight and sent us packing with an invitation to come back in January for another round. Before saying goodby we would like to salute Ceil Chapman and Mollie Parnis of Parnis-Livingston for their solidly good clothes with sure-fire prices; Benreig's collection which maintained its high standards; the Varden petite dresses and suits all beautifully styled for little women; and Jacques Fath, the French designer, who contributed a bit of Paris-inspired style into the comprehensive collection he has done for Joseph Halpert.

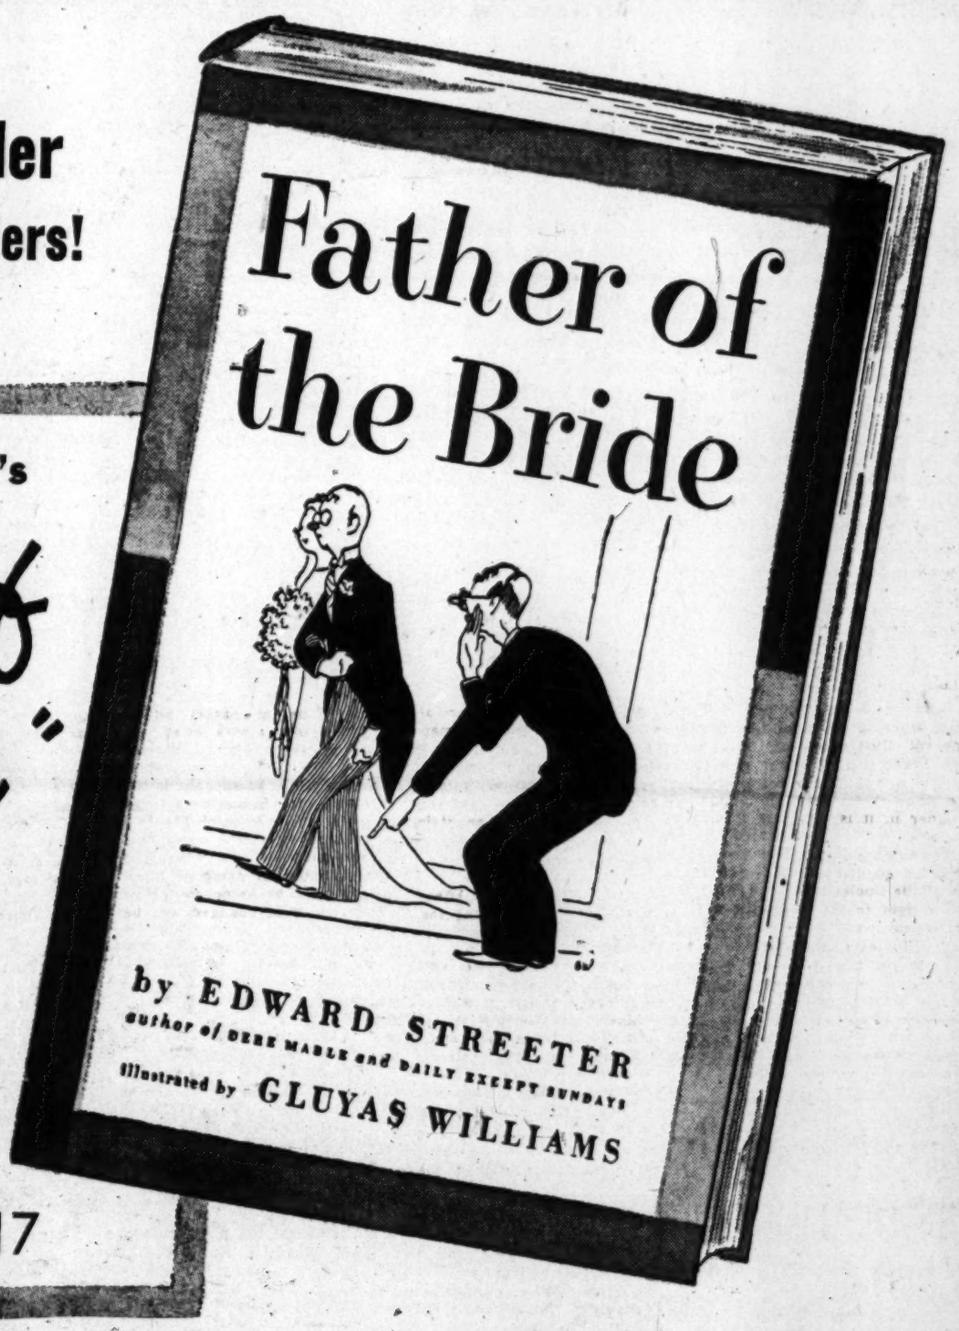
SUNDAY, JULY 17



A mid-summer helping of hilarity for you, beginning tomorrow in The Post! "Father of The Bride" is the book that's currently bringing hot-weather relief to thousands—now, in condensed form, it's yours to enjoy.

Author Edward Streeter (creator of the famous "Dere Mable" letters of World War I) tells you the story of Stanley Banks, a normal, kindly fellow—until daughter Kay announced her intention to marry that Buckley Something-or-other.

How Mr. Banks changed into a bewildered, bedeviled wreck . . . how he watched the rise of the Greatest Show on Earth and the fall of his bank account, makes wonderfully entertaining reading.

You'll rock with delight over Mr. Banks' Financial Talk with his son-in-law, the First Meeting of the bride's and groom's parents, the Planning of the Guest List, and the slightly hectic reception. Gluyas Williams, popular New Yorker cartoonist, adds to the fun with his rib-tickling sketches.

Enjoy "Father of The Bride" in The Post, Sunday through Saturday, July 30.

Keep Your Eyes Lustrous

IT ISN'T difficult for a bride to be "dewey-eyed," but the wise girl sees to it that her eyes retain their luster for years after her honeymoon. Happiness and well-being are prime requisites, but proper eye grooming can help nature do the job.

Whether or not you use eye make-up, you will want to keep the focal point of your face perfectly groomed so that your eyes will speak for you on your wedding day. Eyes impart meaning to all your other features. They come first in meeting, in love, and in memory. So let them come first in care.

Only Three Essentials

Only three essentials are required for consistent eye grooming: a good pair of tweezers, a colorless lash cream, and an eyelash curler. You might start with twissors, a professional type tweezer with scissors handles, designed especially for quick and efficient results.

Follow the natural curve of the brow and pull each unwanted stray hair in the direction in which it is growing. Hot cloths applied to the brow before tweezing open the pores and make the removal of individual hairs much easier. Cool, astringent-soaked pads dabbed over the brows after tweezing aid in closing the pores and guard against irritation.

Care for Lashes, Brows

Now, to care for the lashes and brows. Remember that no blood circulates to the roots of the eyelashes. Each hair is fed by the same oily substance that lubricates the lids and keeps them from sticking. If you have an abundance of this oil, you have long, silky lashes. But as you grow older, the amount lessens and your lashes and brows grow dull. A good, lubricant oil will be a great help.

Use a colorless lash cream, applied wth the finger or a tiny brush. It will lend a soft, lustrous sparkle to lashes and brows. For conservative make-up a little of this pomade smoothed on the eyelids will produce a dewy sheen without the use of eye shadow.

For Brittleness

If your lashes and brows are brittle and lifeless, apply the cream at night on retiring, massaging it gently into the hairs to stimulate circulation.

Finally, complete your eye-grooming ritual with an eyelash curler. This requires only 30 seconds of your time, but it pays big dividends in results. Insert the lashes between the rubber bows of the curved curler and press the scissors handles firmly together, holding until you count 10 slowly. Release your grip a little and move the curler out slightly for a new position. Squeeze handles and count up to 10 again. For a more pronounced curve, repeat the process a third time.

About Kitchen Remodeling

I want to remodel my kitchen at the least cost, as I have to buy a new refrigerator and sink. The inlaid linoleum is just about worn through and I want to take it up, paint around the sides and buy a linoleum rug. Please tell me the best way to take up the linoleum and also a nice color for the walls and woodwork. The room is 9x13 feet and has two windows and three doors. At present the walls are green and the woodwork is very dark. E. C. P.

The linoleum can be taken up by loosening at the edges and prying up with a flat-bladed instrument. After most of it has been torn off the remaining pieces can be loosened by dampening with water, allowing to soak and then removed. Just one work of caution, however! Unless you laid the linoleum yourself and therefore know just what foundation is under it, it is very likely that you will find only a soft wood floor which will not be suitable even for painting. Because of this, if the linoleum is not broken and is tight to the floor, perhaps the easiest way to renovate the floor is to leave the linoleum as it is and paint it. Or, you could paint just the borders and use the new linoleum rug over it. To paint the linoleum, wash it well and go over it with turpentine or varsol to remove every trace of oil or wax. Allow to dry thoroughly and give the area which will be exposed two coats of a high grade floor paint.

Sunshine yellow walls and white woodwork is a nice, cheery color scheme for the kitchen. Or, you could use sky blue walls with pearl gray woodwork.

Will you give me some ideas on how to remove grass stains from children's wash clothes? Denatured alcohol doesn't work for me. E. S.

Grass stains should come out of wash fabrics if they are laid on a flat surface and brushed with soap and water. If this doesn't remove them it will be necessary to use a bleach. On white washable cotton or linen, use household bleach, one tablespoon to each quart of water. Let soak for 15 minutes. To remove stains from washable colored fabrics make a solution of one teaspoon sodium perborate to one pint of hydrogen peroxide. Test solution on an inside portion of the garment before applying to stain to see if it affects dress color. If it does not, sponge stain with solution or dampen with hydrogen peroxide and sprinkle perborate on stain. Rub in and let stand. Rinse thoroughly.

Can you tell me of any effective paint or floor covering for basement floors which sweat in the summer? Something that in turn will not sweat or peel off? Also, can you give me a recipe for an inexpensive dehumidifying system for a basement? I have seen something that resembles a large bag of lime placed on a wire screen over a washtub, drawn through by the furnace blower fan. (Does this make sense to you?) E. M. F.

There is a cement floor paint on the market with a rubber base which is impervious to moisture and alcohol and will wear twice as long as cement paints without the rubber base. There are several good brands on the market and they can be purchased at well-stocked paint stores. Ask for a concrete floor paint with a rubber base. To apply, first etch the floor by washing with a 10 per cent muriatic acid solution. Allow to stand 10 minutes or so until it stops foaming and wash away. Allow floor to dry and apply paint. Muriatic acid is corrosive, so be sure to wear old clothes and gloves when working with it.

A simple dehumidifying arrangement to dry basement air can be made by placing calcium chloride (available at hardware stores) in a large wire basket. Or, you could place it on the wire screen over a tub as you describe. Another type of basket which could be used is a wire letter basket which has three or four decks, so that more of the calcium chloride surface will be exposed to the air. Place the basket in a large tub or container to catch the drip as the calcium chloride absorbs the moisture from the air. When the chemical becomes damp or liquified it must be removed. How often it must be changed will be determined by the amount of dampness in the basement.

The arrangement you mention for placing the chemical near the blower of the furnace was no doubt designed with an idea of drying the air before it was circulated by the fan to the upstairs rooms.

Condensation or sweating on basement walls and floors is caused by the contact of warm air with the cooler cement surfaces releasing the moisture from the air. Therefore, the most effective way to combat it is to keep all basement doors and windows closed during the warm parts of the day to prevent the entrance of warmer outside air. The windows may be opened at night for airing and freshening when the outside air is cooler.

Recently I upset a bottle of scratch remover polish on my summer fiber rug. I immediately tried to remove the stain with soap and water. This method removed some of the stain, but far from all. Is there any method which I can use for complete removal? E. P. P.

It is very probable that the stain has so completely penetrated the rug fibers that no method will entirely remove it. It seems to me that the easiest and most satisfactory way to restore the rug now would be to paint it. Since you recently washed it with soap and water it may not need further cleaning before painting. However, if there is dust in it, go over both sides well with a vacuum sweeper.

Before you start painting, place several thicknesses of newspapers under the rug and apply a coat or two of awning paint or a good grade flat house paint which has been thinned with one part turpentine to four parts paint. Use an old brush and work the paint well into the rug fibers. Allow to dry thoroughly before using it.

Girls' Nation Segregation Ban Clarified

Mrs. Hubert A. Goode, national president of the American Legion Auxiliary, declared yesterday "there is no discrimination or segregation at Girls' Nation. There never has been and there will not be now."

The auxiliary head issued the policy statement from her home in Portland, Oreg., in order to clarify the national organization's stand in regard to Ohio's refusal to send its governor, Joan Rankin, a 16-year-old Negro girl as its delegate to the Girls' Nation here, August 21-27. Girls' Nation is the auxiliary's yearly program to promote good citizenship of America's youth.

The Ohio unit refused to send Miss Rankin to the national, they announced, because they feared she might encounter racial discrimination here.

Mrs. Goode said "The American Legion Auxiliary recognizes no differences among Americans because of race, religion or national origin. No doubt there will be girls of African descent attending the sessions of Girls' Nation from other States

Pointing out that participation in Girls' Nation is entirely voluntary, she added, "Our national organization invites each Girls' State to send two girls to Girls' Nation. The fact that the girl elected governor of Ohio Girls State is a Negro can have no bearing on the situation. The auxiliary would welcome her to Washington. The decision not to send any representative from Ohio State to Washington was made entirely by the State organization."

The Washington Area American Veterans Committee invited Miss Rankin to be a guest at its nonsegregated club here. Miss Rankin replied that she would be glad to accept the invitation on condition that the Buckeye State Legion Auxiliary sponsor or finance her trip.

Wadsworth Likely, public relations chairman of the committee said yesterday that if the Ohio Girls' State does not send Miss Rankin, that she will come as a guest of the AVC.

Delegates to the Girls' Nation live in dormorities at American University where the assembly is held.

Glands to Blame

Medical Aid Needed for Overfat Child

By Ida Jean Kain

NO CHILD likes the nickname of "Fatty," and the overweight child often has a most unhappy time. In a family one child may be extremely overweight, while all the other children are normal. If the family is large and they have a hard time making ends meet, nothing much is done for the overweight. The mother worries and tries to curb the fat child's appetite as best she can, but she is too busy to fix special foods.

In all probability the basis of the trouble is a glandular disturbance. It is important to realize that even if the glandular deficiency is very slight, it can still lead to considerable overweight. With a lowered metabolism the normal fondness for exercise lessens, and just moderate overeating can lead to fat. The slow child tends to get fatter and fatter on little more food than the other children eat.

Average Excess 54%

IN STUDIES of a group of overweights, 22 boys and 28 girls between the ages of 7 and 16, only six of these children were found to be entirely free from glandular disturbances. Of course all these children were considerably overweight — their average excess weight was 54 per cent. And that is the type of overweight child who needs special help.

What can the parents do in a case like this? Take that child to a doctor or a free clinic—do not delay. Some of the finest doctors give their services to these clinics.

The doctor will prescribe the hormones, or combination of hormones lacking which will regulate the metabolic process and make it possible for the excess fat to be burned. But diet is very important, even in the treatment of glandular obesity. The mother will have to help her child curb that big appetite. The best plan is to talk it over and try to get the child's cooperation. The fat child who feels she can be like other children if she eats less, will really try.

Use Psychology

IT'S VERY helpful when the mother can make a few substitutions. Perhaps she could tell the other children something like this: "You can't have melon for dessert; that's just for Sally." When Sally is getting something special, she'll feel happy instead of left out, even though the others are having a rich dessert.

The overweight should also have the milk from the bottom of the bottle, rather than from the top, and a piece of fruit between meals rather than candy. She should always have the lean part of the meat, with no fat on it and no gravy . . . or other fat trimmings.

It's not easy for the mothers of big families to cope with such problems, but it is well worth the effort, for a child's future health and happiness depend on it.

Let a Doctor Examine Skin Blemishes

If you have warts, moles or other skin blemishes—and you believe in witchcraft—you might go to the cemetery at midnight and throw a horse bone over your left shoulder. But if you wish to be sensible about them, you'll consult your doctor and let him decide whether or not they're serious.

Although some forms of blemishes can become malignant and dangerous, most of them are merely unsightly, according to the noted medical writer Maxine Davis, who discusses the subject in the July issue of Good Housekeeping magazine.

"Most skin blemishes are repugnant," says the author. "But their danger, though not to be overlooked, has been greatly exaggerated. Most skin growths are benign. They are so common, however, that we should know what they are and how they can be treated."

Miss Davis describes the characteristics of seed warts, found principally on children, Plantar warts, which are extremely infectious, moles, which are potentially malignant but generally harmless, birthmarks and skin tumors.

She explains that skin growths appearing in old age may be serious.

"A Penny Saved
Is a Penny Earned"

Here is luxury, grace, excellence and common sense blended in perfect harmony. Here you live in one of these beautiful apartments and collect rent each month from the other. It is for the particular people that these Tiffey-built homes were planned and effected where a family can live in absolute privacy in a refined neighborhood . . . and yet add to income, and in this way provide not only a quick and easy method of paying for a home, but also insuring a definite income when age and incapacity necessitate retirment from active business.

The Lyons Den By Leonard Lyons

A YUGOSLAV delegate to the United Nations saw Delegate Eleanor Roosevelt leaving the building at Lake Success at noontime. He asked if she was driving into New York, and could she give him a lift. Mrs. Roosevelt invited him into her car . . . A motorcycle escort whizzed them into New York, and the Yugoslav diplomat—who merely had wanted a lift into town—soon found himself next to Mrs. Roosevelt on a platform over second base in Yankee Stadium, in view of 25,000 women, helping celebrate the birthday of Mary Margaret McBride.

Lyons

LLOYD PAUL STRYKER, Alger Hiss' lawyer, went to New Haven to preside at a moot court trial at the Yale Law School. After the "trial," Stryker and Professor Rodell and the "court clerk," M. M. Merker, had a bull session with all the students. One senior told Stryker: "It was different when you got out of law school. Today the profession is overcrowded and I, who have a wife and child, can look forward to no more than $40 a week as a law clerk" . . . The veteran Stryker, who is approaching the sunset of a brilliant career, stared at the law school senior and said: "I'll trade you, even."

LEON HENDERSON, the economist and former OPA administrator, always stays at the Sherry-Netherlands when he's in New York. This week he checked in, then told the cashier: "I want to sign a chit for $100" . . . "We have new rules now, since Serge Obolensky is manager," the cashier told him. "You must fill out this form." Henderson filled it out, and after the word "Reason" he wrote: "$100, to waste in riotous living." He got the $100.

AT A dinner in Paris the story was told of the party given for Andrei Vishinsky by Secretary of State Acheson, who arrived breathless and late. He carefully explained that he had been delayed because the embassy had been unable to send a car for him . . . Mr. Vishinsky was amused at the thought that America's foremost diplomat had been unable to get a car. He said: "There is an old Russian saying—'The jeweler's wife is short of jewels.'"

SHERMAN Billingsley studied a tall, mustached man sitting in the Stork Club, and it disturbed him. He called the headwaiter, and told him: "Why did you let him come in here? I know he's no good—there's something awful about him. Keep him out next time" . . . A few minutes later Billingsley countermanded the order for Sidney Kingsley had come in and greeted the man. The "something evil" with which Billingsley had associated him was the role he plays in Kingsley's "Detective Story." Billingsley had seen the play the night before. The man is Harry Worth, the villain in the play.

A STUDY made by a research group in Hollywood showed that most of the high-salaried people in the entertainment business give their insurance business to their brothers-in-law. And in most cases, the brothers-in-law are their wives' brothers—and not their sisters' husbands.

AL CAPP, the cartoonist, was at a Washington party where Oscar Ewing, the Federal Security Administrator, tapped him on the back and said: "Mr. Capp, I'd like you to meet the President" . . . Capp, who had been in the midst of telling a story, wheeled and said: "The President of what?" . . . "The President of the United States," said Ewing, and introduced him to Mr. Truman.

ANNA ROSENBERG has become Public Relations adviser to Local 807 of the Teamsters Union, without a fee. "It's a labor of love," she said, "and vice-versa" . . . S. J. Perelman, the author, who took his wife and children to Siam for a year, quickly moved them to Paris. They all came down with tropical fever . . . James Thomas, who won a "Stop The Music" jackpot, was called in Albuquerque on his 10-party-line phone . . . A letter carrier who delivered some mail to Walter Reuther before the UAW convention, told him: "Put in a resolution for the letter carriers."

EZIO PINZA has had so many business disappointments in his career that he's become a skeptic about promises made to him. When he read the reports of his new fabulous contract with MGM, Pinza said: "I'll believe it only when I have the contract in my hand" . . . Yesterday, his lawyer, Harold Stern, and his agent, Paul Small, had a conference with Pinza. "Shut your eyes and hold out your hand," they told him. Pinza obeyed, and they placed the signed MGM contract in his hand. "Now," said Pinza, "I believe it."

CAPT. HARRY SPERBER, who was a translator at the Nuremburg trials, was in Paris where travelers leave their shoes outside their hotel rooms, to be shined. The porter usually chalks the room number on the sole of the shoes, to know where to return them. The porters are trying to find a different identification-system because at a recent wedding, when the couple knelt, the wedding guests could see the same numbers on the soles of the shoes of the bride and the bridegroom.

GRIN AND BEAR IT By Lichty

"It couldn't possibly be as tiring as the baseball games you listen to, Otis . . . they NEVER broadcast soap opera double-headers . . ."

Bill Gold is on his vacation and will resume "The District Line" July 18.

Senate Wives' Coalition Rules

By Drew Pearson

Even the Senators' wives are embroiled in the Republican-Dixiecrat coalition that now really rules the Senate.

Mrs. Tydings Mrs. Taft

The Senate Ladies' Auxiliary, sometimes called the Senate Ladies Luncheon Club is a friendly organization of all Senate wives regardless of politics, which ordinarily is presided over by the wife of the Vice President. But since Alben Barkley is a widower and the next Democrat in line—President Pro Tem of the Senate Kenneth McKellar—is a bachelor, the next ranking wife is Mrs. Millard Tydings of Maryland, whose husband was elected to the Senate in 1927.

Mrs. Tydings, daughter of former Ambassador Joe Davies, is one of the loveliest ladies in the Senate, and it has always been taken for granted that the wife with the most seniority should be automatically elected. However, the club's bylaws call for an election in case there is no Vice President, and this year Mrs. Taft of Ohio, as astute as she is charming, saw to it that the bylaws were carried out.

Rather than see her rival, Mrs. Tydings, elected, Mrs. Taft rallied the Republican wives behind a Dixiecrat dark horse—Helen Ellender, wife of the Senator from Louisiana. This was contrary to all tradition, since Senator Ellender wasn't elected until 10 years after Tydings.

But, as in the Senate, the GOP-Dixiecrat coalition won and Mrs. Ellender became president of the Ladies' Auxiliary. That's the reason for the social icicles today whenever Mrs. Taft and Mrs. Tydings meet.

Note—Chief activity of the Ladies' Auxiliary is Red Cross work. Once a week, the wives don Red Cross uniforms, meet in two spacious rooms allotted to them in the Senate Office Building. Meanwhile, Senate employes are cramped for lack of space. Yet Senator Ellender, whose wife has charge of the two empty rooms, is blocking a bill to construct a new office building.

Religious Debate

Most important isue now being discussed in Capitol Hill cloakrooms is the religious fight over Federal aid to education. This was brought to a head when Cardinal Spellman hurled the "bigot" charge at Congressman Graham Barden of North Carolina, author of the provision that no money from the education bill be used for any religious school—whether Catholic, Baptist or Methodist.

Ever since, Congressmen's offices have been deluged with mail.

One Congressman who met the issue early is Representative Andrew Jacobs, Indiana Democrat, himself a Catholic, but who has defended Barden against Cardinal Spellman's attack.

Going back to his home town, Indianapolis, some time ago, Jacobs attended a Knights of Columbus meeting where he put the issue up to a large group of Catholics. After lengthy debate, the consensus was that Federal money should not go to parochial schools.

State Over Church

Congressman John McSweeney of Ohio, writing to Father Edward S. Hannon of Wooster, Ohio, argued that "there is always the possibility that parochial schools would lose their identity as such should they receive public funds since public school officials are entrusted with the task of establishing educational standards which may run counter to the teaching of the particular church sponsoring parochial schools. This would result in clashes of ideology."

On the other hand, Congressmen Lesinski of Michigan and Kennedy of Massachusetts, both Catholics and both Democratic members of the Education and Labor Committee, are endeavoring to bottle the bill in committee and state quite frankly that they are motivated by church opposition.

Congressional Backtrack

Representatives Richard Nixon of California and Harold Velde of Illinois, both Republicans, did some fast backtracking when the House Un-American Activities Committee held a showdown, closed-door session on their demands to investigate Federal Judge Samuel Kaufman and the Alger Hiss trial.

In fact, two Congressmen almost tripped over themselves denying that they made such demands, though this did not come until after some blunt sermonizing by committe colleagues.

"The charges you are making against this judge are little short of outrageous," crackled Democratic Representative Francis Walter of Pennsylvania, "particularly when you use this committee as a political sounding board. Even if the charges were true, this committee has no business investigating judges to satisy the political grudges of any of its members."

Nixon and Velde fell back on the old defense of being "misquoted" by the press.
